STEEL INQUIRY WILL COVER RAILROADS

Chairman Stanley Says Domination of Rates Is to be Fully Investigated.

COMMITTEE EXPLAINS DELAY

No Disagreement Between Chairman and Mr. Littleton—May Increase Membership to 15.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—There is little doubt from the expressions of support that have come to-day to Mr. Stanley, the Chairman of the Select Committee charged with the investigation of the United States Steel Corporation, that the inquiry will go on fully, thoroughly, and into every phase of the business of the great trust. This is the more evident from the view that seems to be general that as a political matter few men in either party in the House of Representatives could afford to vote to throttle the investigation at this stage.

There are members of the committee who think that by the language of the resolution authorizing the investigation the committee has no right to proceed unless the House shall give further instructions. But these are in a small minority, and it seems likely that all that will be asked of the House will be to increase the membership of the committee from nine to thirteen or fifteen.

The number nine, with five Democrats and four Republicans, has all along been subject to some suspicion. That number was named in the resolution two years and a half ago when Stanley was striving before a Republican Rules Committee to get his investigation recommended to the House. He then wanted the minority of the investigating committee as strong as possible, and so framed the resolution with four Democrats to five Republicans. Later, when he succeeded before a Democratic House, he refrained from changing the number, to avoid any criticism and because he and his friends felt very solicitous for the ultimate success of the resolution in the House.

The question of immunity which is so frequently referred to does not annoy the majority of the committee. Some of the best lawyers in the House have given their opinion that the committee has nothing to apprehend on that score. The Solicitor General, Frederick Lehmann, has also taken the same view. Mr. Stanley said to-day that the work of the committee was hardly more than half done, and that there lay before it the vast domain of operations by the Steel Trust in its domination of railroad rates in certain territory, and in certain classes of freight the tremendous power wielded by it through its system of interlocking Directorships, and its control by investment. These were matters transcending in their influence upon the business of the country possibly the disclosures that the committee has already obtained.

There are witnesses to appear before the committee to explain how the Steel Corporation's terminal railroads, by exercising the right of the road originating freight to name their proportion of the rate, exact from the business of the country excessively unreasonable rates, the proportion for the trust's short haul in some case being, it is said, greater than that of the trunk line for the entire long haul.

There are said to be witnesses who will describe what seems hardly a credible state of affairs where capitalists desiring to organize in the West two lines of railroad, each about 200 miles long, through a productive territory, whose business men pledged an amount of traffic to guarantee dividends for ten years, were unable to finance the projects owing to the decision of the banks controlled by the United States Steel Corporation that the new roads would compete with a road belonging to the trust.

The Steel Corporation owns and controls what is the equivalent of a large system, embracing over 4,000 miles of railroad, and the operations of these roads is yet to be gone into by the committee.

The members of the committee now in the city met to-day and prepared the following statement in explanation of the situation in which the committee finds itself:

"At the executive session of the committee investigating the affairs of the United States Steel Corporation the committee listened to the elaborate arguments of counsel for the corporation protesting against further continuance of the hearings because the Steel Corporation and a great number of persons connected with it were defendants in a suit brought by the Government for its dissolution. Counsel contended that the purposes for which the committee was organized had been subserved and that this committee should not proceed with the investigation.

"After the attorneys for the corporation retired this question was discussed by the committee at length and we were unanimously of the opinion that our absent colleagues, Messrs. Bartlett, Young, and Sterling, who were necessarily detained for a very brief period from attendance at the hearings, should be consulted in this matter, the question being a legal matter, and those gentlemen being learned and eminent in that profession.

"There were no irreconcilable differences of opinion developed during the discussion. It was unanimously agreed after a full and most harmonious conference that these questions should be reserved for final determination until such time as all the members of the committee could be present. This determination in no way interfered with the progress of the inquiry, since the question of transportation and violations of the various inter-State commerce acts is not covered by the Government suit, and there are a great number of witnesses whom the committee hopes to hear upon that subject at its earliest convenience.

"The committee is unable to have any further hearings this week, but hopes to resume them next week.

"With the exception of the motion which was reduced to writing and published at the time touching the attitude of the committee there was no other motion made, and no vote, formal or informal, taken.

"Any rumor that there has been a break between Mr. Littleton and the Chairman of the committee or others, or that Mr. Littleton has refused or failed to attend subsequent sessions of the committee because of such differences between himself and the other members of the committee are unwarranted and without any foundation in fact.

"A. O. STANLEY, Chairman;
"JACK BEALL,
"AUG. P. GARDNER,
"D. J. McGILLICUDDY."

This afternoon Mr. Stanley held a friendly talk with Mr. Littleton over the long-distance telephone, and advised him of the action of the committee in signing the above statement, the wisdom of which Mr. Littleton fully approved. Mr. Stanley, to make his own position perfectly understood, gave out the following interview:

"I have hitherto, without exception, positively refused to enter into any discussion in the newspapers concerning my conduct as Chairman of the committee investigating the affairs of the United States Steel Corporation or to publish at length any opinions touching either the adequacy of the Sherman Anti-Trust act or the effect of the testimony introduced before this committee as to the operations of the United States Steel Corporation.

"In this instance I shall make an ex-

GIGANTIC, 1,000-FOOT LINER

To Have Golf Links, Cricket Field, Tennis Court, and Ballroom.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 24, (by telegraph to Clifden, Ireland; thence by wireless.)—Remarkable details are now known of the thousand-foot liner, the Gigantic, which the White Star Line has commissioned Harland & Wolff to build at Belfast.

The beam will measure between 111 and 112 feet; the displacement will be 70,000 tons, and the gross tonnage over 50,000. The levels will be a dozen or thirteen, with the highest over seventy-five feet above the water line. The passenger accommodation will be increased in the first class from 800 to 1,000 or more, and the total passengers that can be carried will number over 4,000.

The Gigantic will not be an ocean greyhound, but a seven-day boat. She will have both reciprocating and turbine engines. The cost is to be close on to £2,000,000, or $10,000,000. She will have a cricket field, a tennis court, golf links, and reception and ball rooms, and restaurant and veranda cafés, which will be placed forward instead of aft. There will also be a plunge and all kinds of baths, and a gymnasium.

There will be a most elaborate scheme of decoration.

NOVELIST DIES PENNILESS.

Avi Sarah Jackman Succumbs to Exhaustion After Nursing Mother.

Avi Sarah Jackman, novelist and short story writer, died of exhaustion at her home, 2,107 Madison Avenue, yesterday afternoon, after having nursed her mother, who is ill with pneumonia, day and night, until the crisis of her illness was passed safely. Although Miss Jackman was a prolific writer and once quite successful, she died penniless, and officials of the St. Vincent de Paul Society have been asked to come to the relief of her mother and sister, who survive.

Her mother, Mrs. Catherine Jackman, who has been an invalid for a long time, was stricken with pneumonia three weeks ago. Miss Jackman had just received an order from a weekly paper for a serial story based on the Beattie murder, and had begun work on it. She kept at the story and nursed her mother at the same time. From Tuesday morning until yesterday morning she did not leave her mother's bedside.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Jackman passed the crisis in her illness, and the daughter lay down for the first time in three days. She slept uneasily until about 1 o'clock, when she awoke with a start and cried out:

"Mother, mother, I'm dying!"

The mother, despite her weakness, managed to get out of bed and staggered to the couch where the daughter lay, to find her dead, a victim of exhaustion and lack of nourishment.

Miss Jackman, who was 37 years old, was born in Champion, Jefferson County, N. Y. Her first book, "The Silver Ray," appeared when she was 16 years old, and its reception encouraged her to continue writing as her life work. Novels which found considerable sale followed every year or two for some time, her most successful being "Fatima," published seventeen years ago in Chicago.

In 1893 the family moved to New York, and the following year Timothy Jackman, the only son, was killed while stopping a runaway horse in front of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Soon after the father died, and the support of the house fell upon the shoulders of Miss Jackman. For some years she was prosperous, but recently has had a precarious existence, living with her mother and sister in two poorly furnished rooms.

The unfinished manuscript showed that she had written eight chapters in three weeks.

Surgeon Refuses Offer of Presidency —Work Not Done in Baltimore.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 24.—Dr. John Miller Turpin Finney announced this afternoon he had declined the Presidency of Princeton University. He said his work in Baltimore is not yet completed. President Remsen of Johns Hopkins said he rejoiced exceedingly, for Dr. Finney's fame as a surgeon is worldwide. Dr. Finney said:

> Owing to the wide publicity which, unfortunately, has been given to the connection of my name with the Presidency of Princeton University, it is perhaps proper that I should state the facts in the case, that they may not be misunderstood. Some time ago I was approached by members of the Nominating Committee of the Board of Trustees of Princeton and asked whether or not I would be willing to have them present my name to the board for the Presidency of the university.
> After most careful consideration from every point I felt that my work in Baltimore was not yet done, and therefore requested that my name should be withdrawn. While the call from Princeton, which I consider one of the highest honors that can fall to any man's lot, came with peculiar force, it seemed best that I should remain in Baltimore. I felt that I was better fitted for the work which I am now doing.

Friends of the surgeon said it was love for his profession that caused him to decline the offer. Dr. Finney's work takes him to every big hospital in the city and he has performed fifteen to twenty operations a day.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 24.—A Trustee of Princeton University expressed surprise and regret to-day when informed that Dr. Finney had decided to ask the board not to consider his name for the Presidency. He said Dr. Finney would have made an ideal executive head for Princeton. The Trustee said no other name was being considered.

CARNEGIE, 76 TO-DAY, GIVES GOOD COUNSEL

It's Fine to Spend for Your Fellow-Man, and Fine to be Poor and Save.

TWENTY MEN REALLY GREAT

Of Whom He Names Four—A Subtle Blow to the Much-Hit Tobacco Trust, and a Scientific Pun.

The members of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was for a long time the head, and of which he is still one of the active members, had what was announced to be "an intimate evening" with Andrew Carnegie and President John H. Finley of the City College last night.

Mr. Carnegie is 76 years old to-day, and on his birthday eve he offered some advice to young men making their start in life, though he found few of them included in his audience. The burden of Mr. Carnegie's advice was that if you would be successful you must save.

Young Mr. Rockefeller was on the speaker's dais last night when Mr. Carnegie jestingly questioned the wisdom of narrating the story of his start in early life.

"I will absolve you in advance," said Mr. Rockefeller.

"All right then," answered the Laird of Skibo. "All that I want is the Rockefeller absolution, for if that request doesn't go through there will be a row."

The "intimate evening" proved to be one of the most successful the class has had in years, and the hall was packed to the doors. Hunter S. Marston presided. Mr. Carnegie came, he explained, under the impression that he was going to address a lot of young fellows just starting out on their life careers. Instead he found a big crowd of men, many of them baldheaded and others "with parts in their hair a lot wider than my own."

"I congratulate all the boys," he added, "on not being sons of millionaires. As a rule, millionaires' sons do not average up so well as the sons of poor men. However, when a millionaire's son does come up to the mark he is entitled to double credit, for he has many temptations that the poor boy knows nothing about."

Mr. Carnegie then announced that he had been studying the careers of the men who have moved the world, the men who have done things that have changed for the better the conditions of life. He said there were twenty such men, and he mentioned a few, among them Sir Isaac Newton, Shakespeare, Watt, and Edison.

"There was not one among the twenty," Mr. Carnegie said, "who was not born a poor boy, and they all had to struggle for their livelihood."

Then he paid his respects to the drink and smoking habits. Drink, he said, ruined more young men than any other one thing.

"Some young men," he said, "draw smoke into their mouths and they blow it out again. How foolish. When I was a boy they used to snuff snuff up their noses. I am going to say to you, for Heaven's sake quit being so foolish, either with snuff or tobacco.

"A young man, to make a start in life, must always save. He must save, no matter how small his income. Nothing so commends a young man to his employer as the fact that he lives within his income."

It was at this point that Mr. Carnegie spoke of his own early struggle for recognition in the world of affairs.

"One day," he said, "the Superintendent of the telegraph office in Pittsburgh asked my uncle if he knew a boy who wanted a job. My uncle asked what the pay was, and the Superintendent answered that it was $2.50 a week. Then he mentioned me, and the next day my father took me to the office. I insisted on going in alone, and when I was asked when I could start to work I answered, 'Right now,' and went to work the next day."

Mr. Carnegie then went on to say how his father and mother had their doubts as to whether one so young as he could do service that was worth as much as $2.50 a month. He said he studied the streets and the names on them, and one day he was called in by the Superintendent, who almost took him off his feet when he told him he had been promoted to a job that was worth $13.50 a month. That was his first promotion. "I simply scooted home with the good news," he said.

Next Mr. Carnegie told of his love for Shakespeare, and how his study of the poet had benefited him throughout his life. He was admitted to a Pittsburgh theartre free as a result of his delivering a telegram. The play was one of Shakespeare's, and it so impressed him that he got a copy of Shakespeare and began a study that has continued to this day.

"When I was a boy at school in Scotland," he said, "I was required to learn two verses of the Psalms every day. I learned them on the way to school. Half an hour afterward I had forgotten them, but it was different with Shakespeare. That to me was a new language. It gave me a new sensation and I have never gotten over it."

Mr. Carnegie said that his uncle had told him that in reciting Shakespeare it was not wrong to say "hell" when it was in the verse. It was just as proper to say hell under those circumstances, his uncle said, as it was to use the word in the pulpit.

Mr. Carnegie then told of becoming a telegraph operator and of his appointment as clerk to one of the officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

"When I was asked what I wanted for the job," Mr. Carnegie said, "I answered $25 and the official replied he would give me $35. That was the first exhibition on record of the x-raise."

On a certain occasion the freight trains were tied up in an out-of-the-way place. Mr. Carnegie took a chance and did some ordering on his own hook and cleared up the situation.

"'Do you know what that little Scot devil did yesterday morning?' an official asked another, and the answer, as repeated to me, made me decide to run those trains every time I had a chance to do it, and I did."

Eventually Mr. Carnegie came to New York, and here he was asked to build a bridge in St. Louis that was to cost about $4,000,000.

"Four million dollars in those days," Mr. Carnegie said, turning to Mr. Rockefeller, "were as big as $40,000,000 are now."

Mr. Carnegie went to London to get the money to build the bridge.

"In London," he said, "I called on Junius Morgan, father of Pierpont, and he was a very fine man. Mr. Morgan told me to come back in three weeks and he would give me his answer. I told him that would never do, and that it did not suit me. The cable had just been opened, and I cabled to America and had certain

JOHN F. DRYDEN DIES WORTH $50,000,000

Ex-Senator from New Jersey Succumbs to Pneumonia, Following an Operation.

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE HEAD

Was the Founder and Moving Spirit in the Company Till His Death —Was 72 Years Old.

Ex-United States Senator John F. Dryden, President of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, also known as the "Father of Industrial Insurance," died at 6 o'clock last night at his home, 1,020 Broad Street, Newark, N. J. The ex-Senator was operated on a week ago to-day for the removal of gall stones. The operation was successful, but the shock resulting was too great for Mr. Dryden's decreased vitality to overcome.

Mr. Dryden was operated upon by Dr. Edward J. Ill, a Newark physician, and while Mr. Dryden's condition was critical Dr. Ill and his brother, Charles L. Ill, were hopeful of pulling their patient through, notwithstanding Mr. Dryden's advanced age, 72 years.

On Tuesday night the attending physicians discovered that symptoms of pneumonia had developed. Everything known to medical science was done by the doctors to combat this, but Mr. Dryden's condition grew steadily worse. Several times the physicians had faint hopes of saving the ex-Senator's life, but they were only momentary. Early yesterday morning Mr. Dryden gave signs of growing weaker, and as a last resort artificial respiration by oxygen was induced. He was conscious for a short time in the morning, and while the doctors were working over him he suddenly lapsed into unconsciousness.

At the bedside when the end came were Mrs Dryden, a son, Forrest F. Dryden, Vice President of the Prudential; a daughter, Mrs. Anthony R. Kuser; Col. Antnony R. Kuser, a son-in-law, and Drs. Edward J. Ill and Charles L. Ill.

The arrangements for Mr. Dryden's funeral will be announced to-day. The services will probably be held at the Dryden home on Tuesday. The interment will be made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery in Newark.

Mr. Dryden was last seen at his office two weeks ago Thursday. His son and First Vice President of the Prudential Company, Forrest F. Dryden, took over the cares of his father's business duties. It is quite probable that he will succeed his father as President.

At the time of his death Mr. Dryden had about completed the building of his property at High Point, N. J., which is the largest private estate in New Jersey and said to be one of the largest of its kind in the United States. This is apart from his large estate at Bernardsville, N. J. It was estimated last night that ex-Senator Dryden's fortune is about $50,000,000.

Ex-Senator John Fairfield Dryden went to Newark, N. J., in 1873 when he was 34 years old with the purpose of founding an insurance company to deal in industrial risks. He had tried to interest financiers in Massachusetts and had failed. In New Jersey he interested Noah F. Blanchard, William H. Murphy, Horace Alling, Leslie D. Ward, and others. The Prudential Insurance Company was started, the first successful institution of its kind. From 1875 to 1881 Mr. Dryden was its Secretary, and from the last date until his death he was its President. At a hearing a year ago in the Chancery Court in Newark it was brought out that Mr. Dryden's family owned 908 shares of the Prudential stock. The company started with an office in a basement of the State Bank in Newark and grew into a world-wide institution with its home, a $2,000,000 stone building, at Broad and Market Streets, Newark.

With a fortune amassed in the insurance business, Mr. Dryden became interested in banking and street railways. He was a Director in the United States Steel Corporation, Vice President of the Fidelity Trust Company, and a Trustee of the Equitable Trust Company of New York. When the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey took over the control of the North Jersey Street Railroad Company and the Newark and South Orange Line, of which he was one of the principal owners, Mr. Dryden became a power in the affairs of the first named company.

Mr. Dryden had an active part in politics in New Jersey for a number of years, until 1907, when his health compelled him to give up his fight for the renomination of the Republican Party for the United States Senate. In 1896 and 1900 he was a Presidential Elector. With the death of Gen. William Sewell in 1901 Mr. Dryden was elected to the Senate by the New Jersey Legislature.

In 1907, when he was a candidate for re-election, affidavits were made by men who had been members of the State Legislature at the first election, swearing that an agent of the Erie Railroad had promised them sums of $2,500 and $10,000 to vote for Mr. Dryden. The second fight over the Senatorship, in 1907, was long and bitter. At the height of it Senator Dryden announced from Washington that he withdrew his name. The election went to Senator Frank O. Briggs, who had been the leader of the Dryden forces. The situation was brought about by eight Republican legislators, who refused to vote for Mr. Dryden, but were willing to vote for Mr. Briggs.

Mr. Dryden was born in Farmington,

FOSDICK HITS LUXURY IN THE HEALTH OFFICE

Automobiles and Carriages for the Doctors, He Says, Just to Carry Them Home.

ONE FOR EACH PHYSICIAN

Some Have Horses and Motors, Too, He Reports to the Mayor—Recommends Street Cars for Them.

Commissioner of Accounts Raymond B. Fosdick filed with Mayor Gaynor yesterday a report of the investigation his office has been making of the use of automobiles by the Department of Health. The Commissioner finds that during 1909 the Health Department had nine automobiles and eight carriages, and that these were so parceled out that each physician had an automobile or a carriage to himself. The one exception was in the case of Dr. Maxfield of Brooklyn. It is set forth, however, that when Dr. Maxfield was transferred to the New York office his machine was used as a general utility car so that all the physicians had a chance to use it.

Commissioner Fosdick finds that the physicians used the automobiles principally to take them between their offices and their homes about luncheon or dinner time. The Commissioner thinks this an extravagance, and suggests that Health Department employes be required to reach their offices by the same means "as most other city employes use," which refers to street cars or the Subway or elevated.

This is the manner in which the automobiles and carriages were assigned to the various physicians, according to Commissioner Fosdick's records:

Dr. Thomas Darlington, Commissioner of Health:
1 automobile with chauffeur.
2 horses and a carriage with driver.
Dr. Walter Bensel, Sanitary Superintendent:
Dr. A. Blauvelt, Assistant Sanitary Superintendent:
1 automobile with chauffeur.
Dr. S. J. Baker, Chief of Division of Child Hygiene:
1 electric auto.
Dr. S. D. Hubbard, Borough Chief, Division Contagious Diseases, Brooklyn:
1 automobile with chauffeur.
Dr. A. H. Doty, Health Officer of Port of New York:
1 automobile.
Dr. J. S. Billings, Chief of Division of Communicable Diseases:
1 automobile with chauffeur.
Dr. J. J. Cronin, Borough Chief, Division of Child Hygiene:
1 electric auto.
General Utility Car.
Dr. Herman S. Biggs, General Medical Officer:
1 horse, coupe and buggy, with driver.
Dr. J. F. Whitmyer, Chief of Division of Contagious Diseases:
1 horse and buggy with driver.
Russell Raynor, Chief of the Division of General Sanitary Inspection, Manhattan:
1 horse and buggy with driver.
Dr. Andrew T. Tallmadge, Borough Chief of Sanitary Inspection, Brooklyn:
1 horse and buggy with driver.
Dr. John G. Sprague, Assistant Sanitary Superintendent, Richmond:
1 horse and buggy with driver.
Dr. Horace Greely, Borough Chief of Communicable Diseases, Brooklyn:
1 horse and buggy.
Thomas F. McCarthy, Borough Chief of Sanitary Inspection, Richmond:
1 horse and buggy.

The Commissioner finds that the same assignment was virtually continued in 1910. The department, the Commissioner reports, has a Columbia car, purchased in 1905 at a cost of $4,000, which is now standing useless in a shed at Otisville.

Until June 15, 1910, he says, five autos and one auto truck, assigned for use from the Fifty-fifth Street office, were housed at the Victor garage, Fifty-fifth Street, near Seventh Avenue, at a charge of $32.50 a month each. On June 15, he says, orders were issued to transfer the six machines from Victor's to Corvan's garage at 122 West Fifty-fourth Street where a rate of $30 a month was obtained. The consequent saving of $15 per month is apparent only, says the Commissioner, as there are no tools or workroom at the latter place, as was the case with Victor's, and, therefore, the slightest repairs had to be done at repair shops.

The cost of the eleven machines, according to the Commissioner, was $32,982. The total expense for operating these cars, including the salaries of the chauffeurs, was $19,039 for the year 1909 and $9,693 for the six months ending July 1, 1910. The expenses for maintaining the two Lozier cars used by the Commissioner and Dr. Bensel, the Sanitary Superintendent, says Commissioner Fosdick, have been the highest for the period under consideration, although the Oldsmobile, used by Dr. J. S. Billings, follows a close second. Figures submitted by Commissioner Fosdick show that these three cars have cost the city for maintenance from $12 to $15 a day, not including Sundays or holidays, the lowest being for Dr. Billings's car and the highest for Dr. Bensel's.

Of the car used by Dr. Bensel the report says:

> The Lozier car used by Dr. Walter Bensel was shown by the records of the garage to have been out of the garage 120 hours during the month of April, or about 4½ hours per day, and to have been out of the garage 112¼ hours during the month of May, which averages for the twenty-five days about 4½ hours per day. The records show that the car was in and out of the garage from two to five times per day during these months, nearly always once in the morning, again at noon, and again at night, with an occasional trip between times. Our inquiries developed the fact that the main use to which this car was put was to convey Dr. Bensel to and from his home.

It is also pointed out that practically the same was true of the car used by Dr. Billings, and that several of the physicians used their cars many hours in excess of the time they reported them to have been used. For instance, it is pointed out that Dr. Blauvelt's car during May, 1910, was used more than eighty-one hours in excess of the time reported; that Dr. Baker's car was used greatly in excess of the time reported, and that it would show that "the car was used for other than departmental work." During the month of May, on three Sundays and one holiday and one day when the doctor reported ill and did not appear at the department, says the report, the car was in use 67.41 hours, and, according to the cyclometer attached to the car, it traveled 58 miles in that time. In June it was in use seventy-two hours, and traveled 38 miles under similar circumstances. In July, on four Sundays, one holiday, and one Saturday, "when the doctor was absent from her duties," the car, according to Commissioner Fosdick's figures, was in use 74 hours and traveled 94 miles during that time.

"This record," says the report, "would seem to indicate that the car assigned to Dr. Baker is doing work for which the department should not be chargeable."

An examination of Dr. Cronin's time sheets also showed that his car was in use on four Sundays in April, 1910, for 58¼ hours. During May the car was also in use on Sundays as well as on days when the doctor reported ill. The record shows that on May 30, Memorial Day, Dr. Cronin's car traveled 25 miles. It is also shown that in July Dr. Cronin was away on his vacation for twenty-two days, from the 2d to the 25th. His time sheets, however, according to the report, show that during the balance of the month he gave

STOLEN MASTERPIECE FOUND

Florence Police Waylay a Man with the Madonna della Stella.

FLORENCE, Italy, Nov. 24.—Fra Angelico's famous painting, the "Madonna della Stella," which was stolen from the Monastery of San Marco, now used as a museum, last Sunday night, was recovered last midnight by a force of Carabineri and police under exciting circumstances.

The police had learned that the thieves were about to take the picture out of Florence. They consequently took measures to prevent this being done, acting with the greatest secrecy. Lines of police were drawn around the locality where it was suspected that the picture had been hidden. At about midnight a man appeared with a package under his arm. The firing of revolvers was then heard about the spot. The police adopted this method of signaling the appearance of the thief to their comrades. The man with the package, convinced that he was in danger of capture, dropped his burden and ran, but was shortly afterward arrested. In the meantime the police officers secured the package, inside of which the "Madonna" was found, entirely undamaged.

Other particulars concerning the theft and the police precautions are kept secret, as the authorities wish to catch not only the actual thieves but their instigators.

ARREST OIL CO. TREASURER.

Elmer W. Moore of Federal Oil and Gas Company Under $50,000 Bond.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 24.—Elmer W. Moore, Treasurer of the Federal Oil and Gas Company, was arrested late today on a capias issued by Judge Charles P. Orr of the United States Circuit Court. It is alleged that there is a shortage of $100,000 in the accounts of the company. Moore's bond was placed at $50,000, which a friend furnished.

Moore was taken into custody at his home by United States Marshal Porter, who is himself a Director of the concern. The capias was sought by the Commonwealth Trust Company of Pittsburgh and Secretary W. A. Chase of the Federal Gas Company, who was also a receiver of the company.

About eight months ago, it is said, the stockholders of the company discovered that the funds were short $100,000, but none of the officials could explain the discrepancy. Auditors verified the shortage, it is asserted. Directors of the company visited its operating officials in Oklahoma, whose headquarters were at Nowata. Affairs were found in good condition, but an apparent shortage remained unexplained. The stockholders then had a receiver appointed.

The capias to-day for Moore, it is said, was sought in the desire to clear up the situation. It is returnable Dec. 1.

CASSIDY'S IDLE BROTHER.

Never Did Anything but Accumulate Debts, Some of Which the Boss Pays.

Dr. Thomas Cassidy, brother of Joseph Cassidy, Democratic boss of Queens, was examined in supplementary proceedings yesterday on a City Court judgment obtained by Weber & Heilbroner, haberdashers. Cassidy was one of the most nonchalant witnesses ever examined in such a hearing. Here are some of his answers:

"I do nothing. I never did anything. I am about 32 years old. I have no calling or business. I never had any business. I am not a licensed physician. I am a medical physician.

"I am married, but I am not living with my family. I do not support my wife. She does not support me. I have not the slightest idea who supports my wife. I supported her prior to 1903, but not since.

"I am supported by my brother, Joseph Cassidy, with whom I live. I do nothing for him for this support. He has supported me all of my life. At times he has given me money for clothes. I have no idea of the amount. I am indebted to him for all the advances he has made to me.

"I have creditors innumerable. One of them is the estate of Herman Jacoby. My debts probably amount to $25,000; may be more. I accumulated them in the course of three or four years. I don't know what I did with the considerations for them. None of them was for board or furnishings. There is only one judgment besides this one against me. It is for three or four hundred dollars. I don't know who got it.

"My brother Joseph pays my expenses when I am at the Hotel Astor. My expenses are anywhere from $28 a week when I am there. I could not state the maximum. I have a dollar bill somewhere about me now that my brother gave me to pay my expenses to come to this hearing. I am on nobody's regular payroll."

CHARGE BRIBE FUND OFFER TO TEACHERS

Ex-Assemblyman Bohan Wanted Men's Association to Raise $3,500, Affidavits Declare.

CASE TO BAR ASSOCIATION

Whitman Turned It Back, as No Public Officer Was Involved—Hint That Women Knew the Ropes Better.

Affidavits are in the hand of counsel for the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association charging Lawyer Owen W. Bohan, former Tammany Assemblyman from the Eleventh District, with attempting to raise a corruption fund of $3,500 in order to have inserted in the educational section of the recent Charter bill a clause to give the men teachers of this city better pay than they are now getting. The affidavits also declare that Bohan made certain statements concerning the methods used by the women teachers in working for equal pay, intimating payments "for other things than counsel fees."

There are two affidavits, one signed by Joseph K. Van Denburg, a principal in the public schools and President of the Men Teachers' Association; the other by Warren I. Lee, former Republican Assemblyman from the Flatbush section of Brooklyn and counsel for the men teachers. They were drawn up early in July, shortly before the Legislature adjourned for its Summer recess. In the same week Gov. Dix made the statement that the people of New York City ought to have a chance to discuss the provisions of the Charter bill before the Assembly passed on it.

The equal pay measure was at that time a part of the Charter bill. The Charter was before the Joint Cities Committee of the Senate and Assembly. James A. Foley, Tammany Assemblyman from Charles F. Murphy's district, the introducer of the Charter bill, was the Chairman of the Assembly's Cities Committee. James J. Hoey was another Assemblyman on the committee.

It was the popular belief at that time that the Charter bill would pass. Not until Gov. Dix's intervention was it assured that the bill would not pass in the remaining days of the Summer session. The Equal Pay bill, being a part of the Charter, was taken out of the bill to be passed as a separate measure when all chances of passing the Charter bill as a whole had died.

At this critical time, the affidavits charge, a certain go-between, whose name has not yet been mentioned in connection with the charges against Bohan, and who is said to have been innocently made a convenient message bearer, went to Van Denburg and said he had received the "tip" from Albany that if the men teachers expected anything from a Democratic Assembly they had better get busy and employ "additional counsel, and Democratic counsel."

Warren I. Lee had been retained by the Men Teachers' Association when the equal pay measure was first introduced. Lee, as a former Republican Assemblyman, was known to have political enemies. He had been defeated for election to Congress, and was not popular because of his attacks on Tammany interests when he was in the Legislature. The go-between gave no intimation, however, that there was any "objection" to Lee, simply saying that it had been suggested that Bohan be retained to represent the men teachers.

Lee, almost simultaneously, according to his affidavit, got a similar message over the telephone from Bohan himself, and it was suggested that Lee go over to Bohan's office at 61 Park Row to talk things over. Lee consulted with Van Denburg, and subsequently made the visit to Bohan's office alone.

It was at this meeting, early in July, that Bohan, it is charged, broached the matter of a payment of $3,500 for valuable concessions in the Charter, saying that he was backed by certain "interests." The proposition was made that the men teachers should themselves draw up the clause to be inserted for their benefit and that there was to be no pay unless the bill, with the clause included, should pass.

Lee communicated with his client and with J. O. Hammitt, Albany representative of the Citizens' Union. It was decided that Lee should go again to Bohan with Van Denburg. This meeting took place on or about July 7, and the statements credited to Bohan at this meeting constitute the basis of the charges made in the two affidavits.

It is charged that Lee and Van Denburg got from Bohan the same promises that had been suggested to Lee when he had seen Bohan alone. There should be a payment of $3,500, and Lee and Van Denburg should have the privilege of drafting the clause. This interview lasted about two hours, and Bohan is said to have chosen his words carefully so as not to reveal those whom he said were behind him and whom he always referred to as the "interests."

"You men teachers don't deserve anything, anyway," he is alleged to have remarked in the course of the meeting. "It takes the women to do things. They spent $100,000, and you can bet it didn't all go for counsel fees. I didn't get any of it, but there are those that did."

When Lee and Van Denburg left Bohan's office they immediately drew up the affidavits, which are onw in the hands of Einar Chrystie, counsel for the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association. The same day on which they were drawn up they were handed to J. O. Hammitt of the Citizen's Union. Mr. Hammitt took them with him to Albany that same night, and it is said that he would have made them public there if the provision regulating the men teachers' salaries had been so drawn as to injure the provisions of the present Davis law.

Shortly after, however, it became known at Albany that Gov. Dix would not sign the Charter bill as it stood and there was no need of using the affidavits.

Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick heard of the affidavits and subpoenaed Van Denburg and Lee on separate days and got their stories. The go between was also put on the stand. Thereupon Bohan was summoned to appear before the Commissioner and denied any knowledge of the charges. Commissioner Fosdick turned the case over to District Attorney Whitman, and after an investigation by Assistant District Attorney Nott, in which it was shown that no crime had been committed, nothing having been testified to which in any way involved directly a public officer, the testimony in the case was turned over to the Bar Association.

There has been no action by Mr. Chrystie since he has had the case in hand. It was intimated that he was waiting in order to give Bohan a chance to come to the front and tell what he knows about the "interests" referred to in the affidavits.

As to the intimation that the women teachers know better how to "do things," and that money was contributed by them to aid legislation in their benefit, Grace C. Strachan, President of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, in an interview with a TIMES reporter last week, denied any such expenditures in behalf of the association, which represents 16,000 women teachers of the city. Miss Strachan said that $100,000 had been spent by the teachers since the fight for equal pay began some years ago, but that only $5,000 of this sum had gone for counsel fees, the remaining $95,000 representing payments by individual teachers in suits for salaries. According to an investigator of the Citizens' Union, Miss Strachan has not filed in Albany a single statement of expenditures of the Teachers' Association since the law compelling the filing of these statements went into effect in 1905.

Owen W. Bohan served three terms in the Assembly, 1906, 1907, and 1909. He is still influential in politics and in Tammany circles. He denied last night the charges set forth in the affidavits.

"I am familiar with the circumstances and the motives behind this attack," he said, "and all I wish to do at this time is to enter an absolute and unqualified denial of the charges.

"I have done no wrong in my profession or private life. In this matter I am clear in word, thought, and deed. A man's reputation should not be assassinated on an ex-parte statement of persons who have a selfish object to accomplish.

"At the proper time I shall make a statement, which will completely exonerate me in the eyes of this community. I have nothing to fear."

MORSE SENT TO A HOSPITAL.

The President Orders Banker Removed from Prison—May Be Paroled in 1915.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—On account of the prisoner's illness, the President to-day ordered Charles W. Morse removed from the Atlanta Penitentiary to the United States Army Hospital at Fort McPherson, near Atlanta, Ga. There he will be in as strict confinement as ever, but he will have better care and medical treatment. The New York banker is serving a long term in the penitentiary for sharp practice in his business.

The President's order was the result of a prolonged conference at the White House this morning between the President, Attorney General Wickersham, and Mr. Morse's counsel, Harry F. Dougherty of Ohio and T. F. Felder of New York. If his behavior warrants it, Mr. Morse may be paroled in 1915, and his counsel have been insisting almost ever since his term began that his health was such that he could not live out his sentence. They have so far failed to get a pardon, however, and the President's order directing removal to a military hospital is thought to show that he is determined to have the banker pay the full penalty.

Reports as to Mr. Morse's health have been conflicting. He is said to have kidney disease. Warden W. H. Moyer has been in Washington recently to report on the matter, and he is supposed to have confirmed to the Attorney General some of the statements about Mr. Morse's illness. The recent death of John R. Walsh of Chicago a few days after his release has had the effect of making the Department of Justice pay more attention than usual to reports of the illness of prisoners.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 24.—Charles W. Morse is seriously ill in the penitentiary here. He was stricken last Sunday, and his condition was made known to Attorney General Wickersham and the attorneys who have had his case in hand. While he has been an inmate of the prison hospital practically ever since he was admitted to the institution, nearly two years ago, it was not until Sunday that he was compelled to take to his bed. He is suffering from Bright's disease, and the turn his condition took at the beginning of the week alarmed the physicians. At times he sinks into a semi-conscious condition.

When Mr. Morse was admitted to the penitentiary he was partially paralyzed. The confinement began to tell upon him and he had been under the care of the prison physician ever since his incarceration. Since his imprisonment at Atlanta began the Bright's disease developed.

When the news of the order to send him to the hospital was told Mr. Morse he rallied considerably. Mrs. Morse is ill at her home in New York, and though wired for Monday she has been unable to come. She will not be able to travel for at least another week. Morse's sister and son have been wired for and it is believed they can be here Sunday.

FEARS OTILLIE SCHNEIDER.

Dr. Bierhoff Offers $500 Reward for Matteawan Patient's Capture.

Dr. Frederick Bierhoff of 10 West Sixty-first Street offered a reward of $500 yesterday for the apprehension of Otillie Schneider, who escaped from the Matteawan State Hospital for the Insane on Monday night. The physician, according to Dr. James V. May, Superintendent of the hospital, is in deadly fear of the woman. He communicates with the hospital physicians several times a day to learn if she has been apprehended, and has hired detectives to watch near his office.

The Schneider woman was committed to the asylum at Matteawan in 1907. On Nov. 21, 1906, disguised as a Salvation Army worker, she met Dr. Bierhoff at Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue and fired five shots at him. He was seriously injured, and two other men, Otto H. Droege and Paul Scheehan, a Columbia student, who were near by, were struck by stray shots. Miss Schneider declared that she had been employed as a designer of women's dresses, and had made a comfortable living, but charged that Dr. Bierhoff, then an attendant physician at the German Dispensary, had injured her health by an operation.

On March 25, 1907, she attempted suicide by hanging herself to the door of her cell with a leather belt. She was unconscious when rescued. Soon afterward she was committed to Matteawan.

According to Dr. May little doubt exists that she effected her escape on Monday night with the aid of two nurses in the building, with whom several patients say she talked earlier in the evening. No patient, Dr. May insists, could have escaped through three or four doors without such assistance. Miss Gertrude Miller, one of the night nurses, was discharged at once, unable to give a connected story of her actions on that night. Miss Anna Dreimer, another nurse, notified the Superintendent on Tuesday that she would leave the hospital at once, and returned to New York yesterday. Miss Schneider has relatives living in this city, and the hospital authorities believe that the two women were sent to the institution to get positions there and help her escape.

things done to meet the wishes of those with whom I was dealing, and the deal went through, and I made a very handsome profit. That was my first financial operation. Right here I may add that about that time I came near being diverted from a career as a noble steelmaker to one of a common every-day banker. That was where I got out of the woods."

Mr. Carnegie then told a little story about Lawrence Phipps. He said that on a certain occasion Mr. Phipps "wiped up the floor" with him in a board meeting. The next day Mr. Carnegie made Mr. Phipps a Vice President of the company.

"Any man who can wipe up the floor with me as you did yesterday I need as a partner," Mr. Carnegie said he told Mr. Phipps when he notified him of his promotion.

Mr. Carnegie closed with the statement that he was a very happy man in his retirement from business, and that his greatest joy was the spending of his money for the benefit of his fellow-man.

Dr. Finley, who followed Mr. Carnegie, did not speak long. He told of his golf games in which the ironmaster has been his opponent on numerous occasions, and added with a sigh that Mr. Carnegie generally beat him out.

JOHN BIGELOW 94 TO-DAY.

Has Recovered from Illness That Followed His Activity at Library Opening.

John Bigelow, veteran diplomat and author, is 94 years old to-day and is receiving congratulations from his many friends. Mr. Bigelow is hale and hearty and his mental faculties are amazingly keen and alert.

On June 23 last, on the opening of the New York Public Library, Mr. Bigelow, in addition to receiving the keys from Mayor Gaynor, made an address twenty minutes long. It is supposed he overtaxed his strength, for a few days later he was taken ill at his home, The Squirrels, Highland Falls, N. Y., but, to the relief of his family and friends, he recovered his health again.

Mr. Bigelow was one of the first editors of The Evening Post, from 1849 to 1861, and was Minister of the United States to France from 1864 to 1867. He was a close friend of Samuel J. Tilden and one of his executors. He is the author of many books of biography and history and is still active as a writer.

HARD DAY ON STAND FOR MRS. PATTERSON

Story of Woman on Trial for Husband's Murder Is Attacked in Cross-Examination.

READ HER LETTER TO HIM

In Affectionate Terms, Yet at That Time, as She Had Declared, He Was Treating Her Cruelly.

DENVER, Nov. 24.—To refute the story that Gertrude Gibson Patterson, on trial for the murder of her husband, told on the witness stand, Special Prosecutor Benson for three hours cross-examined the defendant. The State brought out several discrepancies.

The chief points of her story that were attacked were the assertions that her husband beat her, and the charge that he was given $1,500 by Emil W. Strouss, a Chicago millionaire, for permission to take her to Europe.

Led to repeat various instances of Patterson's alleged abuse and forced to declare that naturally at the time she felt toward him the greatest of indignation and contempt, she was confronted by letters she herself had written to her husband shortly after the alleged assaults. These letters were couched in terms of affection, such as a devoted wife would write to an affectionate husband.

The mask that Mrs. Patterson had worn throughout the early days of the trial vanished. Twice she wept. Reviewing her early life in Sandoval, Ill., Prosecutor Benson wrung from Mrs. Patterson an admission that when she was about fourteen years old she had been expelled from school.

Mr. Benson went over the story of her husband's alleged abuse until Patterson entered a Denver sanitarium. A letter written June 30, 1911, was handed Mrs. Patterson. It read, in part:

> My Dear Little Pet: Yours just received. Now you must not worry and feel there is a responsibility on you, for there is not. I take all the responsibility on my own shoulders. You will be happy when you step into your own little bungalow. Just be happy, Charlie, and the way to be happy is to know that you have got the best little loving helpmate and wife in the whole world. Lots of love and trust me. I am true all the time. Are you?

On the instance of the trip to Europe with Strouss, the prosecution sought to get from the witness that just prior to the trip she had urged her husband to get into some business for himself, and that negotiations were pending for his purchase of a half interest in a Chicago printing establishment for which she was to give him $1,500 which, she said, she had inherited from an estate that had just been settled.

To all questions on this point Mrs. Patterson returned positive denials or a qualified "Not that I remember."

"Didn't you tell Charlie Patterson that Mr. Strouss was like a father to you; that he had had you educated, and that he wanted you to go to Europe with him because your knowledge of French would be of value to him in buying goods?" asked Mr. Benson.

"I did not," she shot back.

"Didn't he beg of you on his bended knees not to go?"

"He did not."

"Didn't you receive a telegram from him in New York before you sailed begging you not to go?"

"Yes, after he had the $1,500."

"Didn't he say that he had discovered that Strouss was a scoundrel and that things were not as he had been led to believe?"

"No."

"And when you and Strouss reached Paris you found a letter from your husband in which he said that if you did not return at once he would follow you and kill you and Strouss, too?"

"Yes."

"And Strouss gave you $5,000 and sent you home?"

"Yes."

That Strouss and Mrs. Patterson kept up a correspondence was a point the State sought vainly to establish. Mrs. Patterson was shown a letter addressed to herself and signed "E. W. S." She said that it did not seem to her to be in Mr. Strouss's handwriting.

EARLE SUES TO GET HIS HOME

Appears in Court to Have Mrs. Durland's Belongings Removed.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle was at Monroe to-day and appeared as a witness in Justice of the Peace Carpenter's Court in proceedings to oust Mrs. Kellogg Durland's belongings from the Earle home at Monroe.

Kellogg Durland, the magazine writer, who committed suicide last Sunday on a train near Boston, had lived at the Earle residence with his wife while Earle was in Europe seeking his third "affinity." Mrs. Durland began an action for divorce against her husband several weeks ago. Meanwhile Earle and his bride, who was Dorothea Elbert Steward, an English girl, returned from Europe and wished to take up their home in Earle's place at Monroe.

Earle said the lease of the Durlands had not been observed, and was, therefore, void. No defense was made on the part of Mrs. Durland, but during the trial a telegram was received asking that the case be postponed. The request was refused, and Justice Carpenter issued the papers to dispossess the occupant of the house, who is Mrs. Wolf, housekeeper for the Durlands. The papers were given to Chief of Police Osterhout with orders to remove the belongings of the Durlands from the Earle home at once.

Mr. Earle said he liked Monroe as well as ever, and that he intended to bring his bride there and occupy his residence this Winter. Word was received that W. D. Parmalee, a brother of Mrs. Durland, would come to Monroe on Thursday and look after Mrs. Durland's interest, but so far he has not put in an appearance. On Wednesday papers were served upon Mrs. Wolf in an action to recover about $1,000, which, it is asserted, the Durlands owed to Monroe merchants.

MASKED MAN ROBS MAIL CAR.

He Holds Up Two Clerks and Escapes with Registered Letters.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 24.—A masked white man late to-night robbed the mail car of Atlantic Coast Line Train No. 55 between Royster and this city, took the registered letters, stopped the train and jumped off just before the train reached the city limits.

The value of the registered mail stolen is not known, but the letters are said to contain several thousand dollars. There is no clue to the identity of the robber.

The train, westbound from Wilmington, reached the Royster blockhouse two miles from Columbia at 11:20. It stopped there a moment, then proceeded toward the city. The robber is supposed to have boarded the train at Royster.

Within a few moments after the train started he made his appearance in the mail car, held up the two mail clerks at the point of a pistol, and took the registered letters. He then pulled the bell cord and leaped off as the train stopped. No attempt was made to pursue in the darkness and the train continued on its way to this city.

RATES IN NORTHWEST ARE CUT 20 PER CENT.

Northern Pacific Loses Most Heavily by New Order of Commerce Commission.

STRONG PROTEST BY ROADS

Losses Estimated at $489,000 by Defendants—Commission Says Their Revenue Is $71,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—In an important decision the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day ordered a confirmation of its previous order heavily reducing class rates from Seattle and Tacoma, in Washington, and Portland, Ore., to points in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Montana. The Northern Pacific is the road that loses most heavily by the order, though the Great Northern, the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, the Oregon Short Line, the Oregon, Washington & Idaho and the Union Pacific were all defendants in the case.

A striking feature of the decision is the fixing of the class rates on a flat mileage basis for the routes indicated. This is a radical departure. Most railroad freight rates are based on a rate to a distributing centre, with variants for points around that centre. In the supplemental report by Commissioner McChord, made public to-day, with the commission's order, it is stated that the commission is not of the opinion that the mileage alone should be the controlling factor in rates, but in the case at issue a more satisfactory adjustment will result from the mileage basis than from the establishment of particular rates to representative destinations.

The freight affected by the commission's order is divided into ten classes, running from 1 to 5 and from A to E. The rates in the table prepared by the commission vary from 10 cents a 100 pounds for 100 miles or less for Class E, to $1.64 a 100 pounds for Class 1 for distances between 600 and 700 miles. The table setting forth the commission's order on a basis of 100 pounds, the rates being set forth in cents, is as follows:

	CLASS. 1. cts.	 2. cts.	 3. cts.	 4. cts.	 5. cts.
Distance of 100 miles or less	50	43	35	30	25
Distances in excess of 100 miles, but not greater than 200 miles	72	61	50	43	36
Distances in excess of 200 miles, but not greater than 300 miles	91	77	64	55	46
Distances in excess of 300 miles, but not greater than 400 miles	110	94	77	66	55
Distances in excess of 400 miles, but not greater than 500 miles	129	110	90	77	65
Distances in excess of 500 miles, but not greater than 600 miles	147	125	103	88	74
Distances in excess of 600 miles, but not greater than 700 miles	164	139	115	98	82

	CLASS. A cts.	 B cts.	 C cts.	 D cts.	 E cts.
Distances of 100 miles or less	25	20	15	13	10
Distances in excess of 100 miles, but not greater than 200 miles	36	29	22	18	14
Distances in excess of 200 miles, but not greater than 300 miles	46	36	27	23	18
Distances in excess of 300 miles, but not greater than 400 miles	55	44	33	28	22
Distances in excess of 400 miles, but not greater than 500 miles	65	52	39	32	26
Distances in excess of 500 miles, but not greater than 600 miles	74	59	44	37	29
Distances in excess of 600 miles, but not greater than 700 miles	82	66	49	41	33

When the commission issued its first order the roads made vigorous protest on the ground that their revenues would be too heavily reduced. They prepared for the commission statistics setting forth their loss of revenue should the rates at issue be cut 20 per cent. These losses were divided into three heads—the actual loss on the classes affected, the losses due to the reductions in classes made by combination with the affected rates and the losses from reductions made by the roads in their effort to restore harmony to their schedules.

On this basis the estimate of the principal roads was that their revenue in one year under the present rates in the area in question was $3,056,000. Their direct losses for the same period were estimated at $126,000. Their losses on combination rates $49,000, and their losses owing to relative readjustments $312,000, or a total loss of $489,000, or 16 per cent.

The commission then cites figures showing the operating revenues of the road to have been $174,500,000; their operating expenses $103,000,000, and their net operating revenue $71,000,000.

The report of Commissioner McChord then proceeds:

"It will thus be seen that by far the most important reductions in revenue, which the defendants estimate will result from an order of the nature proposed in the opinion, will be the indirect losses due to relative adjustments of other rates that would require correction in order to preserve their proper relation to the rates directly reduced.

"It will be obseved that the total loss estimated by the carriers, even including the large amount said to be due to relative adjustments, amounts to less than 1 per cent. of their net operating revenue. The financial condition of these defendants appears to be such that the commission need not hesitate to establish the rates which it has found to be reasonable."

LOSS IN DUPLICATE TRAINS.

President Delano of Wabash Would Reduce Service for Economy.

TOLEDO, Nov. 24.—An extension of the inter-State commerce law so that railroads by mutual agreement might rearrange train schedules to prevent "duplication of service" was recommended by F. A. Delano, President of the Wabash Railroad, in an address before the Toledo Transportation Club to-night.

"The most promising source of economy is in reduced train service, that means better loading of trains, both passenger and freight," said Mr. Delano.

"Some of the most notable instances of economic waste in train service are found between our large cities. Thus between Chicago and St. Louis four trunk lines operate four trains each way on practically identical schedules. It is safe to say that ten or twelve trains, at the most, would accommodate the passengers as well, and if by reason of mutual understanding and approval by the Inter-State Commerce Commission these trains were run at different hours in the day, instead of being run on identical schedules by each road, the public would be really benefited.

"Very similar conditions exist between Chicago and St. Paul, where seven roads operate from two to three trains a day on identical schedules.

"Some of my hearers might say: 'Why do not the railroads get together and adjust these matters?' An agreement is not only not binding on the parties, but is—we are told—in contravention of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"In freight schedules, in the same way, some absurd conditions exist. Between New York and Chicago five routes maintain a sixty-hour schedule, although it is generally conceded by shippers that a schedule twelve, or even twenty-four, hours slower would answer all requirements of most important freight, if made with regularity."

ROADS ORDER 38,300 CARS.

Inquiries Indicate That Year's Total Will Be Nearly 100,000.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 24.—Orders for cars placed within the last three weeks total more than half the amount ordered in the first ten months of this year. This statement is made by B. E. V. Luty in his weekly letter, to be published to-morrow morning.

The orders during the last week are reported as follows: Two thousand for the Grand Trunk, 4,000 box and 1,000 all-steel gondolas for the New York Central, and 100 all-steel gondolas for the Texas and Pacific Coal Company. This brings the total for the present movement to 38,300.

It is rumored that the Southern Railway has increased its recent orders for 2,450 cars by 350, making a total of 2,800 cars, and that the New York Central has ordered 5,000 additional, but these rumors cannot be officially confirmed. The current inquiry is basis for the expectation that the present buying movement will reach a total of 75,000 or 100,000 cars before the end of the year. The Pennsylvania system has been figuring for some time, and current estimates are that its buying will total between 15,000 and 20,000 cars.

The Norfolk & Western and the Louisville & Nashville are also actively figuring on placing car orders.

The effect of this car-buying movement has already been felt in the steel mills in the Pittsburgh district, as the Carnegie Company's plate mills were this week running to full capacity, as compared with an average of 65 per cent. during September and October.

MAY BE ROCK ISLAND STRIKE.

Negotiations End and 8,000 Shopmen, Their Demands Refused, May Go Out.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Negotiations between a committee of international union officials and President H. V. Mudge and Second Vice President F. O. Melcher of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, were concluded to-day without a settlement of the differences which may result in the calling of a strike among the 8,000 shopmen employed by the railroad.

A committee composed of J. W. Kline, President of the International Blacksmiths and Helpers' Union; Frank Paquin, Vice President of the International Carmen's Union; William Re[illegible]ing, Vice President of the International Sheet Metal Workers' Union; A. F. Heinzman, Vice President of the International Boilermakers' Union, and J. D. Buckalew, Vice President of the International Machinists and Helpers' Union, presented their grievances to Mr. Melcher, and later appealed to President Mudge.

These officers refused to accede to the demands of the unions. Both approved the decision of their subordinates, who had previously decided that the demands of the shopmen for an increase in wages of 2 cents an hour and changed conditions of employment could not be granted. It is said that no further conferences will be held between the labor representatives and the railroad officials and that a strike may be called at any time. Kline said:

"We have nothing to give out at present in regard to the dispute between the shopmen and the Rock Island Road. We know the position of the railroad and we will confer with the officers of the local unions before action is taken."

"Every demand made by the shopmen involves an increase in our expenses, and we cannot agree to any of them in view of general business conditions," said Mr. Melcher.

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 24.—Judge Burns of the United States District Court to-day took charge of the Harriman Line strike situation in Houston when he ordered the discharge of all pickets employed by the railroad and swore in eight special men who were instructed to act as guards.

BRUCE HAD TO WED AGAIN.

Pastor's Son Got No License in Home Town, So First Ceremony Was Illegal.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—The police of Lynn have notified Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Bruce, who were enjoying their honeymoon at 16 Shepard Street, that their marriage was not legal and that they would have to be remarried at once. It was all because they got a marriage license in Lowell, where they were married Tuesday by the Rev. F. W. Cummings, a Baptist minister, and had not taken out a license in Lynn, where both live.

When the Lowell certificate was returned to City Clerk Attwill of Lynn it was found that no Lynn certificate had been issued. The law states that all parties in marriage in this State must take out a license in the city or town in which they live.

The bride was Ethel M. Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Young of 62 Hamilton Avenue, Lynn. Mr. Bruce is a son of the Rev. W. J. Bruce, pastor of the First Baptist Church of New York City. He is employed by the General Electric Company in Lynn.

The girl's parents did not know of the marriage until they returned from Lowell. Her parents forgave her, and everything was going on happily until the couple were notified to-day that their marriage was illegal.

HER THREE HUSBANDS SLAIN.

Mrs. Quinn to be Tried for the Murder of the Third.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Jane Quinn, whose husband was found dead in his bed recently, was charged with his murder in an indictment returned by the Grand Jury to-day.

When John Quinn was found dead Nov. 2, Mrs. Quinn declared he had been shot by a burglar. Police investigation showed that Warren Thorpe, the woman's first husband, had been found shot to death in Jackson, Mich., in 1903, under similar circumstances. Another husband, Charles McDonald, had died suddenly.

ception, since there appears in the newspapers published this morning a statement affecting my relations to a colleague on the committee. I feel it is due Mr. Littleton and myself that the simple truth touching this matter should be briefly told.

"There is no breach of any kind, in so far as I am advised, between Mr. Littleton and myself. Our relations have always been cordial, and I have for his talents the most profound respect and feel grateful to him for his eminent services upon this committee. It was never my purpose to ask or to seek his resignation.

"It is probably true that there is a radical difference of opinion between Mr. Littleton and myself touching the sufficiency of the Sherman Anti-Trust act and as to the future conduct of this committee, the distinguished gentleman from New York has the same right to his opinion as the Chairman of the committee, and I am quite sure that no difference of opinion will affect our cordial relations or lessen the confidence of either in the other as an honest and faithful representative of his constituents.

"In the executive session referred to the discussion between Mr. Littleton and myself could not be characterized as a debate. It was a conference, at the conclusion of which he and I and the other members of the committee were all of the same opinion as to the wisdom of deferring final decisions upon the questions raised by the attorneys of the United States Steel Corporation until the meeting of the full committee.

"While there may be differences of opinion between us, they have never in any way affected our cordial relations during the progress of this inquiry, nor have I the slightest apprehension that they will precipitate an acrimonious discussion on the floor of the House of Representatives."

THREE MORE JURORS FOR M'NAMARA TRIAL

State Accepts All, but Defense Challenges Four of Seven Passed for Cause.

EIGHT NOW IN THE JURY BOX

McNamara's Books Show Large Sums Charged to "Organization"—Thought to be Dynamite Fund.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—Three jurors were added to the McNamara jury to-day, making eight in all. Four were excused by the defense, and none by the State, on peremptory challenges. The new jurors are F. A. Brode, G. S. Bisbee, and J. H. Coke.

After the challenges were announced Brode was summoned by Judge Bordwell into his chambers. When Brode emerged he walked to his chair, and with Bisbee and Coke was sworn. Then he buried his face in his hands a minute, and sat limp and dejected through the session.

Brode's retention was said to have been a great shock to him. His answers were unfavorable to the defense, and only his attractive personality averted a peremptory challenge. The box was at once filled with new veniremen.

The weeding-out process began soon after court opened. It was the third time in the trial that twelve qualified men sat in the box. Five of these were sworn jurors and the other seven had been accepted temporarily, and it was against some of these that peremptory challenges were levied.

McNamara sat with his chair tilted against the wall behind the Deputy Clerk's desk and watched the process without a change of feature. The prosecutor announced he was satisfied with the twelve, but McNamara's counsel was not, and he challenged F. A. McBurney, A. J. Stevens, S. P. Olcott, and J. H. Marshall, all of whom were excused at once.

The defense decided not to challenge F. A. Brode, despite his belief that The Times building was destroyed by dynamite. His personal acquaintance with the family of one of the victims of the disaster also weighed against him, but the attorneys came to the conclusion that he would give a fair trial.

The day's work made a heavy inroad on the defense's supply of peremptory challenges. At the opening of the court they had only eleven left of their original twenty, and these were cut until they had only seven, a little better than the State, which hss only five left out of ten.

THINK DYNAMITE FUND FOUND.

McNamara Drew Large Sums Monthly Without Accounting, Books Show.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 24.—The discovery was made to-day that John J. McNamara, as Secretary-Treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, set aside $500 to $1,000 each month for "Organization," and for this money made no accounting on the books.

The books of the organization now in the hands of the Federal authorities show that the money was drawn each month, but not for what it was spent or that any of it ever was spent. It is believed that this money was expended in the purchase of dynamite and in salaries to James McNamara and Ortie McManigal. In the reports for 1910 prepared by McNamara under the list of expenditures is this item:

"July 25—Set aside for organizing purposes by order of Executive Board, $1,000."

Aug. 30, 1910, under the list of expenditures shows another $1,000 designated in the same manner. Nov. 29 shows $100, Dec. 29 $500, Jan. 16 $500. Other expenditures, listed merely as "set aside for organizing purposes by order of the Executive Board," are Feb. 18, 1911, $500; March 20, $500; April 11, $1,000.

That the fund was appropriated in a general resolution is inferred from the fact that the Executive Board was not in session each month, but met only two or three times a year. In the cases of all other expenditures the person to whom the money was paid and the amount is set out in detail in McNamara's monthly report sheets.

It has been noted that after the arrest of McNamara the lump sums do not appear among the expenditures. Acting Secretary Hockin says his system of bookkeeping may be different from that of McNamara's, but not having McNamara's books he cannot say.

SPENCER FOUND GUILTY.

Jury Convicts Him of First Degree Murder for Shooting Miss Blackstone.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 25, 3:15 A. M.—Bertram G. Spencer was this morning found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing Martha B. Blackstone, a school teacher. The penalty is death in the electric chair.

It was a few minutes before 10 o'clock It was a few minutes before 10 o'clock to-night when the twelve men filed from the jury box to take up the consideration of the evidence and prepare their verdict.

Judge Crosby's charge occupied an hour and thirty-five minutes. In it he considered the subject of insanity, saying that the question was one of establishing the sanity or insanity of the man at the time the deed was committed.

"I want you as jurors to use your own good common sense," said Judge Crosby. The testimony of the alienists, he said, should be considered, but the jurors should not be too strongly impressed by the opinion of these experts.

Attorney Stapleton addressed the jury for two hours in behalf of Spencer this afternoon. Mr. Stapleton argued that the defendant is insane and was insane at the time of killing Miss Blackstone. He made a severe attack on Dr. Alfred Elliott of the Bridgewater Asylum, who, he said, for eight months reported Spencer insane, and then suddenly pronounced him sane.

Attorney General Swift's argument was devoted almost entirely to an endeavor to discredit the contention of the defense that Spencer was legally irresponsible at the time he killed Miss Blackstone. While eight of the nine alienists who testified said Spencer was mentally defective, only one declared he was really insane, the Attorney General said. The testimony of one of the alienists, Dr. Courtney, should be disregarded by the jurors in their consideration of the case, he contended, because the alienist had prepared the questions which Attorney Stapleton, for the defense, had submitted to him on the stand.

In scouting the insanity plea, Mr. Swift declared that in nearly every instance Spencer's burglaries had been marked by precautions to protect himself from the police, and by careful planning to accomplish his purpose.

CLEARS OLIVER LIPPINCOTT.

Comstock's Charge of Abduction Falls Flat Before Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury handed to Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday a memorandum completely exonerating Oliver Lippincott, a photographer, having offices in the Singer Building, of all blame in connection with the charge of abduction made against him by Anthony Comstock on Nov. 6.

Lippincott was charged with abducting eighteen-year-old Emma Jahelka, a stenographer, who formerly worked for him. He was arrested in the Astor House on Nov. 6 in company with the young woman and arraigned before Magistrate Herrman in the Tombs Court. When Lippincott was held in $5,000 bail for further examination his counsel, Mirabeau L. Towns, declared that he would make Mr. Comstock look like "a comic exhibit in a Sunday supplement."

The hearing was to go on before Magistrate McQuade yesterday, but the Magistrate discharged the defendant. Mr. Comstock declared that it was a miscarriage of justice. He offered some photographs to the Grand Jury, which they refused to look at.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY BALL.

St. George's Congregation Dance at the 71st Regiment Armory.

The ceremonies attending the 100th anniversary of St. George's Parish were closed last night by a reception in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, at Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue. Solemnity gave place to gayety, the sonorous breathing of an organ to the lively music of dancing tunes, and dim lights and memorial tablets to a brilliant white light and profuse decorations in the National colors.

Five thousand invitations were sent out, and each invitation was for two. At 10 o'clock the huge floor of the armory was crowded with dancers, and the 2,400 chairs in the balconies were rapidly filling. In the reviewing stand sat the Vestrymen, with J. Pierpont Morgan, R. Fulton Cutting, James S. Ward, and Seth Low conspicuous among them. Bishop Greer, Dean Grosvenor, of the cathedral, and the Rev. Hugh Birckhead, D. D., rector of St. George's Church, were present.

28 hours of his time to the department, "and the records of the garage show that his machine was in use 107 hours, or eleven days overtime."

Of the horses and buggies housed in various stables, the report says that no record of their arrival or departure was found, but that inquiries made from the owners of the stables and the drivers "it would appear as though the conveyances maintained for the use of Dr. Biggs and Russell Raynor are used by them for transportation between their homes and the office of the department."

From inquiries and observation I believe that two automobiles at the Fifty-fifth Street office will answer every requirement from departmental work in the offices of that office. The branch offices maintained in the several boroughs should have to be provided with a conveyance, but in every case I am satisfied that the conveyances maintained for the use of the different heads with offices at Fifty-fifth Street, with the exception of the horse conveyance used by Dr. Sprague of Richmond.

At hearings held on this matter it was shown that this rig is used by Dr. Sprague in his private medical practice. Later inquiries at the Richmond Borough office brought out the information that this abuse has been discontinued to any extent.

BEATTIE CONFESSED; DIED LIKE A STOIC

Statement in Which He Admitted Killing His Wife Held Back Until After the Execution.

WAITED UNTIL HOPE WAS GONE

Execution Accomplished Without a Hitch and Death Is Declared to Have Been Instant.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 24.—Four hours after Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., paid in the electric chair this morning the penalty for the murder of his young wife the fact that he had made a confession was made public. The announcement was received throughout the city with relief, for so unswerving had the condemned man been in his denials and in his iron nerve that many had been far from convinced that he was guilty.

When the Rev. Benjamin Dennis, one of the ministers who had labored with Beattie to repent, gave out the dead man's statement about noon. He acknowledged that Beattie had first admitted his guilt two weeks ago, on Nov. 9, the day after he entered the death chamber and before the unavailing appeal for commutation was made to Gov. Mann. It was not until yesterday that he would allow the confession to be written for his signature.

Then all hope that the Governor would interfere was gone. Here is Beattie's statement:

> I, Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., desirous of standing right before God and man, do on this, the 23d day of November, 1911, confess my guilt of the crime charged against me. Much that was published concerning the details was not true, but the awful fact, without the harrowing circumstances, remains. For this action I am truly sorry, and believing that I am at peace with God, and am soon to pass into His presence, this statement is made.

Beattie's confession was followed by this statement of the attending ministers:

> This statement was signed in the presence of the two attending ministers and is the only statement that can and will be made public by them. Mr. Beattie desired to thank the many friends for kind letters and expressions of interest and the public for whatever sympathy was felt or expressed.

Another reason for the delay of the confession is the fact that Beattie desired to spare his father the blow of admitting guilt after his many protestations of innocence to his aged parent. There was a fight between filial devotion and a desire not to go to his death with a lie on his lips. He was urged to confess by his spiritual advisers and at last broke down.

There is also another angle from which the condemned man's marvelous stoicism can be viewed, a study for a psychologist. He read the newspapers avidly. Every reference to his iron nerve and to the fact that he was going to the chair without acknowledging his crime in the hope of saving his aged father further sorrow, according to those who were with him to the end, seemed to afford him supreme satisfaction. Apparently he gloated over the notoriety his crime had brought him.

Even after his confession he maintained his air of bravado. What had since Nov. 9 been considered as courage now is recognized rather as cynicism. His remarkable nerve now seems to have had its basis and support in the knowledge that he was being applauded as a man of Spartan courage and inflexible will.

The shock that killed Beattie was given at exactly 7:19 o'clock this morning. Three times the current was turned on, and at 7:23 it was shut off. Physicians announced that death had been instantaneous.

Hears Warrant Read.

Beattie passed a fairly peaceful night, although his sleep was broken. When he arose this morning he dressed with his usual care and ate sparingly. He did not appear either nervous or apprehensive, although he was incessantly under the eyes of his guards, who had redoubled their vigilance in the final moments.

During the reading of the death warrant he maintained his composure. He stood without a tremor.

As the Superintendent finished he swayed, but so imperceptibly that he might have been shifting his weight from one foot to the other. When the Deputy Wardens fell in on either side of him he bowed his head a moment.

"I am ready, gentlemen," he said, simply, and the death march was begun.

In a torrential downpour of rain the twelve witnesses to the execution toiled through the murky dawn up the hill from which the penitentiary looks down upon the city. They were quickly marshaled and conducted single file through gates of steel bars to the chamber where Beattie was to die. There was no conversation.

Within the chamber all was in readiness. The chair, a solid structure of oak, would ordinarily have appeared like the chairs seen in an average library in a private home. In the sombre, bare chamber, however, it was sinister. Straps dangled from its arms and back.

The witnesses were seated, six abreast, in an angle of the room. They shuffled their feet uneasily, and when one leaned forward to speak to another his action was received with frowns. Supt. Woods, with two Deputy Wardens, addressed the witnesses, going through some small formalities demanded by the law. Then, with his two men trooping behind, he passed out into the building where Beatties awaited the summons in his cell adjoining.

In the death chamber the voice of the Warden could be plainly heard reading to Beattie the final summons. The Warden's voice droned on, it seemed to the witnesses interminably. In reality, the compliance with the law occupied only a brief moment. Then, with Beattie between them, the Deputy Wardens began their progress toward the chair, only a few feet away.

Last Scene Was Soon Over.

When the procession, followed by Supt. Woods, started, a signal was given which plunged the death chamber into blackness save for a single light immediately over the chair. This was so hooded that it outlined the chair in a circle of blazing radiance, so intense that the rest of the room seemed in utter darkness. The witnesses could hardly see each other. The prisoner saw nothing but the chair.

There was no delay in preparing for the end. Beattie took his place, the prison surgeon and the electricians adjusted the straps, and a half dozen clamps were quickly thrown into place and snapped. The cap, resembling a leather football head-harness, was adjusted, and the men stepped back.

In one corner of the chamber a black cable drooped. It was the heavy main wire leading from the dynamos of the city lighting plant, a half mile away, for the prison authorities do not depend on their own dynamos for the fatal shock.

Over this cable came 2,200 volts of electricity. When the executioner turned on the full voltage and the body responded to the shock the witnesses gasped. There was no warning.

For a full minute the current raced through the condemned man. For 5 seconds it was kept at its maximum power and then was diminished slowly during about 12 seconds. When the needle on the indicator pointed to 200 volts it remained stationary there 8 seconds, and then slowly through another 12 seconds moved around again to maximum, where it remained vibratory for 8 seconds; back to the maximum twice again it took its course, until, at the expiration of a full minute, the current was shut off.

Beattie's death was instantaneous, according to the prison surgeon. The utmost care had been taken in the preparation of the electrodes and in seeing that the straps and clamps were in proper place and prepared to withstand any strain. Not at any time was there a slip.

The surgeon listened at Beattie's heart with his stethoscope, stepped back, and said:

"He is dead."

Body to Lie by His Wife's.

The witnesses filed out. One or two were ghastly pale as they stepped into the early morning light. Carriages were waiting for them, and they were driven rapidly away.

The body of Beattie was removed from the chair and taken to the mortuary room adjoining. Here it was laid to await the coming of the Coroner, who arrived shortly afterward. The Rev. Dr. Fix remained as the sole watcher.

All preparations had been made for the removal of the body. The elder Beattie last night sent to the undertaker the brown suit which his son had worn in court when the jury declared his guilt. In this the body was clad for burial.

Acting on a written request of Douglas Beattie, Beattie's brother, the Council committee in charge of public cemeteries, granted a permit to-night for the burial of Beattie's body in Maury Cemetery, South Richmond. He will be buried by the side of his wife.

The city law provides that a man convicted of murder cannot be buried in a public cemetery without the consent of the Governing Committee. Formal application for a permit had to be made in writing, and this was sent by Douglas Beattie to a member of the committee a few hours after the body of his brother was removed from the death chamber. None of the family went to the penitentiary to-day.

The Richmond afternoon papers appeared on the street soon after the execution with full details, and it became evident that the statute forbidding the publication of the details of an execution was to be entirely disregarded, or, at least, badly stretched, throughout the State.

As a part of the law which substituted the electric chair for the noose, the Virginia Legislature wrote this paragraph into the statute:

> No newspaper or person shall print or publish the details of the execution of criminals under this act. Only the fact that the criminal was executed shall be printed or published.

The Legislature, however, failed to provide a penalty for a violation of the section. Heretofore the law has been complied with out of respect to State authority.

Beattie's Crime.

The crime for which Beattie was executed was one of the most sensational in the criminal annals of Virginia. Interest in the murder was country-wide, owing to its unusual features and the swift movement of justice.

On the night of July 18 last Beattie drove his automobile into Richmond, carrying with him the body of his wife, which had a gaping shotgun wound in the head. He declared that a tall, bearded man had accosted him on the Midlothian Turnpike, five miles from Richmond, and when he had requested the man to make room for him in the road the stranger, without warning, had fired the shot which killed Mrs. Beattie.

He added that he had grappled with the man, but was overpowered, and that the murderer had fled, leaving the gun behind. This story of the crime was maintained by Beattie until he made his confession yesterday.

For a brief time Beattie's story was believed, but within a day or two suspicion began to point to him and he was kept under the closest surveillance. Bloodhounds, taken to the scene of the crime, refused to leave the place, circling around the bloodspot on the road.

Beattie, it eventually transpired, had thrown the shotgun into the tonneau of his automobile after the shooting, but in passing over some railroad tracks not far from the scene it had been jolted out and was picked up later by a colored woman. This gun, which Beattie said had belonged to the mysterious highwayman, proved the means of sending the young man to the electric chair.

At the Coroner's inquest the weapon was identified by Paul Beattie, a second cousin of young Henry, as a weapon he had purchased for Henry with money furnished by the latter. Beattie was arrested immediately after the inquest. This was on July 21, and on Aug. 19, one month and a day after the murder, the trial was begun before Judge Walter A. Watson in the picturesque little Chesterfield County Court House, sixteen miles from here.

The jury was made up almost entirely of farmers, and on this fact Beattie based his assertion that he had been convicted, not for the murder of his wife, but because of the facts brought out about Beulah Binford. He insisted that a jury composed of city men would have freed him. Beattie was defended by H. M. Smith, Jr., and Hill Carter. The prosecution was conducted by L. O. Wendenburg and L. M. Gregory.

The trial moved swiftly, though many witnesses testified, and on Sept. 8, after fifty-eight minutes of consideration and prayer, the jury, in chorus, instead of through its foreman, declared Beattie to be guilty of the murder of his wife. Motion for a new trial was denied, and Nov. 24 was set as the day for the execution.

On Nov. 18 the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals refused to grant an appeal on a writ of error, and two days later Gov. Mann, who had been appealed to for commutation or reprieve, issued a statement, declaring that the interests of the people of Virginia demanded that Beattie should die in the electric chair.

SLAIN WIFE'S FAMILY NOTIFIED.

R. V. Owen Says He Is Glad That Beattie Confessed.

DOVER, Del., Nov. 24.—The execution to-day of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., found the Owen family going about their usual routine as though no tragedy had ever entered their quiet lives.

"I thank you for the news," said R. V. Owen, the father of Beattie's murdered wife. Mr. Owen, who is the manager of a large plant in this city, was at his work when the news that the law had taken his son-in-law's life was brought to him. "I would prefer not to talk about it."

Mr. Owen was then told that Beattie had confessed and had asked forgiveness.

"Is that so?" he replied. "I am glad he made a clean breast of it. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence, and this fact left a doubt in the minds of some people. His confession satisfies our minds and clears up the case, and to that extent I feel a sense of relief."

Mr. Owen explained that since the murder of his daughter none of the members of the family has had anything to say about the affair and would continue to maintain a dignified silence. "We have not and will not discuss the affair outside the family circle," he said.

But he would talk about the baby, the six-months-old son, now an orphan.

"My wife," he said, "was naturally much wrought up after the death of our daughter, and our doctor told us it would be better for her to care for the child and relieve her mind. We brought the baby to Dover and he is with us now. We will keep him and raise him."

Mr. Owen said that the infant has not yet been given a name.

"We call him 'Baby,'" he said. "The question of naming him has not been discussed by the family. You see we have been in this tangle for the last few months, and no one has talked about the baby's name. The child will be given the loving care of its grandmother. She is concerned that some day the child may be told of the tragic fate of its parents, but we cannot help that. We must do the best we can for the little one."

The child is well and receives much attention from the members of the family and intimate friends of the Owens.

BEULAH BINFORD IN BRONX.

Girl Leading a Quiet Life—Will Undergo an Operation.

The news of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr.'s, confession and execution reached New York at a time when Beulah Binford, the girl who figured so prominently in his trial, was in seclusion provided for her in preparation for an operation for appendicitis, which is to be performed next Tuesday.

According to Isidor Bernstein, manager of a motion-picture film company, who made a place for the girl in his household in the Bronx, it seemed best to take her away where she could not be besieged with questions and references to the Beattie case.

Mr. Bernstein said that the girl, under another name than that which became a notorious tag last Summer, is trying her best to lead a quiet, inconspicuous existence, and that he and his wife propose to help her in the shelter of the first home she has ever known.

DOG TAX UPHELD ON APPEAL.

State May Delegate Its Authority to the S. P. C. A., Says Appellate Court.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down yesterday a decision upholding for the first time the right of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to collect a $2 license fee from dog owners. This privilege has been the subject of many conflicting decisions in the lower courts in the last few years.

In dismissing the appeal of Henry E. Westbay of 219 West Seventy-first Street from an order of Supreme Court Justice Lehman, denying him a writ of habeas corpus, the Appellate Division holds that the society has the right to collect the fee and that the owner of an unlicensed dog may be arrested and fined for disorderly conduct. Westbay was arrested in July last on a Magistrate's warrant by Special Policeman Michael Delaney, an employe of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

ASTOR APPRAISAL APPROVED

But Surrogate Feels That the State's Interests Were Neglected.

Surrogate Cohalan signed yesterday an order assessing the State transfer tax on the estate of Mrs. Caroline Webster Astor, on the report of James Yereance, a former State Transfer Tax Appraiser, who submitted his second report on Mrs. Astor's estate just before resigning. His first report, appraising the estate at $1,631,236, was rejected in an emphatic opinion by Surrogate Cohalan that the appraisal was too low. In his opinion filed yesterday, approving the second report, which increased it only to $1,726,187, Surrogate Cohalan said:

"I sign the order assessing the tax herein with great reluctance, feeling after reading the report and the supplemental report of the Transfer Tax Appraiser and the evidence taken herein that the interests of the State of New York in this proceeding have been grossly neglected by the State Controller [Williams] and by the Transfer Tax Appraiser."

$500 TO CARE FOR A DOG.

Provided in Note Given by Mrs. Bell on Which Her Estate Is Sued.

Helen Love Pultz of 522 West 112th Street has begun suit in the Supreme Court to collect on a note of $1,500 made by Evelyn M. Bell, who died May 15. She says that $1,000 was to be given her as a token of regard and $500 was to go for the care of Mrs. Bell's dog, Shirley, which was given to Miss Pultz.

In opposing the claim, Effie V. Beyer and John P. Murray, executors of Mrs. Bell's estate, declare that prior to her death Mrs. Bell was so addicted to whisky and morphine that she was not responsible for her acts and was not competent to make a note. The executors also charge that Miss Pultz used undue influence and misrepresentations to obtain the note.

FAKE NAVY OFFICER DUPED SOCIETY FOLK

Posed as Lieutenant in Philadelphia Recruiting Office, but Was Only in the Naval Reserves.

NOW A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

Accused of Embezzling Funds Collected in Real Estate Business—Was Known as a "Spender."

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 24.—Walter B. Drebelbis, who managed to fool Philadelphia for two years, is a fugitive from justice. A warrant charges him with embezzling funds collected in the real estate business.

For the last two years Drebelbis has been masquerading as a lieutenant in the United States Navy. He was wined and dined by society. He always was addressed as "Lieutenant," and, while he never, so far as is known, made the direct statement, he gave the impression that he was connected with the recruiting station here. After it was known to-day that he had fled it was discovered that Drebelbis was a Lieutenant, but of the Pennsylvania Naval Reserve, not in the United States Navy.

Philadelphia society folk recalled that whenever any local function called for the entertainment of real navy or army officers Drebelbis suddenly disapppeared.

Drebelbis was a great favorite with the men, his favorite diversion being to form little parties to see the sights of Philadelphia. When his party entered a café Drebelbis invariably would drag from his pocket a great roll of bills, and with great gusto would announce:

"There, drink that up. There's lots more where that came from."

After following this method for more than a year it was not necessary for Drebelbis to produce the money. All he had to do was to say to the proprietor: "Give the boys anything they want and charge it all to me."

It now develops that Drebelbis, besides being a Naval Reserve Lieutenant, was a real estate dealer and from the receipts of the insurance business produced his money. Drebelbis conducted his real estate business at 286 North Sixth Street, where he succeeded John Leskie, for whom he worked for eighteen years. Two years ago Leskie died and his widow left Drebelbis in charge, it being agreed that the widow should draw $2,000 a year from the receipts of the business. According to Mrs. Leskie, the only money she ever received from the business was a note.

When Leskie died rents of nearly 1,000 properties were paid at the real estate office. Since then many property holders have taken their properties from Drebelbis, and many more charge that they have not received the rents collected. An expert has already discovered a shortage of $4,000.

Drebelbis disappeared Nov. 16. He left behind him a wife and four children, the youngest of whom is ten months and the eldest 16 years. Since his disappearance, Mrs. Drebelbis has been prostrated, fearing that something may have happened to her husband.

Besides being a member of the Naval Reserves, Drebelbis is widely known in athletic circles, being connected with the American Athletic Association as official timer and scorer. He also is a member of the Timers and Scorers' Club of the Quaker City Motor Club, which makes it difficult to see how he lived his Jekyl and Hyde life. He acted as scorer in the last two Fairmount Park races.

Tappe Assets $4,300; Owes $30,000.

The hearing in the bankruptcy case of Herman P. Tappe, a milliner, who was in doubt whether J. P. Morgan loaned or gave him $5,000, was resumed before Peter B. Olney, the referee, yesterday, and the report of the receiver was accepted. Mr. Morgan did not appear. Mr. Morgan, it was said, would render a statement in the near future explaining the $5,000. The receiver is still collecting money due Tappe from certain customers. About $4,300 assets are on hand against $30,000 liabilities. About $2,000 more is expected to be collected.

POLITICS AT WELLESLEY.

Miss Platten Writes in College News About Electioneering Methods.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—Political graft has been discovered in undergraduate circles at Wellesley College when it comes to the selection of members for the various fraternities and to the annual election of the class officers, according to Miss Gladys I. O. Platten of New York City, a member of the class of 1911, in a communication published in this week's College News.

"A deep disgrace to Wellesley," is the term applied to the situation by Miss Platten, who, writing further, says:

"Owing to the present system of making girls eligible for society membership, who have been 'public benefactors,' misuse and abuse of the words 'public service' have grown up. There is political graft going on in Wellesley politics to-day. Girls are put up for class and other offices for the express purpose of making them eligible; girls who are in authority place on their committees other girls who are ofttimes incapable, merely so that they will be considered 'public spirited.'

"I could not believe that any such conditions could exist. Of course, there is always a certain amount of electioneering going on at class and other big elections, but the wholesale canvassing for votes that is prevalent at present is disgusting. It is not honorable, it is fostering a most undemocratic spirit, which, I believe, is not the aim of Wellesley College, and it is taking away from many girls, capable and efficient, the chance to 'make good' merely because they already are eligible or their friends do not care whether they are or not."

SEIZE WOMAN'S JEWELS.

Customs Men Get $1,000 Worth, Which Mrs. Hassin Tried to Smuggle.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—Jewelry valued at $1,000 was seized to-day when Mrs. Eva Hassin, 957 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., a second-class passenger on board the Ivernia, arrived from Liverpool. The woman had told Customs Inspector Pratt she had nothing dutiable.

Pratt made a minute search of her baggage, and in a small handbag which she carried found a large quantity of jewelry, consisting of diamond rings, scarfpins, tie clasps, bracelets, and two gold mesh bags.

After the discovery Pratt turned the woman over to the matron, Mrs. Powers, who searched her clothing and found $300 in bills sewed in it, but nothing dutiable. The woman was not arrested.

Mrs. Hassin made no explanation of her possession of the jewelry other than to say that it was given to her by a brother in Liverpool.

MRS. HUHN ILL IN PROVIDENCE

Leaves Hospital, Where She Was Treated for a Nervous Breakdown.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Alyce Huhn, whose husband, George A. Huhn, a banker of Philadelphia, advertised that they had separated and that he would not be responsible for her debts, is living in this city in Blackstone Boulevard. Until a few days ago she had been for several weeks in Butler Hospital in a nervous collapse caused by the incidents connected with the breaking up of her home.

The separation agreement was signed in this city, Mrs. Huhn being represented by Abbot Phillips. He refused to talk about the case, but admitted Mrs. Huhn was in this city, and that there had been a legal separation. Stories from Philadelphia that there had been a tragedy in the Huhn family, Mr. Phillips denied absolutely.

After her affairs with Mr. Huhn have been settled, it is said Mrs. Huhn will go to New York and possibly to Europe. Mr. Phillips would not confirm the report that Mrs. Hurn received $3,000,000.

A NORTHERN BANK DIVIDEND.

10% More Out of Assets—15% for Knickerbocker Savings Creditors.

The State Banking Department announced last night that a second dividend will be paid to depositors and creditors of the former Northern Bank on Monday next. The dividend will cover 10 per cent. of the amount of claims filed. The claims aggregate $6,422,489, and include a total of 16,199 different claims. The second dividend has been made possible by closing litigation. The Northern Bank was closed on Dec. 27, 1910, following the discovery of irregularities. The total deposits at the date of closing were $6,201,512. The first dividend of 50 per cent. was paid to depositors on April 13 last. With the additional dividend of 10 per cent. the liabilities of the bank remaining will be reduced to $2,928,412.

Special Deputy Superintendent George B. Williams, who is representing Supt. Van Tuyl in the liquidation of the bank, reports uncollected assets of the institution on Nov. 21 at $2,977,883. The bank's affairs at the time of its suspension were in a badly tangled condition, and with the completion of the payment of the second dividend there will be many good assets, which, however, he says, will need careful handling. Further liquidation, Mr. Williams says, will be slow because many of the saleable assets consist of real estate, which at the present time is not readily saleable.

Supt. Van Tuyl is making ready to pay a second dividend of 15 per cent. on Dec. 1 to the creditors of the Knickerbocker Savings and Loan Company. This will make a total of 40 per cent. paid to the depositors, 25 per cent. having been paid on Oct. 27.

TELLS HOW SWOPE DIED.

Nurse Describes Death Scene in Second Trial of Dr. Hyde.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 24.—The death scene in the bedroom of Col. Thomas H. Swope was described vividly to-day to the jurors in the second trial of Dr. B. Clark Hyde by Miss Pearl Virginia Kellar, a nurse, who continued her testimony, begun yesterday.

Under the guidance of the State's attorneys she told the jury of the capsule which, she says, Dr. Hyde took from a pink box and told her to give to Col. Swope. The State declares the capsule contained cyanide and strychnine.

Miss Kellar was the first witness to be called by the State in the first trial. It was largely on her testimony that the accused physician was convicted of murder in the first degree.

The State won a victory in a strongly contested point when Miss Kellar was allowed to tell of the illness and death of Moss Hunton at the Swope home three days before the death of Swope. Hunton was named as executor in Swope's will. The nurse said that Hyde, fifteen minutes after Hunton died, asked her to use her influence to have him appointed as new executor.

Whether Col. Swope was in the habit of swallowing the seeds of fruit he ate was the basis for a sharp clash between the opposing lawyers. The defense will contend that the cyanide reaction which the State's expert chemists say they found in examining the contents of the stomach may have come from hydrocyanic acid in fruit seeds eaten the day of Swope's death. Miss Kellar said she gave her patient fruit for breakfast.

Judge Lindsey at City College.

At City College yesterday a crowded meeting of students was addressed by Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver and Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick in the chemical lecture room. Mr. Fosdick told of the mismanagement of the city's money in previous administrations and of the remedies for this evil. Judge Lindsey told of his own experiences with legislation in his State when he was trying to put through bills pertaining to the welfare of the children. After the talks President Finley showed the two visitors through the buildings, where they saw the students at work.

STOKES TELLS HOW THE GIRLS SHOT HIM

"If It's Death or One Cent, I'll Choose Death," He Cried, Then Came the Bullets.

MISS GRAHAM TEMPTED HIM

That's How It All Began, He Declares, and Trouble Came When He Got Married and Stopped Sending Money.

W. E. D. Stokes testified yesterday before Justice Marcus in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, at the trial of Ethel Conrad and Lillian Graham for attempting to kill him on June 7 last, in their apartment at 225 West Eightieth Street. Assistant District Attorney Buckner asked Mr. Stokes to begin his story with his first meeting with Lillian Graham.

"I first met Miss Graham in the Ansonia Hotel in the latter port of 1906," said Mr. Stokes. "She was living with her sister, Mrs. Singleton, who had an apartment there. We became well acquainted and I heard from her quite often, and we discussed her going on the stage. She said her sister did not want her to go on the stage, but that she had been in California and had acted there. She said she was 24 years old, and I advised her against the stage."

Stokes was divorced at the time he met Miss Graham. He said that in the following year she visited him on his farm at Lexington, Ky., with her sister, Mrs. Singleton, and that he gave her $300 in 1909 to take a trip to Paris. In 1910 she made another trip to Paris, and when she returned he told her he was married.

"She said she was surprised," Mr. Stokes testified, "and told me that she must have some money—$500 to go to Europe to join her sister. I told her I was married and didn't want anything more to do with her. I said I was absolutely through with her and would not give one cent. She said she was in debt, and I told her I felt very sorry for her, but could do nothing."

Miss Graham begain to cry and leaned over on Miss Conrad's shoulder. Mrs. Singleton also burst into tears, and for a time the sobs of the two women could be heard above the tones of Stokes, who was relating his story in the most matter-of-fact way. He described an attempt made by Miss Graham to commit suicide in his presence by putting a bottle of poison to her lips. Getting down to May 31, when he first met Miss Conrad, he said:

"Miss Conrad called upon me on May 31 and said that she had started to go to her work on the Delineator, where she was employed as an artist, and had returned to get her pencils and found Miss Graham, whom she discovered starving on the street the night before, lying on her bed with the burns of carbolic acid all over her face. She said that she found a bundle of letters lying on the table, with one addressed to the press, saying that she had killed herself because W. E. D. Stokes refused to give her $500. She told me how she got a doctor and begged me to give her some money for a nurse for Miss Graham. I gave her $30."

A few days later Miss Conrad again called and told him that Miss Graham was recovering, and that she had made arrangements to get Miss Graham a ticket for Belgium, where Mr. Singleton was. He said he gave Miss Conrad $200—$150 for a steamship ticket and $50 for expenses. Miss Conrad then told him she would give him the letters as soon as Miss Graham got on the boat, which would be the following Saturday, and asked for money to hire a taxicab.

"I refused to give her money for a taxicab," said Mr. Stokes, "but I said: 'See here, you told me that Miss Graham had no clothes but the ones she was wearing when you met her on the street, and you take a car to the pier.'

"I also told her that I didn't like the way she kept a-looking out of the window and about the room when talking with me. I think I said 'Do you know, Miss Conrad, there is only one thing I don't like about you, and that is your eyes. I like to look people straight in the eyes, but you don't.'"

Coming down to the day of the shooting he said that Miss Conrad called him up in the morning and after telling him that Miss Graham had left for Belgium, announced that she would give him the letters if he wanted them. He said he agreed to call for them himself, and she told him to call at 6 o'clock that night.

"I rang the doorbell and Miss Conrad met me at the door," he went on. "She greeted me pleasantly: 'You are prompt, Mr. Stokes,' she said. 'Step right in the parlor.' I went to the parlor, and heard voices at the other end of the corridor, and soon Miss Conrad came in again.

"She stopped at the corridor door and did something with the latch and then came in with her hands behind her and walked past me with a smile on her face. I walked to the easterly side of the room carrying my hat in my hand and suddenly I saw Miss Graham coming down the hall. She was crouched over and moving stealthily. She carried a blue revolver in her hand and held it pointed at my head as she stepped into the rom she said: 'Now I've got you where I want you. You told Ethel Conrad stories about my mother and my sister. I will show you —— that you can't talk about me —— you can't smirch my good name. I'll fix you. I will kill you.'"

The girls demanded, he declared, that he write a retraction of the statement alleged to have been made to Miss Conrad about Miss Graham, and after he refused Miss Graham demanded $25,000. He said he warned her that she would go to Sing Sing and be killed if she murdered him, and that she replied: "Oh, no I won't I will say I am insane." Miss Conrad, he said, interrupted saying: "No, we won't say that at all, we will say he attacked us and we killed him in self-defense." He refused to give up any money, declaring: "If it is death or one cent I will choose death," whereupon Miss Graham said: "Oh, you will, will you, well then take that," and pulled the trigger of her revolver.

Mr. Stokes said he wrenched the revolver away from her and then Miss Conrad began to fire at him at the request of Miss Graham. He identified the clothes he wore, and pointed out the spots upon his person where the bullets struck. He wore a mud-colored red office coat, a green felt hat, a short tan overcoat, and a pair of light checkered trousers.

Robert W. Moore, counsel for Miss Conrad, cross-examined him. Mr. Stokes declared that Miss Graham had made the first advances to him. In reply to a question as to whether or not his memory was defective, Stokes said:

"Only where dates and spelling are involved."

He admited taking Miss Graham on many automobile rides, and identified a letter written by him begging Miss Graham and her sister to visit him on his farm at Lexington, Ky., and describing his horses and the splendid cooking by negroes.

In response to a direct question Mr. Stokes admitted the impropriety of his relations with Miss Graham at Lexington, Ky.

"Do you still say that the defendant was making advances to you?" was asked.

"Yes, I do," replied Mr. Stokes, growing angry.

"You said that Miss Graham owed you $500 for an unpaid hotel bill, and still you sent her money in Paris without her asking for it?"

"At the Magistrate's hearing you said you didn't know the name of the Austrian Countess, who warned you against Miss Graham. Do you know it now?"

"Yes, she is Lottie Lorraine, a former show girl, who married a titled Austrian."

"Did you need any warning about Miss Graham? Isn't it conceded that you don't need any warning about women?"

Mr. Stokes grew red in the face, and Mr. Buckner said:

"I object, your Honor. I think there is plenty of evidence here already to show that Mr. Stokes needs some warning about that question."

All those in the couurtroom laughed, including Justice Marcus, who sustained the objection.

Mr. Stokes became more and more angry as Mr. Moore's questions continued, and had to be warned by Justice Marcus several times. He denied that he had ever received $1,700 from Miss Graham to invest for her, and denied that she had ever given him any money to invest at all.

The trial was adjourned until Monday, when the cross-examination of Mr. Stokes will be continued.

SAY SAMUELS OWES $200,000.

New Bankruptcy Petition Filed, Charging Conspiracy.

Owing to discoveries made since the filing of an original petition in bankruptcy, an amended petition against M. G. Samuels & Co., hat dealers, of 16 West Third Street, was filed yesterday afternoon by Saul S. Myers and George W. Whiteside, attorneys for the receiver and for the International Trust Company of Boston, with claims of $40,000. The liabilities of the firm are said to be $200,000.

The petition charges that in April of this year Morris G. Samuels, President of the company, entered into a conspiracy with Joseph S. Lesser of St. Gall, Switzerland; with his brother, Morris Lesser of New York; with Solon H. Newmark of New York, and with Isaac Gerstein of New York, to purchase $500,000 worth of laces and embroideries in Europe on credit in the name of the St. Gallen Manufacturing Company; to have Samuels advance the money necessary to carry out the scheme, and to let him have a factor's lien on the merchandise. Thereafter, the petition alleges, it was agreed to have a fraudulent bankruptcy of the St. Gallen Company, and when the creditors looked for their money, to say all the goods belonged to Samuels.

To get the necessary funds, the petition charges, Samuels gave false written statements to the International Trust Company of Boston and thereby obtained more than $50,000; and that Samuels, Morris Lesser, Newmark, and Gerstein negotiated promissory notes with forged endorsements of reputable persons. With $35,000 sent to him, the petition continues, Joseph S. Lesser purchased upwards of $100,000 worth of laces and embroideries, and after getting Samuels's money defrauded him as well as the creditors.

The creditors of Samuels allege that Samuels & Co. in July gave out a signed statement showing assets of $185,977.24, and liabilities of $56,248.27, whereas the real assets were only $88,000 against liabilities of $200,000.

LUSITANIA 12 HOURS LATE.

Delayed by Bad Weather—Her Average Speed, Though, Was 24.7 Knots.

The Cunard liner Lusitania arrived at her pier at 9:30 yesterday morning, twelve hours late, owing to bad weather on the voyage and fog at the entrance to this harbor. Her average speed for the voyage was 24.7 knots, and her lowest day's run was 548 knots, from Wednesday to Thursday noon, when she was sometimes reduced to 20 knots.

On her arrival in Liverpool this trip the Lusitania will have completed sixteen round voyages in 11 months and 17 days, which will establish a record in the history of the Atlantic steamship trade.

Shortly after leaving Queenstown last Sunday a small fire started in the woodwork of one of the second-class cabins through a short circuit of the electric light wires, but it was quickly extinguished before any damage was done. The first cabin passengers did not know it had happened until the liner arrived at her pier yesterday. William H. Allison, the chief steward of the Lusitania, was taken off the ship at Liverpool suffering from an acute attack of pneumonia, and his place was taken by W. T. Tracy, from the Campania.

Recount in Monroe Which Went Dry.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The town of Monroe, in which a considerable part of the Harriman estate is located, apparently voted for no license by about 40 majority at the recent election. Among the Summer hotels affected was the Idle Hour Inn at Walton Lake. David F. Mack to-day instituted a mandamus proceeding to review the local option vote, asserting that there were 42 ballots thrown out by the Inspectors, which should have been counted. Justice Tompkins ordered a recount, which will take place at White Plains next Monday. If 26 of the 42 contested ballots are counted the hotels of the town will receive license.

200 New Suits for Women Of $18 to $25 Grades---$6.98
Absolutely New and the Finest Suits We Have Ever Known to Be Offered for Such a Price.

THESE SUITS COME TO US STRAIGHT from the workrooms of one of the chief makers of women's apparel in New York.

They are his standard, staple product; made of good fabrics, made in practical, likable styles, and made in the way that will assure long and sound service.

But because this is his season's end, because Thanksgiving and the Holidays are coming, we bought the Suits to sell at $6.98 apiece—a price that you will judge to be less than the worth of the fabrics.

The Suits are of basket weave cheviots, good substantial serges, handsome tweeds and fine cheviots in plain blacks and blues. There are several styles. Single-breasted jackets of medium length and plain skirts, some of which are paneled. Velvet or broadcloth trimmings—except the black and blue cheviots, which are plain—and in some cases coats finished with frogs instead of buttons.

The market value of such Suits all through New York in the best stores is today $18 to $25 apiece. They have $18 to $25 style. They will give $18 to $25 service.

And you may buy them here today for $6.98 each.

Important Sale for Girls and Young Women
$15 to $35 Dresses, Coats, Suits All at the Uniform Price of $9.98

THE BEST AND BRIEFEST WAY to indicate the remarkable values that we are privileged to disperse today under ten dollars is to say that the AVERAGE value of these new Dresses, Coats and Suits is $25.

They all come to us from one of the cleverest makers of girlish apparel in New York. They come at exceedingly small prices because this maker is through with winter clothes—unless by definite special orders—and wants to turn his force to work on spring styles.

There are Dresses for misses and junior girls—serges, broadcloths, checks, prunella cloths and cheviots, braided or embroidered or satin trimmed; a great variety of styles; mostly one of a kind, in fact.

There are misses' and junior two-piece and a few three-piece Suits of the best fabrics and in very new and likable styles.

There is a limited number of Coats—samples and one of a kind.

It may be said without qualification that this is the best offering of girls' and young women's apparel that has been made thus far this season for as little money as $9.98.

SUN YAT SEN'S PLANS FOR CHINA REPUBLIC

Sails for Shanghai to Form a Provisional Government — Reform Schemes of New Regime.

YUAN CAN'T RAISE LOANS

Ministers Decide to Increase Legation Guards—Bandits, Not Rebels, Attacked Shen-si Missionaries.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—After four days spent in Paris in the strictest incognito, the Chinese revolutionary leader, Sun Yat Sen, who was accompanied by the American, Gen. Homer Lea, sailed to-day from Marseilles on the liner Marta for Shanghai, where, after meeting the republican leaders, he will form a provisional Government for the Chinese Republic.

The Courrier d'Europe, a political weekly, will to-morrow publish a résumé of Sun Yat Sen's political programme for the first Cabinet, which the periodical received from him while in Paris.

"China as a federal republic," he says, "will draw inspiration from the young democracies of America and Europe, without, however, abandoning the fruits of her experience of several thousand years.

"The republic will maintain its ancient language, but for the study of sciences, which will play a large part in the programme of the new régime, English will be added as an auxiliary to a simplified form of ideological writing. Just as she will have a common tongue, China will have a federal army and federal finances.

"As the Chinese Republic will be wide open to foreign commerce and enterprise, its first step will be to remove the limitations imposed on its trade relations with other nations. The republic will claim the right of regulating its customs and tariffs according to its own interests, and not those of foreign countries. This, of course, will be effected by an agreement with China's creditors, whose rights will be scrupulously respected.

"A profoundly pacific Chinese Republic will respect all engagements undertaken by the Manchu Government, even those entered into with Japan and Russia under pressure of force. Penetrated by the sentiment of national unity and dignity, the republic intends to command respect by the prestige of its Government, supported by the entire nation. Though free of imperialistic ambitions and military pretensions, the republic will, if menaced, find in the self-sacrificing spirit of its people the means for irresistible action."

PEKING, Nov. 24.—Yuan Shi-Kai continues unsuccessful in his efforts to obtain loans. He informed the legations to-day that he had prepared a scheme by which he hopes to end the revolution. He said he did not intend to allow further fighting, but declined to disclose the nature of his scheme.

At a meeting of the Ministers representing the foreign powers here it was decided that it would be advisable to increase the legation guards.

Missionaries arriving in Peking from Tung-Chow-fu, eighty miles northeast of Sian-fu, give accounts of the recent revolution in the Province of Shen-si, where the anti-foreign element declared its intention to exterminate foreigners, Christians and Manchus, but only partially succeeded.

The rebel General at Sian-fu, they say, issued a proclamation to the people not to harm merchants, foreigners, or non-combatant Chinese, but only to destroy Manchus. The Manchus thereupon prepared to defend themselves within their own walled section of the city. They withstood one attack by a mob made up of students from the military school and Government school and soldiers, but the next day the attack against them proved more successful, and nearly all the Manchus were slain. According to the missionaries the Chinese informed them that horrible barbarities accompanied the slaughter, and that a number of Manchu women were speared or carried off by Chinese officers or soldiers.

After the massacre bandits took advantage of the situation, the revolutionists having neglected properly to police the city. They plundered shops and demanded money of the inhabitants and then burned the school of the Scandinavian-China Alliance Mission, and killed Mme. Beckman and another teacher. A missionary was wounded, but succeeded in rescuing a number of the school children.

When the rebels restored order they decapitated many of the outlaws. During the disorder the English Baptist Mission was threatened, but not attacked.

When the missionaries left Tung-Chow-fu the rebels continued to administer the city capably, but the brigands swarmed throughout the province. The country people near Tung-Chow-fu organized and captured several of the robbers and killed them with their knives. In nearly every village trees were felled and barricades erected. The village missionaries were unable to escape.

Another party arriving in Peking from Southern Shen-Si say they believe the Sian-fu missionaries will be unable to get away owing to the bad condition of the roads. The party was attacked while on the way here by twenty highwaymen, who badly beat Dr. Blom, a Swedish missionary, who was in advance of the refugees, and twice slashed his wife with sabres about her head. They declare that fourteen soldiers who were escorting the party did not once lift their rifles against the outlaws.

This party also gives an account of a massacre at Tung-kwan, an historical pass where invading hordes of Chinese centuries ago massacred the population. Brigands posing as revolutionists first captured Tung-kwan, then looted the town, and killed 2,000 of its inhabitants. The imperial troops then recaptured the place, killed 1,000 of the brigands, and carried off down the river eighteen boatloads of Chinese girls. Later the revolutionists took Tung-kwan.

REBELS BUY AIRSHIPS.

Cleveland Hears They Plan Attack on Peking by Fleet of Thirteen.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 24.—The Chinese revolutionists, it is stated here, are planning to assemble a fleet of thirteen airships for an attack on Peking, and have purchased one in Cleveland. Material for ten more has been ordered in part from Akron, while the two machines have been shipped from Albion, Mich.

Roy Wilcox of Albion is on his way to San Francisco to take the machines to China, and will act as constructor and instructor.

Twenty Chinese left Detroit to-day to join him with other Celestials from various parts of the country.

TOKIO, Nov. 24.—The Japanese destroyer Harusame foundered off Shima Province in a storm to-day and forty-five of the crew of sixty perished.

EXPLOSION KILLS 33.

Over a Hundred Also Hurt When Boiler Bursts in Liverpool Mills.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 24. — Thirty-three workers are known to have been killed and upward of 100 others injured by a boiler explosion which occurred to-day at the oilcake mills of J. Bibby & Sons.

The force of the explosion was so terrific that the roof of the great mill was blown off, while the walls split and crumbled, and the bodies of the victims hurtled high into the air, mingling with the flashes of flame which instantly followed the bursting of the boilers.

Nearly 400 workers were engaged in the building at the time. Every one was thrown to the ground by the violence of the explosion.

Those near the boiler room had their arms and legs torn off, and their mangled bodies fell into the adjoining streets together with showers of bricks and débris.

Fire immediately started and the whole building was soon burning fiercely. Men could be seen at every window with fire raging behind them, frantically appealing for rescue. Fire escapes were quickly on the scene and many of the men were saved. The scorched clothing and burned hair of those brought down told of the terrific ordeal through which thy had gone.

Many of those who were taken to the hospital are suffering from shocking injuries. Some have lost legs and arms and others are fearfully burned. Many of them are not expected to recover.

TITLED SUFFRAGISTS JAILED

While Mrs. Leigh Gets Two Months Without the Option of a Fine.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Lady Constance Lytton and Lady Sibyl Smith, both of whom have been prominent in the suffragette movement, were charged at the Bow Street Police Court to-day with smashing windows during the demonstrations of Tuesday last. They were sentenced respectively to a fortnight and a week in jail in default of the payment of fines.

Mrs. Mary Leigh, who has been seven times previously convicted, and whom the police described as the "most troublesome suffragette" they had had to deal with, was sentenced to two months in jail without the option of a fine. The Magistrate warned Mrs. Leigh that if she were again convicted she would be sent to jail for a term at hard labor.

Mrs. Leigh, on the occasion of one of her previous convictions in 1908, told the magistrate, "The next time we come out you can expect bombs." She brought an unsuccessful suit against the Government in 1909, claiming damages because she had been forcibly fed during her imprisonment.

The remaining 130 cases were adjourned until next Monday.

AMERICAN AIDS ADMIRALTY.

Constructor Taylor Holds That Suction Drew Hawke to Olympic.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Naval Constructor W. Taylor, U. S. N., who came here for the purpose at the request of the British Government, was the principal witness at to-day's hearing of the cross-suits for damages brought as a result of the collision between the White Star Line steamship Olympic and the British cruiser Hawke off the Isle of Wight in September.

The American strongly supported the contention of the Admiralty that suction might have caused the accident. He believed that collisions and the grounding of vessels were frequently due to this cause.

Assuming that the Hawke and Olympic were 100 yards apart there would develop, the witness said, a strong suction tending to draw the bow of the cruiser toward the Olympic and the suction would become rapidly irresistible. The Hawke would be drawn over toward the liner even against her helm. If the ships were 300 yards apart there would be some suction, but the vessel affected could be controlled by her helm.

SIXTY DROWN IN ADRIATIC.

Were on Austrian Steamer Romania, Wrecked Near Rovigno.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—The Austrian steamer Romania was wrecked to-day near Rovigno. It is reported that sixty persons were drowned.

A sirocco has swept the coast of the Adriatic for three days and caused much damage to shipping.

FARLEY WALKS ABOUT ROME IN THE RAIN

Always a Joy to Him, Wet or Fine —Cardinal-Designate Has Enormous Mail.

O'CONNELL IN HOLY CITY

Merry del Val Greets Boston Prelate—Pope, Receiving Falconio, Shows Intimacy with American Affairs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 24.—Cardinal-Designate Farley's day has been uneventful. He is looking extremely well and alert, and attended to some private business which took him about Rome in the rain. He said to an intimate that going about the Eternal City, whether raining or shining, was always a joy to him.

The new Cardinal received an enormous mail of letters, telegrams, and cablegrams from everywhere, especially America and Italy, and his secretaries were occupied all day answering them. He dined with his suite in his private room, to the great disappointment of other guests of the hotel, most of whom had gone there hoping to have the honor of rubbing shoulders with his Eminence.

The run on tickets for the public consistory is phenomenal. Letters are arriving at the Vatican from all over the world, asking to reserve tickets for people traveling over land and sea to witness the ceremony.

It is thought that the audience will be a record one in numbers.

It is still a disputed point whether the Pontiff will be carried in the sedia gestatoria. Leo XIII. never walked, while Pius X. usually does, but on some occasions has been thus carried. The ceremony will be the more gorgeous with sedias and the famous feather fans being used. But the Pontiff is always against any ceremonial, however innocent, that seems to conflict with the humility which is so truly his characteristic.

ROME, Nov. 24.—The three American Cardinals designate have now arrived in Rome for the ceremonial which will elevate them to the status of Princes of the Church. Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, who had been delayed at Naples on board the steamer Canlopc, reached the Vatican to-day and received the same cordial and enthusiastic welcome that had previously been given Archbishop Farley and Mgr. Falconio.

Cardinal Merry Del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, in welcoming Cardinal O'Connell, called him "brother," and Mgr. Bisleti, the Papal Majordomo, who is also to receive a red hat at the coming consistory, told Mgr. O'Connell that he was glad he would be his colleague in the Sacred College. Mgr. Bisleti has arranged for an audience between Pope Piux and Mgr. O'Connell.

As soon as it became known that he was in the city, the Boston prelate was overwhelmed with callers, for he has many friends here. The Archbishop said:

"Upon again setting foot on the sacred soil of the Eternal City, though overcome by the unexpected honor which means appreciation of the American hierarchy, my first thought goes to my dear country and to my beloved people whose testimony of affection and devotion when I left the United States surpassed anything imaginable. My feeling of gratitude is impershible."

The Pope received Archbishop Falconio in private audience at the Vatican to-day. He met the Cardinal-Designate at the entrance to the library, where he prevented him from kneeling to offer reverence. The Pope embraced him affectionately.

When Mgr. Falconio offered his thanks and expressed his deep gratitude for the great honor conferred upon him, the Pope replied that it was his due reward for signal services rendered and for his loyalty to the Church during his whole career.

Afterward the conversation turned to America. The Pontiff showed remarkable knowledge of American affairs, both ecclesiastic and otherwise.

The Pope inquired in the most kindly way concerning Mgr. Falconio's plans for his residence here, and was informed by the Cardinal-Designate that instead of continuing to live at the Franciscan Monastery of San Antonio, where he is now temporarily residing, he would take an apartment.

The Pope also learned with apparent satisfaction that Cardinal-Designate Falconio, instead of holding his official reception after the secret consistory on Monday at the palace chancellery, in conformity with Papal usage, would receive at the American College, together with Cardinals Farley and O'Connell. Mgr. Falconio thus wishes to give another proof of his attachment and loyalty to his adopted country.

After his own audience with the Pope, Mgr. Falconio presented to the Pontiff Mgr. Thomas Joseph Shahan, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, and Mgr. Francis H. Wall. The Pope spoke in a most kindly manner to each of them and bestowed the apostolic benediction on them. Archbishop Falconio says that he found the Pope in perfect health. He was bright and alert, and had not changed since the last time he saw him.

Archbishop Farley celebrated mass in his own apartment to-day, after receiving many callers who came to pay their respects and homage instead of waiting for Monday's official reception. In many instances the enthusiasm of the visitors contrasted strongly with the extreme modesty of the Cardinal-designate.

Shortly before noon Archbishop Farley, accompanied by Mgrs. W. G. Murphy and J. V. Lewis, drove in a closed carriage to the American College, where they were received at the entrance by the Rector, Mgr. Kennedy; the Vice Rector, Mgr. C. A. O'Hern; the spiritual director, Mgr. B. Mahoney, and all the students and personnel of the college, who gave him an overwhelming reception.

Archbishop Farley has practically decided to sail for the United States from Bremen on board the Kronprinzessin Cecilie on Dec. 14. This vessel would bring the new Cardinal to New York on Dec. 21, the anniversary of his consecration in 1895 as Auxiliary Bishop of New York.

ANOTHER CURIE DUEL.

Follows Publication of Mme. Langevin's Plaint—Gil Blas Writer Hurt.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—Another sword duel connected with the Curie-Langevin case took place to-day between Gustave Thery and Pierre Mortier, a writer in Gil Blas. M. Mortier was wounded in the arm and more seriously in the wrist. After this the encounter was stopped.

Despite the fact that the writer of the article alleging that Mme. Curie had eloped with Prof. Langevin has publicly apologized, admitting that his allegation was untrue, the case has come again to public notice through the publication of a pamphlet by Gustave Thery containing what is alleged to be a copy of the plaint filed in the Correctional Court of the Seine by Mme. Langevin against Mme. Curie and Prof. Langevin. The publication of the text of a complaint before trial is prohibited by law. None of the newspapers printed the alleged copy of the plaint, which, according to Gustave Thery, includes copies of letters alleged to have been written by Mme. Curie to Prof. Langevin.

The suit comes before the court on Dec. 8. In the meantime the case is causing frequent journalistic duels.

ANGLO-FRENCH SECRET OUT.

Guarded Clauses in Treaty Turn Out to be of Minor Interest.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The secret clauses in the Anglo-Saxon agreement of 1904, relating to Egypt and Morocco, which led to the international understanding, and under which, it was alleged, Great Britain was heavily committed to the military support of France in certain eventualities, turn out to be of very minor interest.

The articles, which are published this evening, provide for possible changes in the system of capitulation and legislative systems, and agree to allow Spain a certain extent of territory adjoining Melilla and Ceuta and other spheres of Spanish influence in the event of the Sultan ceasing to rule Morocco.

One clause of special interest at the present moment of Anglo-German tension provides that Spain shall undertake not to alienate to another power any such teritories placed under her authority.

HAVE YOU EVER WORN A NOX-ALL HAT

If You Have, the Following From the New York Daily Trade Record, Nov. 24, 1911, Will Interest You:

New York.—Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co. Brings Suit for Preliminary Injunction and Accounting Against Denzer, Goodhart & Co., Alleging Infringement of Trademarks.—Suit for a preliminary injunction and an accounting was instituted yesterday in the United States Circuit Court by the Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co. against Denzer, Goodhart & Co., of this city, to restrain the latter from using the trademarks "None-X-Ell" and "Standard." The Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co., which acquired the business and trademarks from Berthold Scheuer, who was a member of the former firm of Denzer, Goodhart & Scheuer, allege that Denzer, Goodhart & Co. are deliberately infringing upon its trademarks and ask for an injunction and an accounting to ascertain the profits it alleges have been made by Denzer, Goodhart & Co. on the sale of its hats, under the alleged infringing marks.

Wise & Lichtenstein represent the Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co. The papers filed by the complainant allege that the defendants are using trademarks very similar to their own. The statement is made that the defendants are employing the figure of an eagle, of very nearly the same design as used by the complainants.

In support of this allegation is an affidavit by E. L. Young, of Young Bros., dealers in hats, and many other Affidavits from Hat Manufacturers, Dealers in Hats, and Consumers, to the effect that Mr. Young believes the trademarks used in defendants' hats are very similar to those used by complainant.

Other affidavits are by Berthold Scheuer, president of the Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co., and by Morris Lazar, president of the Western Hat Co., selling agents of the Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co., tending to bear out the allegations in the complaint.

One of the allegations of the complaint is that defendants are making corporate use of the name of Denzer, Goodhart & Co. in violation of the agreement of dissolution of the concern of Denzer, Goodhart & Scheuer. The complaint alleges that while still a member of Denzer, Goodhart & Scheuer, William Goodhart formed a partnership with Harry N. Simon and Julius Stiller, as Denzer, Goodhart & Co. The complaint alleges that no Mr. Denzer is connected with the defendant company.

Harry N. Simon, secretary of Denzer, Goodhart & Co., characterized the suit as a "spite suit" yesterday afternoon, and said he did not intend to give the Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co. any powder to shoot him with. Mr. Simon said that they were entirely cognizant of the fact that Mr. Scheuer controlled the old trademarks when they put out a product as "Non-Ex-Ell," and that there was no thought of infringement therein.

Wolf & Kohn are the attorneys for Denzer, Goodhart & Co. Simon Wolf, of the law firm, said yesterday afternoon that he had not had time to read over the papers which had just been submitted to him, but that they were very voluminous, and that to his mind there was no infringement ground for action. "An infringement consists in imitating another man's trademark to such an extent as to deceive as to the original, and it is certainly apparent that there is no such intent here," concluded Mr. Wolf.

When the firm of Denzer, Goodhart & Scheuer dissolved in October, 1910, Berthold Scheuer purchased the entire stock, fixtures, and trademarks of the firm. Following the liquidation, the business was continued under the style of Denzer, Goodhart & Co. and was incorporated, the officers being William Goodhart, Harry N. Simon, and Julius Stiller, all of whom were associated with the firm of Denzer, Goodhart & Scheuer.

The Nox-All & Gotham Hat Co. was incorporated under the New Jersey laws in May of this year.

7 4-7 CENTS TO SEND YOUR PACKAGE HOME

TOLD AT EXPRESS HEARING

As Bearing on the Charge of Exorbitant Rates—Sending Animals by Express Costly.

In the mass of statistical evidence presented yesterday at the hearing at the Merchants' Association before Franklin K. Lane of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, in charge of an inquiry into the rates and practices of express companies, was an interesting set of figures on what it costs one of the city's big department stores to deliver the mixed packages of customers' purchases. The aim was to uphold the contention that express rates are exorbitant.

Frederick B. De Berard, Secretary of the Express Rates Conference and statistician of the Merchants' Association, submitted the figures. In making the estimate labor, horses, equipment, and all other expenses incident to such a business were considered.

It costs one particular department store 7 4-7 cents to deliver each package in Manhattan from the Battery to 135th Street. The cost in Brooklyn, including deliveries in Coney Island, Flatbush, Ridgewood, and Greenpoint is 9½ cents. In Jersey City, including Hoboken and Weehawken, it is 10 1-5 cents. In the Bronx zone, which includes Yonkers, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, Tuckahoe, and Mamaroneck, the cost is 6¼ cents; Port Chester, including the district from Larchmont to Stamford, Conn., and White Plains, 16 1-3 cents; Tarrytown, including from Hastings to that town, 11 cents; Staten Island, including Bayonne, 11 cents; the Long Island district from Long Island City to Bayside and Queens, 12¾ cents; Hackensack, including Homestead, Closter, Ridgewood, and Paterson, 12 1-3 cents, and in Newark, Passaic, Morristown, Plainfield, and Elizabeth, 8 3-5 cents. The figures do not include information as to whether the express companies take any part in the delivery service.

The department store figures were not compared with the express companies' cost of operating "pick up" and delivery service. No record is kept to show the amount of business that comes in over the express counter or is carried away on delivery by the consignee, so a comparison of average costs could not be made.

Mr. De Berard offered in evidence a list of reports received from various concerns as to express rates. Walker D. Hines, chief counsel for the express companies, objected to their admission, as the names of the firms giving the information were withheld. To have such evidence go on record was, he thought, an injustice to the express companies. Commissioner Lane overruled the objection.

When Mr. De Berard took up the matter of complaints against express companies and their methods, Mr. Hines commented that complaints were received by every business concern, and that they were usually without significance except to show that human beings were still fallible.

The complaints received by the Merchants' Exchange include disregard of specified routing, delay in shipping and in delivery, particularly of goods of a perishable nature; failure to notify shippers of delivery, delay in settling claims, unreasonable restriction of free delivery, unreasonable restriction of the size of packages, unreasonable requirements in packing; rates, discrimination, poor system of return charges of C. O. D. packages, doing away with the return fee of "empties," refusal to collect, refusal to take shipments to Canada at full valuation, compulsory prepayment on shipments over two lines, discrimination in favor of foreign shippers, the $50 limitation, and the extra charge for delivery at piers.

Mr. De Berard read a letter from the Merchants' Association of Bridgeport in which it bitterly complained that, while rates were fashioned to meet present business conditions, there had not been a corresponding growth in facilities. The Bridgeport merchants gave figures to show that the express rates out of that city were higher than out of near-by cities. This they believed gave competitors an unfair advantage and did material wrong to Bridgeport by driving away those who would establish themselves in business there.

High Rates for Animals.

Field mice, Rocky Mountain goats, eagles, and other birds and beasts must pay the first-class rate if they would travel by express, said Dr. Cecil French, zoologist, who came over from Washington to tell Commissioner Lane some of his experiences with the companies. The witness qualified by saying that for twelve years he had carried on a sort of clearing house for creatures of the wild, and during that time the procession that had passed through his place had been a strange one. One of his complaints was over the shipment from Washington to Copenhagen of a live eagle. He said that though the steamship company charged $1.25 for food and maintenance, the United States Express Company charged $25.50 for the transportation when the tariff rate was $10. Shipping a pair of field mice cost $8.80 when the charge should have been 85 cents. For another shipment of animals the company collected $60.86, twice the legal rate, he said. The doctor said that in these cases the express company had refunded, but only after weeks of delay. A continual application of this refund system, he believed, would drive a man with little capital out of business.

The trip of two mountain goats to Hamburg was also a subject for discussion. The express company demanded a deposit of $40, more than the cost of the animals. The cost of the ocean trip was $10. Dr. French spent $1.10 buying suitable goat food for the voyage. He got a steward to look after the pair, giving him $2.50, so it cost exactly $13.60 for the trip. He had also the letter from the American Express Company to prove it wanted a forty-dollar deposit.

Dr. French said that about 25 or 30 per cent. of the shipments were overcharged. Mr. Hines pointed out that the shipments referred to by the witness were extraordinary, and that to deduct from them that overcharges in ordinary cases were frequent was wrong.

"The express companies claim the double graduate scale was recently abolished," said W. H. Chandler of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. "It is shown that no change was made in the rate for packages less than seven pounds, and on these the charge is the same as it has been for years, and higher than would have been the case if charges had been fixed on a total for two rates instead of at $2 per 100-pound minimum."

Mr. Chandler said that the shippers were subjected to another form of the graduate scale concealed in the rules whereby a minimum of 20 pounds is assessed for each package where two or more packages are shipped at the same time to the same consignee. In explanation he said that if two five-pound packages were delivered to an express company, and bound for the same person, the shipper would not get the benefit of having them weighed as one ten-pound package, but the company would consider them separately, charging him on a basis of forty-pound weight.

Compared With Freight Rates.

Comparison of first-class freight rate with express rate showed, he said, that express rates varied from 150 to 622 per cent. of the freight charges on inter-State shipments. From New York to points covering practically every State the express rate was 321 per cent. of freight rate; out of San Francisco, 575 per cent.; out of New Orleans, 502 per cent., and out of Richmond, 303 per cent. He also showed by charts that the fixed rates on the scale of tariff is higher per pound on heavier packages than for light packages. As an illustration, he said, under a $4.25 rate per 100 pounds a ten-pound package cost 10 cents a pound, while an eleven-pound package costs 10.45 cents a pound. He thought that where the rate is, for example, $1 a hundred pounds the scale should be fixed so that down to a minimum charge the cost should be 1 cent a pound. Such a schedule running in the same proportion through the table of rates would be, he thought, fair to the shipper.

As an example of the companies' unfamiliarity with their own rates he told of a shipment he made from Staten Island to Boston and was overcharged, paying $2.45. The express company made three guesses as to what the real charge should have been, and then refunded on a basis of a $1.45 charge. Express companies, he said, were actively soliciting business under Section D, which refers to carrying printed matter, and in this line they are active in competition with the Post Office. They make a rate of 2 cents an ounce, the same rate given by the Post Office Department, and on packages over 50 ounces they give a rate of 2 cents a package less that the Government.

The hearing will continue to-day.

MUST DEFEND FOURTH TRIAL.

Firm's Attempt to Force Judge to Give Ground for Appeal Fails.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court denied yesterday the application of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger for a writ of mandamus against Supreme Court Justice Irving Lehman requiring him to sign a formal order demanded by them. Justice Lehman was Judge at the last trial of Wolf Goldstein's five-thousand-dollar suit against them for personal injuries. The case was tried three times. Goldstein got a verdict at one of the trials, which was set aside, and the other two trials resulted in disagreements.

At the last trial, before the case went to the jury attorneys for Schwarzschild & Sulzberger asked Justice Lehman to dismiss the complaint. He denied the request, and then the attorneys demanded that he make a formal order, from which they might appeal, taking the ground that many trials of the case were submitting them to great expense and asking that they be permitted to appeal without further trials. Justice Lehman refused this request also.

Justice Seabury was then asked to stay the fourth trial until the writ of mandamus application had been decided. After hearing the protest of Goldstein's counsel that the application was designed to subject his client, a poor man, to the costs of an appeal to the higher courts before a verdict was obtained, Justice Seabury refused to stay the trial. The attorney said that the packing house was just as able financially to stand the expense of several trials as was his client.

CUMMINS SENTENCED, TAKES AN APPEAL

Starts Fight to Escape Term of Not Less Than Four Years Eight Months in Sing Sing.

HYDE'S TRIAL IS NEXT

Set for the First Monday in January—Cummins Hopes to Get Bail Pending His Appeal.

William J. Cummins, the Nashville promoter who came to New York and got control of the Carnegie Trust Company and became an important factor in the Van Norden Trust Company, the Twelfth Ward Bank, and the Nineteenth Ward Bank, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Vernon M. Davis to not less than four years and eight months and not more than eight years and eight months in Sing Sing. He was found guilty on Monday of stealing $140,000 that was to have constituted a trust fund in the custody of the Carnegie Trust Company.

Justice Davis also set for trial on the first Monday in January the case against Charles H. Hyde, former City Chamberlain, indicted for bribery as a result of the investigation of the Carnegie Trust Company failure.

As soon as he had been sentenced, Mr. Cummins obtained from Justice Seabury an order for the District Attorney to show cause next Monday why a certificate of reasonable doubt as to the legality of his conviction should not be issued, and staying the execution of the sentence. In this move Mr. Cummins followed the example of Joseph B. Reichmann, who was President of the Carnegie Trust Company, and who was sentenced to four months and a half for making a false return to the Banking Department, and who is now out on $50,000 bail.

When Mr. Cummins was brought into court yesterday he appeared pale but self-possessed. While waiting to be called to the bar he said:

"When my case is appealed I will prove my innocence. I have the evidence to do this and will use it at the proper time."

When Justice Davis took his seat, Max D. Steuer, Cummins's counsel, submitted a number of technical motions. One was for an arrest of judgment, another that the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction, a third that the indictment was insufficient, and finally that the defendant had been compelled to testify before the Grand Jury in violation of his constitutional rights. Justice Davis denied all the motions, which were made for the purpose of getting a certificate of reasonable doubt and taking an appeal. Turning to the prisoner, Justice Davis said:

"William J. Cummins, I sentence you to serve a term in State's prison of four years and eight months as a minimum and eight years and eight months as a maximum."

The limit provided by the statute is not less than five nor more than ten years. Mr. Cummins was entitled to an indeterminate sentence as being convicted for the first time.

Neither ex-Chamberlain Hyde nor his counsel was in court when District Attorney Whitman moved his trial. He stated that it had been understood that Reichmann, Cummins, and Hyde should be tried in that order, and that he was now ready to go ahead with the Hyde case. He mentioned the fact that Hyde would probably be defended by Max D. Steuer, who defended Cummins.

The charge against Mr. Hyde is based on allegations that he induced J. G. Robin's Northern Bank to lend money to Cummins and his associates, almost immediately depositing city funds in the Northern Bank, and subsequently borrowing himself from the Carnegie Trust Company. The District Attorney says it will be shown that city funds were deposited in several banks soon after they made loans to the "Cummins crowd." The indictment against Mr. Hyde, which was returned on May 1, charges that his action constituted bribery under a section of the Penal Code relating to malfeasance by public officers.

Much of the evidence against Mr. Hyde has been furnished by Joseph G. Robin. After his arrest Robin declared that his friends had deserted him. He pleaded guilty and has since been in the Tombs awaiting sentence, which has been deferred pending his disclosures implicating others with whom he had relations.

To Declare George F. Parker Insane.

On the application of Mrs. Emma S. Parker, Supreme Court Justice Sawyer appointed yesterday a commission to inquire into the sanity of her husband, George F. Parker, who is now in a sanitarium at Clifton Springs, N. Y. Mrs. Parker says that her husband, who is 50 years old, is suffering from melancholia. He has realty worth $100,000 in Denver, Col., and $150,000 in stocks and bonds. He has one daughter, Madeline Parker, aged 25 years, the petition recites.

AGAINST FREE TRANSFERS.

Street Railways Say They Are Ruinous—Restoration Order Expected.

Only the Central Park and the Second Avenue Railway Companies were represented yesterday at the hearing held by the Public Service Commission to sum up the testimony on the question of restoring street railway transfers. Counsel for the Metropolitan Street Railway and the Third Avenue system sent word that the time had been too short for them to prepart their arguments.

Chase Mellen, who appeared for the Central Park Line, urged that a free transfer order would ruin his company. No system of transfers, he contended, would be other than confiscatory, as far as his company is concerned, if it did not insure the receipt of a fare in excess of the cost of carrying each passenger.

Brainard Tolles, speaking for the Second Avenue Line, submitted several schedules showing that if allowance be made for a fair return on the capital invested, a reserve for surplus and emergencies as well as depreciation and taxes, the cost of carrying each passenger for the six months ending June 30 had been 7 36-100 cents. He argued that the commission has no right to interfere with a reasonable fare. It is expected that on Tuesday the commission will order the restoration of the transfer system, and that the companies will appeal from the order.

Not Bleached

That creamy-white flour in Gold Medal bags is just as Nature made it.

No chemicals have touched it—The flour is not bleached.

But that flour, Mrs. Housewife, is just the heart of choice wheat.

It isn't the whole flour—It's the cream of the flour.

It is sifted ten times, through ten sheets of fine silk, to pick out the daintiest particles.

That's the secret of it.

When you simply say "flour" you are likely to get the cream mixed with the rest.

To get the cream only, say "Gold Medal Flour" It costs you nothing extra.

Then you get the flour which has come to outsell every other flour in existence.

If you paid $10 a sack for it, no man could supply you a choicer flour than this.

Lusitania Passenger Recovers Them Later Through Detective.

There was a flurry of excitement on the Cunard pier, 56 North River, yesterday morning after the Lusitania docked, due to the temporary loss of a bag containing a number of jewels, estimated to be worth several thousand dollars and owned by Mrs. Mary Howlett of Philadelphia.

She was a passenger in the second cabin of the steamship and by mistake went to the letter "H" in the first-class reservation on the pier to look for her baggage. While standing there she was watched by a tall, heavy man. When a steward came up and asked Mrs. Howlett to come and identify a trunk she laid down the bag of jewels she was carrying and went with him. It was immediately picked up by the heavy man, who was one of the Cunard line detectives, who handed it to another woman with the remark that its owner had been careless and asking her to take care of it. Mrs. Howlett returning to look for the bag it was gone, and she went to Detective Edward Mallon, who soon found the woman who had the bag and was trying to find its owner.

FEAR FOR GOVERNMENT TUGS

The Uncas and the Potomac Not Reported Since Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 24.—At the Naval Training Station in this city and throughout the section where the families of sailors live great anxiety for the safety of the naval tugs Potomac and Uncas, bound from Norfolk to Guantanamo, Cuba, is felt to-night.

The tugs have not been reported for three days. One report is to the effect that one of the barges in tow of the Uncas has been picked up adrift at sea. The Uncas had two barges in tow. It is feared that both tugs are in trouble.

All day the authorities, both at the training station and at the navy yard, have been asking for news as to the whereabouts of the two vessels. The officials have issued denials that there have been reports of any trouble. At the wireless stations it is declared that there is no news of the two tugs. They have no reports of a barge being picked up. However, as neither of the boats are equipped with wireless, these statements do not satisfy friends and relatives of the men aboard.

The Potomac and the Uncas, both with barges in tow, sailed from the Norfolk harbor last Thursday. They are carrying supplies for the use of the fleet during the Winter manoeuvres. They are scheduled to reach Guantanamo by Tuesday a week. It is said that the last time either of the tugs was reported was on Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—At midnight the Navy Department had received no advices in regard to the whereabouts of the tugs Potomac and Uncas or any news of their being in distress. Both are big tugs and strong sea boats. Admiral Wainwright said late to-night that he not only had no information of their being in trouble, but that he could not believe that was the case.

PIGNIULO HELD FOR TRIAL.

Secret Service Man Victim of Plot of "White Slavers," Counsel Says.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 24.—Charged with blackmail, Pasquale Pigniulo, a United States Secret Service agent, was defended in court to-day by United States District Attorney John T. Robinson. It is alleged that Pigniulo accepted $450 "protection money" from "Patsie" Fusco, a resort keeper in this city, in connection with the "white slave" prosecution of Lena Cohen in New York City.

Sensational testimony was offered showing the extent to which the "white slave" trade has been carried on in this and other cities within the last four years. Fusco said it was still going on, despite the Federal officers. Robinson said:

"Whether or not Pigniulo is guilty, he is the victim of a plot by some of the worst criminals in the country to defame him."

Pigniulo was held in $5,000 bonds for trial. His defense was an absolute denial. Officials from the Department of Justice who attended the hearings said the department was confident of Pigniulo's innocence.

Scarlet-coated huntsmen and champion horses divided honors at the Madison Square Garden Horse Show yesterday, and both furnished plenty of excitement during their respective exhibitions. The huntsmen represented seven of the principal hunts from Canada to Virginia, while the champion horses were representatives of the best trotting and pony breeds in the United States.

There was an appreciable falling off in the attendance last night, as compared to former evening sessions of the present show. The rain also kept down the afternoon crowd to ordinary dimensions. There was, however, no lack of enthusiasm and any specially meritorious work, whether by high steppers or over the jumps, was rewarded with generous cheers.

Much of the interest in the carriage horse classes has been lessened by the continued success of Judge William H. Moore. In addition to owning the biggest stable of harness horses in the world, the owner has surrounded himself with animals of the highest stamp, which have been brought to a wonderful state of perfection by a systematic course of expert training. Up to the close of last night's session Judge Moore's horses had won seventeen blue ribbons and an equal number of minor rosettes. This record has been equaled but once. This was two years ago, when United States Senator C. W. Watson's stable made practically a clean sweep of the harness horse classes. These victories indicate a continuation in the championship classes to-night, as the prize-winning horses will be required to meet only those they have already defeated.

From a spectacular standpoint, the competition for teams of three horses and riders, the latter in regulation hunt uniforms, carried the day. Seven teams answered the call of the trumpeter. The trio of each hunt followed one another over the jumps twice, and presented an attractive appearance, brightening up the sombreness of the ring with their brilliant scarlet riding coats. It was a typical hunting scene, with the Garden decorations harmonizing with the ring proceedings. Each distinctive hunt wore the club colors, while the familiar hunting horns were slung over their shoulders.

A sensation was created during the hunt class by the appearance of Princess Parlaghy, escorted by Gen. Daniel Sickles and accompanied by a royal forester attired in gray and a footman gorgeously clothed in a dark blue uniform covered with gold braid. The party appeared fully conscious of the attention paid to it and divided the honors with the judging of the hunt class.

Lord Decies Gives Cup.

It was announced during the evening session that Lord Decies, himself an officer of the British Army, would present the association with a cup to be competed for by officers of the United States Army at the 1912 Horse Show.

The cup will become the property of the officer winning it twice. It will be known as the Beresford Challenge Cup, and is offered with the object of encouraging the American military riders in improving the breed of their chargers. Lord Decies commented favorably on the improvement shown by Uncle Sam's officers, and predicted a greater measure of success at next year's show.

To E. T. Stotesbury belonged the unique distinction of capturing a double championship. For five days Mr. Stotesbury's horses had been carrying off the highest awards in the trotting horse classes with a regularity that wellnigh extinguished the hopes of his rival exhibitors for a division of the rosettes. Trotting horses do not find much favor with the spectators, and little real interest was shown in these events. The light harness breeding interests, however, made up for this, and those connected with this branch of the horse industry followed the work of the entrants with never-flagging attention.

The usual array of mishaps in the ring kept the spectators in a state of feverish excitement and expectancy. There were five accidents in the ring and one on the outside, all of which, however, passed off without any serious results. Horatio N. Bain of Poughkeepsie, while driving in the championship class for trotters, was thrown out of his wagon. The horse, Francis Bain, dragged the vehicle over, the driver narrowly escaping being hit as it turned turtle. Mr. Bain escaped unhurt, and after the horse was caught by a ring attendant he resumed his seat in the wagon and completed the event. Two horses in the jumping class fell during the competition, but neither rider nor horse received any injuries.

Horse Kicks Woman Spectator.

While waiting for the high jumping contest, T. J. Smith's Credential became restive and made a lunge with his hind feet. At this moment a man and woman were passing in the rear of the kicking horse. The hoofs of Credential struck the woman on the left hip. She screamed from fright, but was quickly led away by her escort before her name could be learned. In order to prevent the possibility of further accidents of this nature ropes were stretched across the promenade during the high jumping event.

One of the most remarkable escapes ever witnessed in a show ring occurred to Charles Utz while riding Aristocrat over the high jump. The bar was placed at 6 feet 6 inches when Aristocrat carried away the two top bars, and as he fell to his knees threw his rider over his head. Utz completed a somersault in his descent, landing heavily on his back. He lay in the tanbark stunned. Several ring attendants ran to his assistance, and it was feared he had broken some bones. He gradually recovered from the effects of the fall, and with assistance limped out of the ring. When it was seen that Utz was not seriously injured the spectators cheered loudly.

Scarcely had the noise of the cheering died away when Jack Hambleton on Hon. Clifford Sifton's Canadian horse Hercules came a bad cropper. The height of the bar was 6 feet 9 inches, when Hercules stumbled over the jump, carrying Hambleton down with him. The horse quickly arose and stepped all around the prostrate rider, but fortunately missed him. It appeared as though Hambleton would be badly injured, and during the excitement a woman in the arena seats fainted. The event was won by Hon. Clifford Sifton's Confidence, which won the same event last year.

STORY OF THE RING.

Many Accidents Marked the High-Jumping Competition.

Three champion horses were selected by the judges yesterday at the Horse Show. While the breeds were not among the most popular with the masses, they carried considerable importance among the horsemen. The events which were finally concluded were ponies in harness and single and pairs of trotting horses. That E. T. Stotesbury, the Philadelphian exhibitor, should obtain the two roadster championships was not in the least surprising, as his entries have during the past week made a clean sweep in the classes in which they have been entered.

In the pony championship class similar conditions prevailed. The premier award went to Master and the reserve ribbon to Masterpiece, both owned and exhibited by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Bowen. The pair are of the famous Mel Valley stock from England, and formed the leaders of the four brought over last year by William Foster. After winning practically every class at the last show Mrs. Bowen purchased the quartet for $20,000, and since that time has had the pony classes at the various shows completely at her mercy. It would be a difficult mater to find better specimens of ponies than the Mel Valley product, and all the finest points of the breed were illustrated in Mrs. Bowen's champion.

The actual list of classes on the programme was somewhat shorter than on the preceding days of the show, but this did not lessen the general interest in the proceedings. In addition the classes of minor importance have been eliminated, and the calibre of the entries showed a marked improvement. This was particularly the case at the afternoon and evening sessions, when several important classes were judged.

One of the important features of the harness horse class was the defeat of the English champion, Mel Valley's King George, a consistent winner at the London Olympia and Dublin shows, including the championships. In the early classes William Foster's invading champion easily outclassed the other entries. The class was open to horses over 14.2 and not exceeding 15 hands. Although a dozen of the finest heavy harness horses in the country were in competition, the event resolved itself into a duel between J. W. Harriman's hackney champion, Lady Dilham, and Mel Valley's King George.

Perhaps no finer sight has ever been witnessed than when the pair of high steppers went through their paces. The English horse looked somewhat coarser than Lady Dilham, which, under the expert handling of Jack Donnelly appeared at her best. Fred Goddard, who drove Mr. Foster's horse, was not able to get quite all that is possible out of King George, and after the judges had ridden around beside the drivers they selected Lady Dilham for the blue. Mel Valley's King George received the red. Judge Moore's Menella and Flourish won the other two ribbons.

Mrs. Paul Moore Wins.

Judge Moore found some consolation by winning the heavy harness classes for horses over 16 hands and the appointment event, with women to drive in addition to the pony class driven by children. In the appointment class his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Paul Moore, repeated the success that marked her initial appearance in the show ring.

Jumpers were kept busy during the three sessions, and more than 250 horses were sent over the jumps. Two accidents marred the jumping in the Corinthian class. In both cases the animals crashed into the fences, and although the mishaps created plenty of excitement no serious consequences followed, both riders and horses escaping. The winner of this class, Lieut. Col. Herbert C. Cox's Goldstone, gave the Canadians another victory.

In the hunt class, for teams of three riders in hunt costume, the first prize went to the Ottawa Hunt, entered by the Hon. Clifford Smith. The Essex Hunt, under the mastership of Frederic Bull, was placed second. Third and fourth prizes went to London Hunt, headed by the Hon. Adam Beck, and Keswick Hunt, with Julian Morris as master. The winning team was composed of the Hon. Clifford Sifton, J. Hamilton, and J. H. White.

With the elimination of the British champion jumping horse Biskra in the high jump the competition was confined to Canadian and American entries. As might be expected, a number of accidents marked the event, and although two threatened to result seriously the contest passed off satisfactorily. Three horses cleared the bar at 6 feet 9 inches, but in attempting 7 feet the trio failed. In considering the form displayed by each of the three survivors the judges selected Confidence, owned by Hon. Clifford Sifton of Canada, and ridden by Jack Hambleton. The same owner captured second prize with Hercules, which threw its rider in attempting the seven-foot jump. The third prize also went to Canada, Crow & Murray's Skyscraper, with W. Law riding. The jumping on the whole was above the average of indoor competitions.

Charles E. Bunn of Peoria annexed the first three ribbons in the class for Shetland brood mares. The entry list was an exceptionally strong one, representing the full strength of the breed in the show. The order of placing the Bunn ponies was Kancette, Nancine, and Gazelle. Harvey S. Ladew of Glen Cove was favored for the reserve ribbon with Linette. In the pony stallion class Horace Junior, exhibited by the Belthorpe Farm, was hard pressed for first honors by Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Sandy Point Confidence. It was nip and tuck between the pair, but Horace Junior finally won out. Irvington Vagabond, from the Irvington Farm, was third, and Mr. Bunn was forced to be content with the white rosette, which went to Leamington.

The Trotting Stallions.

Trotting stallions, 4 years old or over, made an excellent display, and showed the high state of the light-harness breeding in this country. Baron Peter, exhibited by the Elmdale Farm, received the premier award. The son of Peter the Great was shown to advantage, and possessed all the requisites of a trotting stallion. The Moko family was represented in the second award by Mograzia, while Stamboul's son, Sir Robbins, owned and exhibited by Horatio N. Bain, landed third money.

Canadian jumpers figured prominently in the awards for qualified hunters up to carrying 200 pounds to the hounds. Performance over fences counted 60 per cent. in the class. Several horses belonging to the American and foreign army officers competed, and showed improved form over their previous performances. Major Joseph Kilgour of the Canadian Royal Dragoons owned the winning horse, Touraine, which was cleverely ridden by Hughey Wilson. The Viceroy from Cork, entered by Lieut. Col. Cox of Canada, and also ridden by Wilson, made the second best score, while the third and fourth ribbons went to Edwin H. Weatherbee's Taconite and J. J. McDonald's Aconite.

The best horse in the class for thoroughbred green or qualified hunters was Algoma, entered by Blenheim Farm, which possessed plenty of conformation and quality, and made a clean record over the jumps. Miss Celestine Hitchcock's Coronet, ridden by J. Lambert, was a trifle superior to Frederic Bull's Gloversville. The fourth prize went to Major Kilgour's Dictator.

Heavyweight carriage horses occupied the judging ring for nearly half an hour before the officials could agree on the winner. Judge William H. Moore had two entries, Wallenstein and Robinhood, driving the latter himself and turning Wallenstein over to his stable manager, George Chipchase. Judge Moore made a wrong selection, as Wallenstein was placed first and Robinhood second. George Watson drove Florham Tip-Top and captured third prize. J. Campbell Thompson with Chancellor should have been placed better than fourth. After the judging Chipchase told Mr. Thompson that the least he should have got was third, and the expert railbirds agreed with Chipchase.

The Mel Valley family was splendidly represented in the class for ponies in harness. Masterkey, one of the four which were sold to Mrs. Emily H. Bowen last year for $20,000, was the choice of the judges. There was no doubt as to Masterkey's right to stellar honors, as he showed superb action and is built on the most approved pony lines. Robert Beith's Yapham Fashion was second and Irvington Farm's Maid of Irvington third.

Stotesbury Makes Clean Sweep.

The first championship of the show went to Philadelphia. This was for pairs of trotting horses shown before an appropriate rig. E. T. Stotesbury, who has made a clean sweep of the roadster classes, was again successful, taking the championship and reserve, the former with Lugano and Como, and the reserve with Norcata and Ruby. Horatio N. Bain's Francis Bain and Knister Maid were third.

Mrs. W. A. McGibbon's bay mare Rosabel met defeat in the open saddle horse class when Mrs. J. A. McSloy's bay mare Confidante carried off the premier award. Rosabel was not on her best behavior, and in spite of the efforts of her rider performed far below her regular form. On the other hand Confidante was at her best, and made a splendid showing.

It is not often that an amateur driver can carry off two consecutive blues in the first two appearances in the ring. Mrs. Paul Moore, daughter-in-law of Judge Moore, enjoys this unique distinction. After winning her initial class Mrs. Moore drove Lady Seaton for her father-in-law and handled the reins as only an expert can. She displayed good judgment, while Lady Seaton went through her paces with almost regal action and bearing. The second prize went to J. Sumner Draper's Rillington Nimble, driven by Miss Belle Beach. Mrs. Julius T. Walsh's Maid of Honor took third. Mrs. C. Cecil Fetler's Sporting Extra got the reserve.

The second championship of the day was another walkover for the Mel Valley progeny, which was placed first and reserve, and placed Mrs. Bowen's famous ponies in the forefront of ponies in this country. In view of the performances of Master and Masterpiece in the early pony classes there was no surprise when they were placed in this order for the championship.

E. T. Stotesbury annexed the championship prize for single roadsters with appointments. The Philadelphian sent Norcata in the ring with E. W. Robinson in the wagon, and the exhibition of speed and style left no doubt as to the disposition of the tri-colored rosette. During the judging of this class Horatio N. Bain, while driving Francis Bain, was thrown out of his wagon and dragged around the ring. He was unhurt, and after one of the grooms caught the runaway trotter Mr. Bain took his seat again and finished the class.

Boys and girls drove the entries in the class for ponies over 14.2 hands for a cup presented by J. W. Harriman and Reginald C. Vanderbilt. The youngsters made a pretty display and showed expertness in handling the reins. Judge Moore's Princess Cardiff, with Miss J. Whitney driving, was successful.

THE PROBLEM OF THE TRUSTS

Discussed by Eugene V. Debs, Who Says Prosecution of the Trusts Is Futile; That the Clamor Against Them Is Like the Cry of the Weavers and Spinners of England Against the Introduction of Machinery—He Finds a Remedy in Socialism.

By EUGENE V. DEBS.

It is generally conceded that the trust is the logical result of industrial evolution. This was the Socialist contention from the beginning, but it met with strenuous denial until the acceptance of that view was finally compelled by the stern logic of events.

No student of economics and no intelligent observer of events believes the trust can be forced back into its constituent and competing elements to satisfy the cry of a defeated and doomed middle class. Only the academic charlatan and political demagogue, seeking to promote their own selfish ends, yield to the clamor of the small interests that the trust be "smashed" and that we return to "the good old days of competition."

This is but a repetition of the cry of the weavers and spinners of England against the introduction of the machinery which threatened to displace them. It is the protest of the stage coach against the locomotive and of the pony express against the railroad and telegraph.

What is a trust? Not a combination of capitalists, as so many seem to imagine, for the capitalists are only incidental to the trust, as the owner of a mill is incidental to the mill. If all the capitalists who own the trusts were to disappear from the face of the earth the trusts, in all their inherent power and potentiality, would still be here.

The railroads, for illustration, and not the individuals who happen to own them, constitute the railroad trust. The steel mills and their accessories and equipments of machinery for the production of steel, and not the stockholders, constitute all that is vital and essential to the Steel Trust.

The owners of the railroad trust, be it noted, have nothing to do with making or maintaining or operating the railroads, any more than the owners of the Steel Trust have to do with the building of mills, or the making of machinery, or the production of steel.

The trust, therefore, does not consist of a combination of capitalists, but of great industries, growing greater and greater in spite of legislative enactments and judicial decrees, in obedience to the inexorable logic of industrial evolution.

The owners of the trusts, in many instances former competitors and bitter rivals, and not infrequently personal enemies, are now in partnership with each other, co-operating with each other instead of competing against each other, not because their competitive relationship inspired them to fly into each other's arms, but because they were driven to do so as the only alternative to bankruptcy and ruin.

Time was when competition in industry was constructive in its effect upon those engaged in it; now it is destructive, and every wise capitalist knows it and seeks escape from competition in the shelter and security of combination and co-operation.

Industrial competition is as certain to culminate in industrial combination as that the millions of tributaries in the Mississippi Valley are certain to unite in the Mississippi River.

To deal intelligently with the trust we must know, first of all, that the trust is simply the twentieth century tool of production, distribution, and exchange, and from the socialist point of view there is but one question in reference to the trust that confronts the people, and that is, Shall the trust be privately owned by a relative few and operated for their fabulous enrichment, or shall it be owned by the people in their collective, organized, and enlightened capacity and operated for the benefit of all?

And this is the choice between industrial despotism and industrial democracy, that is to say, between capitalism and Socialism.

And it will finally have to be all one or all the other, for there can be no half way ground between two such antagonistic forces as despotism and democracy.

Lincoln's immortal "House Divided Against Itself" speech of half a century ago would, with slight modification, apply perfectly to the present industrial and political situation.

It is urged, of course, by many that we already have democracy, and that we are already a free and self-governing people. What sarcasm this is to intelligent workingmen who realize that the jobs upon which their families, their personal freedom, aye, their lives depend upon, are controlled by others, and that they are absolutely subect to the will, whims, and caprice of those others who, in fact, constitute their economic masters.

From the Socialist viewpoint, therefore, the prosecution of the trusts is pure political buncombe, and this fact, so flagrantly in evidence to the thinking mind and discerning eye, would be apparent to all if so many of the people were not still in their mental childhood.

But the truth is slowly dawning upon the public, forced upon them by the logic of the conditions which surround them, and which are becoming more and more intolerable as the trusts increase in power and tighten their strangle hold upon the people.

And as the people awaken so do their leaders begin to see that light. Successful leaders are wise enough to follow the people. For instance, the following paragraph is to the point:

"Ultimately I believe that this control of corporations should undoubtedly, directly or indirectly, extend to dealing with all questions connected with their treatment of their employes, including the wages, the hours of labor, and the like."

And what Socialist made himself ridiculous by such a foolish utterance? No Socialist at all; only a paragraph from his latest article on the trusts by Theodore Roosevelt. Five years ago, or when he was still in office and had the power, he would not have dared to make that statement. But he finds it politically safe and expedient to make it now. It is not at all a radical statement. On the contrary, it is simply the echo of E. H. Gary, that is to say, John Pierpont Morgan, President of all the trusts.

Mr. Roosevelt now proposes what Bismarck attempted in Germany forty years ago to thwart the Socialist movement, and that is State Socialism, so called, which is in fact the most despotic and degrading form of capitalism.

President Roosevelt, who is popularly suposed to be hostile to the trusts, is in truth their best friend. He would have the Government, the capitalist Government, of course, practically operate the trusts and turn the profits over to their idle owners. This would mean release from responsibility and immunity of prosecution for the trust owners, while at the same time the Government would have to serve as strikebreaker for the trust owners, and the armed forces of the Government would be employed to keep the working class in subjection.

If this were possible it would mark the half-way ground between industrial despotism and industrial democracy. But it is not possible, at least only temporarily, long enough to demonstrate its failure. The expanding industrial forces now transforming society, realigning political parties, and reshaping the Government itself cannot be fettered in any such artificial arrangement as Mr. Roosevelt proposes. These forces, with the rising and awakening working class in alliance with them, will sweep all such barriers from the track of evolution until finally they can find full expression in industrial freedom and social democracy.

In this scheme or State Socialism, or rather State capitalism, Mr. Roosevelt fails to inform us how the idle owners of the trusts are to function except as profit absorbers and parasites. In that capacity they can certainly be dispensed with entirely, and that is precisely what will happen when the evolution now in progress culminates in the reorganization of society.

The trust question will be settled in due time, not in accordance with the preconceived notions or plans of any of us, but in obedience to the laws of evolutionary progress and in harmony with the inexorable logic of events.

Let us now briefly examine some of the legislation enacted ostensibly to restrain and regulate the combination of capital known as trusts. The Sherman anti-trust law was enacted by Congress in 1890. It is no doubt true that a large share of good faith entered into that measure on the part of those who supported it, but a more puerile, silly piece of legislation was never enacted. There is the same political wisdom and constructive statesmanship in that measure that there was in the Pope's bull against the comet.

The Sherman anti-trust law was the first attempt to suspend by legislative enactment the laws underlying our industrial and social development. This measure would have applied with equal force to gravitation or the ebb and flow of the tides.

What combination has ever been restrained under the operation, or more properly, inoperation, of this so-called law? For four years after it was written in the statute books it was a dead letter, and in fact lost to sight until the great railroad strike occurred in 1894, when Judges Grosscup, Woods, and others of the Federal bench made the happy discovery that the Sherman anti-trust law had been enacted for the purpose of restraining workingmen from forming combinations in restraint of trade, and forthwith the leaders of these workingmen were put in jail, and upon the application of these Judges to President Cleveland the regular army was ordered out, Gov. Altgeld of Illinois protesting, to break up the combination of striking employes and restore the rule of the united corporations.

At the same time that the combination of employes was destroyed by the armed force of the Government in pursuance of the decrees of the Federal Judges, the twenty-six railway corporations centring at Chicago were united in a powerful combination in restraint and suppression not only of trade, but of everything else that stood in the way of their interest, but no cognizance was taken by the courts of the despotic power they exercised in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The Federal Judges who construed the provisions of the law were placed upon the bench by the powerful interests that were violating the law, and so it is not in the least strange that only combinations of workingmen were broken up and only their leaders sent to jail.

In all the twenty-one years that the Sherman anti-trust law has been on the statute books, not a single combination of capitalists has been broken up, and not a single capitalist committed to jail under its provisions, notwithstanding they have been violating every section of it ever since it was enacted.

If this fact, coupled with the fact that combinations of workingmen have been repeatedly broken up and their leaders jailed by the Government for the alleged violation of this law, does not go far to demonstrate the supremacy of the capitalist class and the subjection of the working class, class rule, in a word, as maintained by Socialists, I must confess my inability to understand its true signification.

As for the prosecution of the trusts, the reports of which are now occupying so much space in the daily papers, it should not be overlooked that the National election is only a year hence, and this fact will account for the major part of the "prosecution." The rest is due to the enormous fees and perquisites which fall to the elect, who by the grace of the President, whose campaign fund was furnished by the trusts, are commissioned to vault into the arena and slay these same trusts in cold blood.

To me there is something funny in the idea of President Taft, ex-President Roosevelt, Attorney General Wickersham, Special Attorney Frank B. Kellogg, et al., destroying the trusts or restraining their operations within the limits prescribed by law.

The campaigns of both President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt were financed mainly by the trusts. Attorney General Wickersham made his reputation and fortune in the service of the trusts, and is it possible that for a fee from the opposite side he is now going to turn about and betray his former clients?

As for Special Attorney Kellogg, he is not only a trust attorney, but the Congressional investigation of the Steel Trust disclosed the fact that since he has been in the service of the Government and drawing enormous fees for "smashing" the trusts he has also been receiving fees from the Steel Trust for serving the trusts.

With President Taft's own brother as chief attorney for the Sugar Trust and another brother as the personal guest of John Pierpont Morgan, in satin knee breeches, silk stockings, and golden sword, in attendance upon the coronation of a foreign King, it will hardly be expected by any reasonable person that President Taft will make any savage onslaught upon the trusts.

One thing is certain, and that is that the trust question will never be settled upon the basis of the exploitation of the working class. The trust question is above all else a working-class question, and only an enlightened working class can finally settle it.

Every conceivable attempt will be made to control and regulate the trusts and all will prove futile in the end; and yet all these are necessary to open the eyes of the people to what the trust actually is, and to teach them how to deal with it intelligently so as to convert it from a menace into a blessing to society.

The trust is monumental of the fact that competition has run its course in our industrial life, and that co-operation has taken its place as the basis of a more perfectly organized society, a higher social order, and a more advanced civilization.

The millions of workers of all kinds who are employed in these trusts, and who alone are necessary to their operation are organizing industriously and politically to take possession of them in the name of the people—socialize them, in a word—so that all may have the benefit of these modern social agencies of wealth production.

Everything about a trust has been socially produced, and everything about it is socially used, and the character of the trust marks it for social ownership.

We cannot go backward if we would; we are pushed onward by the forces that move society even in spite of ourselves.

As the trusts grow more and more powerful and the puny attempts to shackle them become more and more futile, the only alternative left will be to socialize them, have them owned by the people, and then, and not until then, can they be successfully controlled and regulated by the Government.

All this will, no doubt, seem visionary and in the far distant future to many of your readers, but let me remind them that the changes are now coming rapidly and that what may now appear dreamy and fantastical may also become a realized fact within the next few years.

Who would have been so bold five years ago as to venture the prediction that the leading capitalists would soon call upon the Government to take charge of and regulate their private enterprises, even to the extent of fixing the prices of their products, as E. H. Gary has recently declared himself in favor of doing?

But the controlling factor in the transformation from private ownership to social ownership of the trust, from production for the profit of the few to production for the use of all, is the working class, already drilled by the trusts to work together co-operatively, and now awakening to consciousness of their interests as a class and developing their economic and political power upon that basis, with the one object in view of abolishing the prevailing system of privately owned industry and establishing in its place the industrial democracy in which all the people shall be free to produce what they need to satisfy their needs and wants, and free to enjoy all the blessings of a real civilization.

Hail and Farewell

A new book by George Moore is a literary event, and the appearance of this volume is rendered timely by the presence in New York of tle Irish Players. In several chapters Mr. Moore tells—as only he could tell it—the story of the early days of the Abbey Theatre. "Hail and Farewell" is not a mere volume of reminiscences. It is truth written in the manner of fiction and it is characteristically Moore—brilliant, witty, realistic, masterful, and wholly delightful.

BANKERS INDORSE THE ALDRICH PLAN

NEXT MEETING AT DETROIT

Association Before Adjournment Empowers Executive Council to Fix Date of 1912 Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 24.—With only one dissenting voice, the concluding session of the American Bankers' Convention to-day indorsed the Aldrich plan for currency reform, and, as President Watts expressed it, voiced its confidence in the National Monetary Commission to work out the details of the plan.

Action in regard to indorsing the central bureau for the validation of cotton bills of lading went over to the next convention. Detroit was chosen as the next meeting place. By a vote that was almost unanimous the Executive Council elected Arthur Reynolds of Des Moines Chairman.

During the morning session there developed a strong insurgent movement against the system of rotation in office. Sol Wexler of New Orleans and William George of Aurora, Ill., led the fight, which developed more than a majority of votes, but not the necessary two-thirds required for an amendment to the constitution. The amendment provided that the President should be ineligible to succeed himself before the expiration of a year's time.

The contest of the day centred about the cotton bill of lading proposition. In the absence of Chairman H. Clay Hollister of Grand Rapids, who was unable to attend the convention, Fred I. Kent, Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company, New York, presented the report.

Beginning with the statement that forged bills of lading in circulation have at times seriously threatened the ability of Southern planters and bankers to use valid bills, the report goes into the suggestion for the organization of a central bureau. This question has been agitated among all classes of cotton men on both sides of the Atlantic, and along this line the report says:

"Your committee has been consulted with regard to the formation of a central bureau under auspices of the Liverpool Cotton Conference. All the work has been of an advisory character, but, nevertheless, it has been extremely valuable in reconciling the attitude of the foreign purchaser of cotton bills to that of the home carrier and seller of exchange."

Then the committee arrives at the conclusion, it says, that the absolutely fair working of the central bureau plan is becoming understood.

"The actual working of the central bureau has proved conclusively that it is possible to check up bills of lading with certainty," the report concludes.

Sol Wexler, Chairman of the Southern Committee which opposed the central bureau, made a vigorous fight against adopting the resolutions offered. He asserted that the committee to deal with a question which chiefly concerned the South was composed exclusively of Eastern and Northern bankers, and caused laughter when he declared Chairman Hollister did not know a "foreign exchange paper from The Saturday Evening Post."

Mr. Wexler offered, as a substitute, the resolutions adopted by the recent cotton conference here. The motion was tabled by a viva voce vote.

A. Breton, President of the Louisiana Bankers' Association, made an address in which he said New York was trying to treat the South as England treated New York, by taking action and afterward notifying those most affected.

L. E. Pierson of New York introduced a resolution that the Bill of Lading Committee's report be received, that the committee be continued, and that two Southern bankers, of whom Mr. Wexler was to be one, be added thereto. This was adopted with an amendment offered by John T. Dismukes of Florida that no final action be taken, even by the Executive Council, until the committee reports to the next session of the American Bankers' Association.

The slate of the Nominating Committee went through as offered, William Livingstone of Detroit being elected President, and Charles M. Huttig, Chairman of the Executive Committee, becoming Vice President. J. Fletcher Farrell of Chicago was named Treasurer to succeed Mr. Reynolds.

The report of the Currency Committee prepared by James H. Forgan of Chicago in part follows:

"Your Currency Commission, along with the officers of your association, was called into conference with the National Monetary Commission at Washington on Tuesday, March 28 last, to consider ex-Senator Aldrich's suggestions for monetary legislation.

"At a meeting of the commission held immediately after the conference it was unanimously agreed that the plan suggested by Senator Aldrich is founded on correct principles, and that with further developments in some of its details it can be made thoroughly practicable.

"Subsequently we discussed with the National Monetary Commission every feature of the plan giving our reasons for suggestions made.

"Later our report was published in pamphlet form and circulated among the members of this association. Our recommendations have since been very generally adopted in a revision of the recently published one by Senator Aldrich.

"As a result of the work we thus initiated, followed up by the individual efforts of the members of the committee and Mr Farnsworth, your General Secretary, out of twenty-six State bankers' associations, twenty-nine have passed resolutions at their annual conventions indorsing Mr. Aldrich's plans as revised by us, while of the remaining seventeen State associations two had held their conventions before the plan was brought out, two have not yet held their conventions, and at the conventions of the other thirteen the subject was not considered."

The report was unanimously adopted and the Currency Committee was authorized to continue to represent the association before the National Monetary Commission and Congressional committees.

The single vote to-day at the meeting of the American Bankers' Association against approval of the Aldrich monetary reform plan was cast by Gen. William R. Hamby of Austin, President of the Texas State Bankers' Association.

Mr. Hamby later gave out the following statement as to his position:

"I think that the United States is big enough to assert its financial supremacy, and instead of copying after European systems to maintain one of its own. We have $10,000,000,000 of banking power, and will soon have a banking power equal to that of the rest of the world. I do not believe the Aldrich Central Reserve Association is necessary to bring our financial institutions into closer union.

"The Aldrich plan makes it possible to concentrate the entire banking power of the country under one corporation management, assumes a parental control, and robs the local banks of their individuality and independence, and would be as dangerous as Government ownership of all public utilities. The burden of nearly all said for the Aldrich plan is that we should discuss it along non-partisan lines, yet the organization proposed is political and could not be kept out of politics.

"With its laterals and branches reaching every section of the country under one corporation management once intrenched behind its financial fortifications and its vested rights for fifty years, the Aldrich Bank would be the dominant factor in every political campaign."

GOMPERS ASSAILS BURNS.

Bankers' Association Also Denounced by Federation President.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 24.—Detective Burns was denounced as a victim of mental delusion and the American Bankers' Association was declared to be a body that decent, law-abiding men would not indorse, in a statement that President Samuel Gompers and other labor leaders made at to-day's session of the American Federation of Labor.

The federation adopted a resolution stating that if "the unscrupulous methods" of Burns had been indorsed by the American Bankers' Association this approval was a "reflection upon the intelligence and integrity of that body."

After referring to the indorsement of Burns by the bankers' convention, President Gompers asked, "What body of decent, law-abiding men would give a vote of confidence to the men who indorsed Burns?"

Speaking of Burns as the man who charged the McNamara brothers with dynamiting the Los Angeles Times Building, Gompers declared: "He is a malicious, malignant man who either hunts men as man hunters do in aboriginal countries or he is mentally deluded. As to his charge that attempts have been made to bribe witnesses. I will take my stand with Clarence Darrow that they are altogether false." Gompers declared that the books of the federation were open to Detective Burns, showing the sources of the money for the McNamara defense. "Burns," Gompers continued, "has accused detectives of being the most unscrupulous men that go unwhipped, and they have turned on him and said, 'You're another.'"

Personal difficulty between John Mitchell and Tom Lewis, two leaders of the United Mine Workers, was narrowly averted to-day when the federation delegates clashed on the convention floor.

The trouble was the aftermath of the charge of Mitchell, made recently, that the miners' convention at Columbus was packed. Answering another charge, Lewis took occasion to say:

"Baseless charges have been made against delegates to this convention, and I wish to protest against the injection of personalities when they are without foundation."

Mitchell answered: "I wish to say to Delegate Lewis now, and I wish to state to him that I make my remarks personal, that if he intends to intimate that I told a falsehood when I made my charge that it is still a personal matter and I will stand by it. I can prove every word that I have said to be the truth."

There was a tense moment, and then Gompers took control and trouble was averted.

THE PICKWICK PAPERS
By Charles Dickens

Cecil Aldin's inimitable illustrations are wonderfully well fitted to accompany the adventures of Mr. Pickwick. No more cheering holiday gift can be had this year.

MARIA THERESA
By Mary Maxwell Moffat
8vo. Illustrated. $3.50 Net.

The remarkable personality of the woman who came to be known as the Empress-Queen has been somewhat obscured by the historical importance of the wars in which she was involved. This volume is an endeavor to tell the story of Maria Theresa herself—and diplomatic and military events are dealt with only in so far as they directly influence her life and serve to illustrate her character. It is based more particularly on a study of contemporary letters, memoirs, and other publications, as well as of manuscript documents in the libraries of Great Britain and in the Imperial Archives at Vienna.

TOLSTOY
By Romain Rolland
Author of "Jean Christophe." $1.50 Net.

This sympathetic study of TOLSTOY by his distinguished friend and admirer is, perhaps, the most searching criticism that has been made.

In a volume of splendid insight and wonderful description, M. Rolland has flashed the man TOLSTOY on the canvas for us in a series of rapid, brilliant impressions. Every admirer of the late story-writer and philosopher will feel grateful to M. Rolland on reading this remarkable book, which is at once a personal tribute and a powerful biographical study.

THE ROADMENDER
By Michael Fairless
Holiday Edition. With Colored Illustrations by E. W. Waite. In Box, $2.50 Net.

THE ROADMENDER has become almost a classic since its publication several years ago. No writer has expressed more beautifully a deep love for nature and a constant faith in humanity than the writer of those papers. Regular edition, $1.25.

A Well-Rounded Education

A well-rounded education cannot be obtained in the school-room alone. The boy or girl whose progress is the most rapid will almost always be the one whose reading has been carefully selected at home. The editors of the BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE have rendered this great service to childhood. No wise parent will neglect the opportunity offered by this work to study the disposition and capabilities of his child. In many cases a child's life work may be determined by the possession of these books.

The Wisdom of the World in Simple Language

The simple, clear and convincing style which appeals equally to the adult mind is the secret of the great drawing power of this remarkable work. It quickens and stimulates thought and in a marked degree wakens interest in the world of ideas. Not only facts but ideals are absorbed, and learning made a real delight.

President John H. Finley of the College of the City of New York, in his introduction, says:

"Suppose a boy of ten were to spend fifteen minutes a day in reading these pages, . . . he would at thirteen know more about the earth and the life on it than the wisest men knew a few generations ago."

The Child's Divine Curiosity

When the child begins to ask questions which you find difficult to answer, then it is time to place in his hands the right kind of home reading. The BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE answers all his questions. He will be radiantly happy when he gets it. Give him a volume and time him in devouring the others.

REFEREE FOR SNITKIN.

Landlords Must Give Particulars in Complaint Against the Justice.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court granted yesterday the request of Municipal Court Justice Leonard A. Snitkin, against whom charges are being brought by east side landlords, who are dissatisfied with his procedure in eviction cases, for the appointment of a referee to hear the charges against him, and ordered his accusers to present a bill of particulars.

The proceedings were brought on the instance of Pincus Benenson, a wealthy tenement house owner, who alleges he was humiliated and abused when he went to Justice Snitkin's court to get dilatory tenants evicted. The landlords want Snitkin, whose court on the lower east side is the scene of most of the eviction actions brought in the municipal court, removed from office.

Demurs to Magazine Indictment.

Eugene B. Yates, one of the Directors of the Columbian-Sterling Publishing Company, filed yesterday a demurrer to the indictment charging him with having used the mails to defraud. He alleges that the indictment is not sufficient in law, and that the defendant is not bound in law to answer it.

To-day's Publications Include:—

Ernest Thompson Seton's
"The Arctic Prairies"

Mr. Seton's skill with the pen, the pencil, and the kodak lense is everywhere recognized; he never wielded them better. His narrative of a canoe expedition into the so-called "Barren Lands" o Northwest British America is interesting always, and thrilling often. It was virtually a journey of discovery here recounted under the titles: "Land of the Buffalo," "Land of the Caribou," and "Land of the Musk-ox." The price is $2.50 net; postpaid $2.70.

"The Common People of Ancient Rome."
By Frank Frost Abbott of Princeton University.
$1.50 net; postpaid, $1.65.

He takes you back into the Rome of the Republic and the early Empire. But it is the Rome of everyday, and his Romans are as human to read about as modern Englishmen—not grim ghosts stalking about in white sheet-like togas. Professor Abbott discusses specifically the political, economic, social, and literary and linguistic phases of Roman life, but in such a way as to avoid the very semblance of pedantry, and to embrace all the human aspects of that life.

The Annual of the Society of Illustrators
$3.00 net; postpaid, $3.30.

Contains some fourscore pictures, each by a different member of the Society, and mostly hitherto unpublished. A. B. Frost, Harrison Fisher, Philip R. Goodwin, Henry Hutt, Howard Pyle, Ernest Peixotto, Frank D. Millet, Miss Jessie Willcox Smith, Joseph Pennell, and E. L. Blumenschein are among those represented.

From Ibsen's Workshop

It is in two editions; one in cloth at $1.25 net, and the other in limp leather at $1.50 net.

The CENTURY'S CHRISTMAS

If peace on earth and good will toward men mean anything, they mean the editorial policy of The Century Magazine. The Christmas number is no more full of Christmas spirit than is any number, but that is the spirit of The Century all the year around. This particular Christmas number, however, is rich in stories and articles, making it a magazine for the quiet moments of the Christmas holiday and a magazine for a Christmas present to a friend.

If you like stories read "Sauce Rosemonde," a brilliant little incident of French life told with Gallic vivacity.

If you care for music try "A Christmas Song" by Horatio Parker—who won the $10,000 prize for the best American Grand Opera.

EVERYONE IS READING

THE PRODIGAL JUDGE

By Maria Thompson Daviess
Author of MISS SELINA LUE, THE ROAD TO PROVIDENCE, etc.

Rose of Old Harpeth

Out of the strenuous strife and noisy confusion of modern city life Miss Daviess calls us again to the happiness and peace of her Tennessee valley, and unfolds to us there a love story as ingenuous and sweet as a boy's first kiss under a ruffled sunbonnet. Her Rose is a woman to be loved, indeed, a woman of full-blooming beauty and grace and ineffable charm, and no less a woman to help and serve and shed blessings. She is as wise and as witty as Selina Lue or Mother Mayberry, and her piety is as simple and sincere as theirs. Fragrant as the breeze that shatters a blush rose across a window sill.

Illustrated by W. B. King. $1.25 net.

By May Futrelle

Secretary of Frivolous Affairs

Once in ever so long there comes a romance like In the Bishop's Carriage, The Brass Bowl, or The Circular Staircase, by a writer little known, but so obviously a supremely "good story" that the public with delight fairly jumps to read it. To this small and select group belongs Secretary of Frivolous Affairs.

The Princess

No poem in the English language more perfectly merits publication in separate attractive form than does Tennyson's Princess. It riots in opportunities for the artist, and of these Mr. Christy has availed himself to an unparalleled degree.

The Princess is uniform in size with The Lady of the Lake. The mature quality now appearing in Mr. Christy's work is a source of constant gratification to the discriminating and to friends that know him best. He has never done anything to equal the work for The Princess.

The New Christy-Riley Book

When She Was About Sixteen

By JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

The poem chosen for the latest volume in this popular series is as rich in humor as in romance, and it is highly dramatic, for in four hundred lines Mr. Riley has developed a complete plot, with four fully drawn characters, and sketched in the neighborhood, besides.

Mr. Christy's pictures surpass any that he has ever made for a Riley poem, and the reproductions are larger and better than any heretofore issued in the famous Christy-Riley books.

The Lockerbie Book of Riley Verse

To American readers the name of Riley has long been familiar as that of the poet perfect of our Mid-Western dialect. But to many of Mr. Riley's admirers it will come as a surprise to learn how large a number of non-dialect poems he has written. Just because these poems, of rare and delicate beauty, as they are, have been in a measure obscured by the hardier blossoms of dialect growth, this collection has been made. Collected and arranged by Hewitt Hanson Howland.

The new Adventure of Sherlock Holmes is a thriller

Why should the two mysterious "missionaries" bury Lady Carfax when Lady Carfax wasn't dead? Dr. Watson did not know. Nobody knew but Sherlock Holmes. When the great detective had worked it all out in his old manner, it seemed so foolishly simple to Dr. Watson, just as it has to all of us so many times in the past. "The Disappearance of Lady Carfax" is a real Sherlock Holmes story, in the old, brilliant manner, with a new problem, a new method of solution, and a new thrill at the climax. In the December

THE NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA (11th Edition) consists of 28 volumes of text and an index.

The volumes contain from 960 to 1,060 pages. The whole work contains about 44,000,000 words of text.

There are 40,000 separate articles, 7,000 illustrations in the text, 450 full page plates (many of them coloured) and 569 maps.

The work is based on a new survey of the whole field of human knowledge, and the information is brought up to the summer of 1910.

There were more than 1,500 contributors to the 11th Edition (representing 21 countries), including 599 members of the teaching staff of 81 Universities, 200 Americans, 168 Fellows of the Royal Society and 47 Officials of the British Museum. The editorial staff numbered 64.

The whole work was written and edited at one time, nothing being printed until the text was practically finished. This ensured proper editorial supervision of the work as a whole to the end that the earlier articles should be as up-to-date as the later ones.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition) is now completely published, which means that entire sets (28 Volumes and Index) are being shipped to fill new orders. But if the reader is contemplating giving or acquiring the work before Christmas he should make investigation at once, as it may prove impossible to deliver belated orders until after the approaching holiday.

The Nun of Kent A Drama

By GRACE DENIO LITCHFIELD,
Author of "Baldur the Beautiful," etc.

"In this drama the pure essentials of dramatic writing are rarely blended. . . . The foundation for the stirring play is a pathetic episode given in Froude's Henry VIII. . . . The lines of the poem, while full of thought, are also characterized by fervor and beauty. The strength of the play is centred upon a few characters. . . . 'The Nun of Kent' may be described as a fascinating dramatic story."

Author of "Katrina," "The Wistful Years," etc.
12mo. 350 pages, illustrated. $1.30 net; postage 12 cents

The title gives a distinct clue to the book. Just as the earlier books have dealt with child affection, youthful sentiment, boy and girl attachments and the ripening years, this book deals with full-grown and mature feelings. It has more passion and a firmer grip on life than any of Mr. Gilson's earlier books, and will appeal to a larger audience.

THE ANGLO-GERMAN "CRISIS."

It will be hard to form any clear notion of the extent and nature of the friction between England and Germany, which has so unexpectedly made its appearance, until Sir EDWARD GREY has made the responsible statement announced for Monday. One fact, however, is clear. The new outburst of criticism and crimination in Germany relates to a matter that has been reported by the German Government to be amicably settled. Not only this, but the German Chancellor and the German Minister of Foreign Affairs each stated in the Reichstag on the 9th of November that the settlement was such that "the slate could be cleaned" of all matters affecting the relations of Germany with Great Britain. And this statement, even more than the agreement with France over Morocco, was made the ground of the peevish attacks which so angered the Chancellor. It now appears that on the 17th, hardly a week from his first statement and that of his chief, Herr VON KIDERLEN-WAECHTER, the German Foreign Minister made another statement to the Budget Committee of the Reichstag of a very different temper. In substance it was that Sir EDWARD GREY had undertaken to interfere in the discussions between Germany and France, and had been repulsed in a somewhat brusque manner. He also alluded to the speeches of the British Premier, Mr. ASQUITH, and of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. LLOYD-GEORGE, as calculated to render adjustment more difficult. This "indiscretion" of the German Foreign Minister has created great excitement in Germany, and some in England. In the latter country it is aggravated by criticism of the Government for venturing close to the verge of war, with no adequate preparations of the army or navy for that terrible outcome.

The immediate cause of the present disturbance of public sentiment in both countries is, clearly, the talk of the German Foreign Minister to the Budget Committee. Why did he make it? Why was it, contrary to German custom, given to the public? It related solely to the past. What the various members of the British Government said or did, officially or unofficially, did not prevent the understanding with France. It did not—according to the German Chancellor's statement in the debate of the 9th—influence the conduct of the negotiations or induce the German Government in any degree to change its course. If in reality there was anything on the part of the British Government that fairly could be regarded as offensive, or improper, it was either ignored or condoned by the German Government in a spirit that has won for that Government the frank respect of other nations. Why is the matter now reopened?

We are persuaded that it may turn out to be the result of Herr VON KIDERLEN-WAECHTER's rather peppery temperament. He has shown in his recent career several instances of lack of reserve and self-control and a tendency to arbitrary and harsh procedure. Some of his own countrymen have charged him with responsibility for the sending of the Panther to Agadir as the initial step in negotiations with the French Government, and it has been intimated that his superiors, though they could not disown his policy, accepted the consequences of it with great reluctance, and made strenuous efforts to overcome its unfortunate influence. Although he joined the Chancellor in his assurance to the Reichstag that there was now a good prospect that the "slate would be cleaned" of differences with Great Britain, he may have been tempted to brag a little of the firmness he says he showed and of the wholesome effect he says it produced. If so, it was not a statesmanlike way of dealing with such matters.

The final result, however, may be to promote peace rather than hostility. Both Germans and English may be sobered by a glimpse of the peril to which they were so near. If it be true that war was definitely threatened, on the one hand or the other, plainly it would have been a causeless war, for the matter involved has been peacefully and honorably settled. Bad as war is at best, a causeless one is appalling to think of. This incident may serve, like a lightning flash on a dark and dangerous road, to reveal to the rulers and the peoples of both countries the tremendous responsibility that rests upon those in control. Really any war between Germany and Great Britain would be as much a crime as a blunder. There must be sense and conscience on both sides that will prevent it.

END OF THE BEATTIE CASE.

Four months and six days after he murdered his young wife on Midlothian Turnpike HENRY BEATTIE was put to death yesterday by process of the law. His crime was exceptionally brutal and revolting, and there has been little or no doubt of his guilt from the first. His trial was fair and conducted with the gravity and dignity so often lacking in trials for murder in the North. The rustic jury retired prayerfully and, after short deliberation, rendered its verdict of guilty. The Supreme Court of Virginia dismissed the appeal without waste of words, and Gov. MANN refused to mitigate the punishment provided by the law. In the fortnight before the execution of the sentence a few sentimental persons urged clemency on account of the youth of the prisoner, and some doubt was expressed as to his guilt, as he proclaimed his innocence almost to the last, and the evidence against him was circumstantial. But the doubt was removed by his confession, witnessed by two ministers of the Gospel, at the last moment.

Capital punishment for murder still prevails in most of the States of the Union and in most of the countries of the civilized world. That there is an ever-growing sentiment against it is not to be doubted, but the arguments against it thus far have not been convincing. While the law stands it should be rigidly enforced. There cannot be two sane opinions on that point. The Beattie case in Virginia has been a noteworthy illustration of the efficiency of the jury system and the prompt administration of criminal law. The value of circumstantial evidence has been once more manifested. As for the belated confession, some persons will not hesitate to say that, having protested his innocence to the last moment, BEATTIE might better have withheld it and left, for the honor of his family, the benefit of a doubt. But that is not the spiritual point of view, and the confession was undoubtedly made under clerical influence. In the brief statement he signed the condemned man declared that he believed he was at peace with God and was soon to pass into His Presence. A great majority of his family's neighbors and friends share his belief, and the bearers of his name must live down the additional shame he felt compelled to place upon them. Probably it is slight. The community in which he dwelt and the whole country believed that he was guilty.

MESABA AND ALASKA.

It is the privilege of an American freeman to hold any view he likes of the transactions between Mr. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER and the MERRITT family. It appears from the testimony of the MERRITTS that they were many years ago possessors of valuable iron ore beds in the Mesaba district, for the development of which they had built a railroad. They had not capital enough to make their ore bed properties available, and applied to Mr. ROCKEFELLER for a loan. They borrowed of him in all $900,000. Later there was a dispute, followed by litigation, accusations, and, finally, a settlement. The MERRITT brothers admit that they had not money enough to carry on the suit against Mr. ROCKEFELLER, and accepted the terms advised by their lawyer. These allegations, brought out in the testimony before the Stanley Committee, created a sensation. ALFRED and LEONIDAS MERRITT told the committee that Mr. ROCKEFELLER had cruelly oppressed and wronged them, that he had by means of his loan and the resulting settlement of the litigation ousted them from control of the immensely valuable ore lands, and got them into his own possession. In eliciting this testimony Chairman STANLEY of the committee declared that he was performing the greatest public service of his life, a service to "humanity."

Mr. ROCKEFELLER, who is also deeply interested in humanity, uplift, and all that sort of thing, made his contribution to the cause yesterday. He supplied for publication a letter signed by the MERRITTS, twenty-one of them in all, in which they accepted the settlement made in 1897, declared their belief that there had been no misrepresentation or fraud committed by Mr. ROCKEFELLER or his agents, and that they withdrew all such charges and claims and exonerated Mr. ROCKEFELLER. This puts the matter in a light very different from that cast upon it by the testimony of the MERRITTS. Chairman STANLEY had possession of this letter at the time the MERRITTS were testifying. Deeply interested as he is in humanity, he did not think it necessary to let the exonerating letter go out at the same time with the inculpating testimony. Probably he thinks Mr. ROCKEFELLER inhuman, and therefore the presentation of his side of the case is not necessary to the service of "humanity." He might plead, also, that this is the approved method with muckrakers. Some of that noble band have come to be recognized by the public as the greatest perverters of truth and misrepresenters of facts now at large. Without the letter of retraction and exoneration signed in 1897, of course the record of the committee was incomplete, and the truth but imperfectly known. However, Mr. STANLEY probably knows how the cause of humanity may best be served.

Whatever may be thought and said about the Rockefeller loan, and its result, there is one aspect of the matter which teaches a little lesson of its own, useful because of its bearing upon the subject of conservation. Without the help of Mr. ROCKEFELLER or some other capitalist, the ore beds would not have been developed. The MERRITTS had not money enough to carry out the work. In control of these iron ores they would have been pioneers in the great work of conservation, as that word has come to be understood in our time. In Alaska conservation means keeping the coal in the ground for fear somebody will make money by mining it. If they had been unable to interest Mr. ROCKEFELLER or some other capitalist in their iron ore properties, the MERRITTS would have been conservers of that type. The deposits of iron ore would have remained undeveloped. Secretary FISHER, who knows something about Alaska, said to the National Waterways Commission on Thursday, speaking of water-power rights: "The net public loss through the non-use of these natural resources is quite as great as the loss through their misuse."

The loss to the people of Alaska through the non-use of the coal under the soil of that territory has been enormous. They have suffered privation, they have paid enormous prices for coal brought in from British Columbia and elsewhere, and the development of the resources of the territory has been hindered. This is conservation with a vengeance. In the judgment of the political conservationists it is better that the people of Alaska should freeze to death than that a profit should be made on private capital invested in coal mining. The cruel and unnatural behavior of Mr. ROCKEFELLER in advancing money to the MERRITTS for railroad and other development in connection with their iron ore beds suspended the application of this conservation policy in the Mesaba district.

THE COMMERCE COURT'S "RECALL."

The Journal of Commerce learns from Washington that a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee has drafted a bill for the disestablishment of the Court of Commerce which is certain to be introduced, and which has "almost an assurance of passage." Even the Senators who favored the erection of the Court are said to be disappointed in its rulings. Progressive Republicans and advanced Democrats alike are against the Court, whose only supporters are ultraconservatives under suspicion of association with the President. The prospects in the House are said to be better than in the Senate, so that the alternatives before the President are either the veto of the bill or the sacrifice of the Court.

This is in accordance with the temper of the times, but has its disadvantages in case the decisions thus appealed from are correct in principle. The old-fashioned way is that now being followed, namely, to appeal, and to abide the appeal. The proposal to abolish the Commerce Court rather than to await the revision of the Supreme Court assuredly denotes impatience of deliberation rather than confidence that the Commerce Court is in error in its decisions. This inference is all the stronger because the proposal to abolish the Commerce Court is unaccompanied with any reasoned statement of the cause of dissatisfaction with its action. It has rendered decisions with exceptional promptness, and with reasons which nobody has answered. Its efficiency, in fact, is the cause of its being attacked, since it has repeated its offense. Since the decision that the Inter-State Commerce Commission had no right to legislate as it did in the establishment of zones, the Inter-State Commerce Commission has reheard the very important citrus fruit case on the order of the Commerce Court, and has been reversed in the assumption of jurisdiction over switching lines as common carriers. Altogether the Commerce Court has granted eight of thirteen applications for reconsideration of the action of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and has made five final decisions adverse to the Commission as compared with four in its favor.

All these final decisions except one have been appealed to the Supreme Court, so that the merits of the case between the Court and the Commission may be said to be in abeyance. It cannot be said that there is any presumption in favor of the Commission, for notoriously it has been unfortunate in its differences of opinion with the Supreme Court. Neither can it be said as yet that there is any presumption in favor of the Commerce Court, which is too young to have established its place in public confidence except in so far as its action proves that it is fulfilling the exact functions designed by its creation. It is providing swift and experienced judgments regarding the Commission's rulings, and it was argued that the Commission might fare better with a Court for these cases specifically than with a court devoted to general law. The Commission has grown steadily in public esteem with its own experience and increasing soberness of action. Presumably the same experience may lie before the Commerce Court. It has been said that the Commission required twenty-five years to become respectable, so little was it esteemed before it found itself. The Commerce Court equally may grow in public favor if allowed to live so long. The fact that its life is threatened does not prove that it is unworthy to live. It shows rather that it has found work to do and is doing it. The sort of work it is doing can be learned better from the decisions of the Supreme Court than by either the debates or the votes in Congress.

THE PHONOGRAPH AS AN ACTOR.

Zealous producers of theatrical plays in the past have been at a greater expense to produce the cries of rebellious citizens behind the scenes, the sounds of conflict, the howling of wolves in the desert, the distant strains of song—in short, all the supernumerary noises that heighten the dramatic illusion—than they are put to in this era of applied science. It is an open secret now that the phonograph plays its humble but useful part in the theatre. The street cries are not produced, as they were, by the prompter or one of his assistants, but by the carefully prepared talking machine in the wings. When we have the battle of Agincourt again, or the funeral of JULIUS CAESAR, the shouts and howls of the sturdy yeomen of HENRY V., or the inflamed citizens of Rome, will be supplemented by the cries of many more, reproduced mechanically. Perhaps, with this improvement, the visible mob can be induced to exercise its multitudinous voice a little less strenuously. Hitherto the citizens and soldiers have often overdone the noise. The illusion of witnessing an ancient Roman riot from a twentieth century orchestra chair has been destroyed. The clamor of the mob should be acting quite as much as the passion of the patriot. A phonograph, remotely placed, will act its part better than a company of supernumeraries devoid of the sense of proportion.

Hereafter DAVY CROCKETT's wolves, if they are ever revivified on the stage, will express their fury and their hunger to the audiences by means of the perfected phonograph. There are few sounds this machine cannot record and reproduce fairly well, and for theatrical purposes the distant tramp of soldiers, the whistling of the wind, can be produced by this simple means, though the thunder may be somewhat beyond the phonograph's capacity. We have more than a suspicion that many of the happiest illusions in current plays are thus produced, and we are confident that the phonograph has gone on the theatrical stage to stay. Of course, everybody knows how it has been used to enhance the effect of some of the moving-picture shows, but its substitution for "extra people," old-fashioned wind machines, and other devices in the regular theatres deserves a note of comment.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Questions Needing Answers.

For the second time within a few months there is something like compulsion to ask the decidedly disquieting question whether a chance-gathered crowd in one of the better parts of New York City is emphatically, and on occasion violently, antagonistic to the law as represented by the police in the exercise of their legitimate functions.

That such should be the case in the slums would not be very surprising—especially to people who do not know much about the tenement districts and imagine them to be largely inhabited by professional criminals, openly at war with society. Thursday's little riot, however, occurred on Fourth Avenue, near Twenty-eighth Street, which is not a slum, and those whom a highway episode attracts can fairly enough be considered representative citizens of the metropolis.

Yet the big crowd which quickly assembled there when a woman protested against the abuse of a horse and caused the arrest of the man who was doing it, had no admiration for her courage and no sympathy with her indignation. It had attention and interest, apparently, only for the fact that a man had been arrested, and it immediately proceeded to show that it resented the arrest by attacking the policeman and the woman and by trying to rescue the first prisoner and two others whom it soon became necessary to make.

The mob did not, indeed, go to any desperate lengths, and it was repulsed before its members had seriously hurt anybody or themselves suffered any grave injury. The disquieting feature of the case is that among the hundreds of people who hurried up to see what was going on there was not one to take the side of the law in any efficient way, while there were many who were willing to risk their heads certainly, and their lives more than possibly, in an effort to thwart the police in the performance of their duty.

This activity simply could not have been the result of a belief that the teamster was being badly used and that the woman's interference with his management of his own horse was meddlesome and officious. That may or may not have been true, but the crowd couldn't have known whether it was or not, and evidently did not care. If the crowd was not instinctively "against the Government," what was it, and if that really was its attitude—if that is the attitude of New York's "man in the street"—what explains the phenomenon, who is to blame for it, and what will be its results?

Getting Down to Business.

It begins to look as if something in the way of reducing the price of living were going to be accomplished, if not directly, at least indirectly, by the Mayor of Indianapolis. The mere fact that he was sending out into the country, buying foods of various kinds from the producers, and selling them at cost plus freight to his fellow-townsmen, has not struck us as a solution of the great problem, for very obviously this was not "business"—not an operation that anybody could conduct on a large scale or for long.

Mayor SHANK acted in an emotional, rather than in a practical, way, for he had made himself, in effect, a middleman doing for nothing legitimate work advantageous to producer and consumer alike—work for which, as a matter of fact, both of them are willing, as they should be, to pay reasonable compensation. It was evident that as soon as the Mayor tired of performing this unrequited task he would drop it, and as nobody else would take it up, the commission merchant had little reason to be alarmed.

But the Mayor did accomplish something after all. He revealed to the inhabitants of Indianapolis, not that the middleman is useless, but that there are too many middlemen and that for that reason or because they charge higher prices for their services than the services are worth, it may be possible to eliminate some of them and to cut down the profits of the others. So the Indianapolitans are hopefully undertaking the organization of district societies, with agents to do the buying and distribution of foods to the members of each.

The expectation is that thus will they get what they want more cheaply and at the same time enable the producer to make certainly no less, and perhaps a little more, on what he raises. The plan ought to work, and perhaps it will, for there is nothing intrinsically impracticable in it, but the failures of such co-operative movements have been much more numerous than their successes. The middleman, of course, remains, as he always will to whatever extent producers and consumers are disinclined or incompetent to do the work of collecting wares from the former and carrying them to and distributing them among the latter. Somebody must do that work, and it is not necessarily profitable for the farmer to take his crops to market and sell them at retail, or necessarily economical for the householder to go himself to original sources for his food and carry it home in his own basket.

Latin Is All Right for Prescriptions.

Those of our correspondents who are debating the Latin—or near-Latin — medical prescription are worrying themselves over a question long since settled. Whether the patient does or does not "know what he is taking" is a matter of no great consequence, one way or the other. The doctors have vastly exaggerated the benefits that come to them from not knowing, as have some patients the safety that lies in observing the nature of the remedies they are taking. What is important, however, and very important, is that prescriptions should be so written that the pharmacist who fills it, no matter what the language he speaks, should be able to know just what it is that the doctor has ordered.

The so-called Latin prescription serves this purpose admirably—provided the doctor writes words instead of making hasty scrawls, the interpretation of which is more or less a product of guessing, intuition, and luck.

And prescriptions are for the layman mysterious screeds much more because of the contractions and arbitrary symbols they contain than because of their approximation to Latin. Anybody who really wants to know the constituents of his medicine can, by half an hour's study of the subject learn to solve with ease every one of these puzzles, and thereafter he can pose as profoundly wise under the admiring gaze of such relatives and friends as have not themselves taken this royal road to learning.

NOT W. FARRAR'S BROTHER.

F. P. Farrar of London No Relation of the Bishop of Antigua.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to correct the error of your London correspondent, who in to-day's issue, in writing of the disappearance of the Rev. F. P. Farrar, mentions his being a brother of the Right Rev. Walter Farrar, Bishop of Antigua. Bishop Farrar is not a son of the late Dean Farrar of Canterbury, and is no relation whatever of that distinguished clergyman.

Bishop Farrar's father was the late Archdeacon Thomas Farrar of British Guiana, who, up to the time of his death, was rector of the Cathedral and Parish Church of St. George, Georgetown, Demerara. I knew the Archdeacon and his son, the present Bishop of Antigua, personally, for I served under the former as lay reader of the cathedral. Walter Farrar was, up to August, 1895, the year I left that colony for Jamaica, curate of St. Paul's parish in the east coast of Demerara. He was born in that colony and educated there, but received his theological training at Codington College, Barbados.

The late Bishop Austin of British Guiana and the Farrar family were closely related, and it was a most unprecedented circumstance that the Bishop, who lived to the advanced age of 84, had baptized, confirmed, admitted him to holy orders, married him to his wife, and, just before his death, baptized his first child.

W. E. G. CULLINGFORD.

One-Cent Postage on Letters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have in your issue of Nov. 24 a letter from "Satisfied," asking who wants one-cent postage.

One would judge from the letter in question that your correspondent wrote several letters in the course of the year, and that he was having to pay extra price for his rural papers that must come from the Canadian Provinces—that being the only way I can see that he should be annoyed by the second-class question.

There happen to be in little New York, and even among my limited acquaintances, men in business who mail on an average 100 letters a day. In the course of, say, ten years, the length of time I've been in business, the saving, if I had only paid 1 instead of 2 cents, would have been considerable, and, incidentally, it would have been the only profit, so close is the margin on which the business has to be conducted.

If "Satisfied" can positively assure me that the Government would lose money if it allowed me to write those 100 letters daily to New Yorkers for 1 cent I shall withdraw my request to my Congressman, and while I cannot promise to be satisfied, I won't kick any more for the penny postage. CARLOS ABELL.

New York, Nov. 24, 1911.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Just to corroborate "A Patient Sufferer," I want to say that the "high instep" story of one of my friends is good for one hour at least four times per annum. When she turned 60 I said: "Now there will be a surcease." Alas! No. Her daughter has taken up the theme on her own account; her visits to all the shoe stores; her inability to be fitted in a medium priced shoe; the shoe clerk's despair as he always tells her, "Madam, we have nothing in stock to fit so perfect a foot under $12," is told again and again. I am able to contain myself because it amuses me to see how she enjoys herself. So very little makes her very, very happy. Truly, no other feature, however perfect, makes the possessor so vain as a high instep. TRUE TREAD.

School of Social Studies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, Robert P. Green, is in error with regard to the corps of lecturers now being formed in the "School of Social Studies" of the Laymen's League for Retreats and Social Studies at 140 Nassau Street. These lecturers will not be "paid by the league" or by any one else. The distinctive feature of the "Social Studies" work of the league is that it is volunteer work. No one receives or will receive any compensation for services—neither the lecturers conducting the classwork in the school nor the lecturers who will be sent out by the league after their training course.

The Thought Never Occurs to Him.

From The Outlook of Nov. 25.

In passing, we may note that one of the amusing features of the prominence which the daily newspapers, especially of New York City, have given to Mr. Roosevelt's article is the expressed fear, in some cases professed, in some cases, we suppose, genuine, that in publishing this editorial at this time Mr. Roosevelt in some mysterious manner has put himself on the list of possible Presidential candidates. Those who really know Mr. Roosevelt's mind know that he is not a Presidential candidate, that he does not desire to be such a candidate, and that the thought of such a candidacy never occurs to him in his discussions of questions of public and National interest.

ZANGWILL'S PASSPORT VIEWS

Glad That America Is Taking Up the Issue with Russia.

The National Citizens' Committee which is arranging the mass meeting to be held at Carnegie Hall on Wednesday, Dec. 6, received this letter yesterday from Israel Zangwill, the Jewish writer and Zionist:

Far End, East Preston, Sussex, England.
Nov. 16, 1911.

Dear Sir: I am delighted to learn of the formation of the National Citizens' Committee. This seems to mean business. America has been sitting down too long under a discrimination among her citizens which is an affront to the very idea of a republic. It is scandalous that the diseases of the old world should be thus forced upon the new. It is perfectly true that England is also enduring this insult, but then England is still part of the old world, and its Constitution was not created under that vivifying influence of nobler ideals which moulded the Constitution of America. Nevertheless, it remains a public scandal that even at a time of Anglo-Russian entente it is impossible for an English-born Jew to move freely through Russia. I am perfectly certain that if the question had come up in the days of Palmerston he would have found a short cut through all Russia's diplomatic delays. But England is now losing her old instinct for freedom and justice. All the more, therefore, does it behove America to step forward and be the torchbearer to mankind. Sincerely yours, ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

DEMOCRATIC PLANS FOR 1912

Committee to Fix Convention Date on Jackson Day, Jan. 8.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Nov. 24.—The time and place for holding the Democratic National Convention will be decided by the Democratic National Committee in Washington at noon on Jan. 8, Jackson Day, according to an announcement made to-day by Norman E. Mack, Chairman of the committee.

Roses for County Clerk Schneider.

County Clerk William F. Schneider celebrated a double holiday at the Court House yesterday. It was the forty-seventh anniversary of his birth and the twenty-fifth anniversary of his wedding. When he came to his private office yesterday morning he found a deputation of his subordinates waiting for him, headed by Col. Edward Atkenson, bearing a bunch of American Beauty roses. Col. Atkenson told Mr. Schneider how highly he was respected by the men of the County Clerk's office. A messenger was sent to the Schneider home, 6 East 131st Street, bearing a bouquet of roses to Mrs. Schneider.

THE ROCKEFELLER PEDIGREE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At last we find where the compilers of the Rockefeller royal pedigree obtained their data. In a recent communication of Elroy M. Avery, dated Cleveland, Nov. 17, 1911, and published in The Boston Evening Transcript Nov. 22, 1911, that gentleman disclaims the credit of having "given out" the said pedigree. He says it was simply abridged from a pedigree of "The Averys of Groton," published by Homer D. L. Sweet of Syracuse in 1894. He further says that Mr. Sweet copied it by permission from a work entitled the "Williams-Wadsworth Genealogy" by Alexander Hamilton Wright, New Haven, 1887. It appears in Part Second of that work, Pages 24 and 25. "XXIX" deals with Thomas, third Earl of Lincoln, and commencing on line sixteen we find "Another daughter, Susan, married John Humfrey, Esq., Deputy Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Company." In footnote No. 1, (p. 24,) is given as authority "Collins Peerage, 1812, Vol. II., pp. 181-216, and Burke's Peerage and Baronetage."

As I pointed out in my article in THE TIMES Oct. 10, 1911, Collins says on p. 200: "Susan, to * * * Humphreys of the County of Kent, Esq." As I then pointed out Edmondson in his "Baronagium Genealogicum," Vol. II., p. 100, says "Susan mar. * * * Humphreys of Kent, Esq.," and Jacobs, Vol. I., p. 485, says: "Susan to * * * Humphreys of the County of Kent, Esq." On p. 25, "Williams-Wadsworth," Part II., Susan is married to "John Humprey, Esq." No dates are given, nor are any English antecedents quoted. Besides all this what disposition does Mr. Avery intend to make of the extract from the Marriage Licenses, Bishop of London, Hasliean Collection, Vol. 26, p. 144, "Thomas Sewell of St. Botolph, Aldgate, London, gent., and Susan Humfrey of same, widow of John Humfrey, at St. Botolph, af'sd, Sept. 10, 1624."

Mr. Avery says this pedigree revised, corrected, and certified by the Heralds College, is to appear in his new work "The Groton Avery Clan," now in press. I sincerely hope he will give us the date of the marriage of Thomas, third Earl of Lincoln, to Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of Sir Henry Knevit of Charlton, County Wilts. I have hunted for that, and the dates of the births of his children in vain; there are two parishes called Charlton in Wilts, one, "Charlton, near Marlborough," the parish register of which only dates back to 1695, and "Charlton, near Malmesbury," the register of which dates back to 1661. Thomas, third Earl of Lincoln, was married about 1590, and we all know that it is usual for a bride to be married in her own parish church. No pedigree can be complete that lacks dates, and it is of the utmost importance that we should know the date of Lady Susan Clinton's birth, her alleged marriage to John Humfrey, and the dates of the births of her first four children, viz., John, Ann, Dorcas, Sarah.

I have no animosity or prejudice in the matter. I simply want the facts and dates. WHARTON DICKINSON.

The Proofreader's Woes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Touchin' on and appertainin' to" the thoughtlessness or ignorance of the typewriter girl—there are others. Every proofreader will tell you of the apparent stupidity of men who are setting type, and they don't have to struggle with shorthand characters either. "Christian workers" was rendered "Austrian monks." Speaking of certain provisions of the law, the editor wrote "provisions themselves." It happened that the paper had a canned goods department—a trade paper—and the intelligent compositor who had been with the publication for some time set up "poisonous tomatoes." "Red-handed" appears as "red-headed"; "for instance" as "for instant." And the men who do this get $20 to $25 or more per week.

But I cannot account for so much bad spelling as may be seen in any business office. It does seem as though everybody ought to be able to spell, from the fact that everybody reads a newspaper twice a day. Why can't they tell from the very looks of a word when it is misspelled? R. A. DIX.

Carelessness with Dynamite.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While seated at the breakfast table this morning and reading the letter of "H. E. B." relative to the removal of the restrictions on dynamite stores within the city limits by the Municipal Explosive Commission, a premature dynamite explosion occurred in a small house erected in the middle of West Seventy-second Street, near Columbus Avenue, carrying death and menacing the lives of hundreds of girls employed in the neighborhood, as well as vast damage to buildings.

Who is responsible for this gross negligence and loss of life? Truly "H. E. B.'s" letter came as a warning that must be heeded.

GREAT CELEBRATION OF TREATY OF GHENT

United States, Canada, and England Will Co-operate in Erection of Permanent Memorials.

BRIDGE TO SPAN THE FALLS

Observances to Go On for Three Years and Public Work Planned May Take Generations to Finish.

The elaborate plans which the National Committee for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of peace among English-speaking peoples is making to commemorate the signing of the treaty of Ghent in 1814 were described in detail yesterday afternoon by the heads of the organization's various sub-committees at a public meeting in the Lawyers' Club, 120 Broadway. The celebration will take place, according to present plans, in the United States, Canada, and England during the years 1914, 1915, and 1916.

Former Ambassador Oscar S. Straus presided at the meeting and John A. Stewart, who is Chairman of the organization's Executive Committee, read a letter from Premier Borden of Canada pledging co-operation. Mr. Stewart also described the various activities which are going on in this country, in Canada, and in England to make the celebration a success.

"A bill for an appropriation for this international celebration will soon be introduced into the Canadian Parliament," said Mr. Stewart. "Mayor Gaynor has appointed a committee headed by J. Pierpont Morgan in this city, to take charge of the local celebration here. There will be simultaneous celebrations in Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and other cities. The plans which we have in mind for the celebration are so comprehensive that it will require the work of several generations and the expenditure of $150,000,000, perhaps, to carry them out completely. T. Kennard Thomson has already drawn a plan for a memorial bridge of substantial masonry which we are going to build over the Niagara River to connect this country and Canada. The reason that we have started to make our plans and complete our organization so far ahead of time is that we are not planning a celebration of mere pageantry, but the erection of many permanent and costly memorials, including the reservation of miles of public lands along the Canadian and American frontiers."

William H. Short, representing the Committee on International Organization, described the public interest which the plan has aroused in England.

"Earl Grey himself, it is understood, has expressed a willingness to be head of the English committee for the celebration," said Mr. Short. "And William E. Howland, our committee's Chairman, has received letters from several wealthy English ladies saying that they are willing to buy property in England on which to erect a suitable memorial of the Ghent treaty and to present it to a responsible international society."

Andrew B. Humphrey, Chairman of the Committee on Memorials, said that the contemplated memorial bridge across the Niagara River would probably be built of granite faced with concrete.

"According to the plans which Mr. Thomson has already drawn up," said Mr. Humphrey, "the bridge will consist of six spans, 300 feet apart, with memorial towers at each end. The river is 50 feet deep and borings will be necessary to find bed rock. The bridge may be built across the Niagara gorge or near Queenstown. But no site can be chosen until the question is further discussed with the Canadian authorities. During the visit which our committee recently paid to the Canadian border towns to discuss the plan, we found no antagonism anywhere, and indeed much enthusiasm. Canada has been far ahead of this country in obtaining public reservations along the river front, and our committee expects that the permanent memorial plans will include an international park along the Niagara River which will not be equaled in beauty on this continent outside of the Yellowstone."

George F. Kunz, in describing the plans for the local celebration in this city, said that his committee had decided not to have any "great military or naval display."

"As far as the celebration in this city is concerned, there will be merely official escorts of troops and marines," said Mr. Kunz. "A Temple of Peaceful Arts is also to be erected in this city, the funds being raised either by public subscription or by the State. In this temple will be exhibits of lighting, telegraphy, &c., and histories of all inventions, also lecture halls, an extensive library and a museum, and models of different kinds. It will be open and free to the public and especially to workingmen.

"A Temple of Peace will also be erected with offices for all the peace societies of this country and quarters to entertain representatives of foreign peace societies as at a club. The public schools, churches, and theatres will be asked to co-operate with us with classroom work, sermons, and the production of suitable plays.

"There will be a street parade of an international character, but only a few representatives of each nation will be in line. The King of England will be invited. He probably won't come. But we hope that the Prince of Wales will come. The chief celebration will take place on Feb. 17, 1914, and we hope that every one will stop work simultaneously for five minutes on that day. Senator Root has suggested that every one spend the five minutes silently contemplating the thought of international peace. But our committee suggests that it might be preferable for every one in all three countries during the five minutes to express the peace idea by the singing of some suitable song."

William Curtis Demorest, Chairman of the Finance Committee, said his committee wasn't able to report just yet. James L. Wandling, the Treasurer, reported that the committee had already received $885 in contributions, of which $585 had been spent, leaving $300 in the treasury.

An offer of a benefit for the celebration from Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sothern was declined. A resolution was offered by Marcus M. Marks and passed by the 200 members present for an expression of thanks to United States Senator Root for his co-operation in the celebration plans.

ORDERS ELEVATED REPAIRS.

Commission Hearing Dec. 6 About New Subway Elevator at 181st Street.

The Public Service Commission issued yesterday a number of orders for the improvement of the service on the rapid transit lines of the city. A new station must be erected on the Second Avenue elevated line at 105th Street and must be in order by Oct. 1 next year. A new stairway must be built at the northwest corner of the Christopher and Grenwich Street station of the Ninth Avenue elevated, which must be ready for use by May 1.

Albert Warren Ferris, President of the State Commission in Lunacy, has requested that the 116th Street crosstown line be extended for another block to the corner of Pleasant Avenue, to be within 60 feet of the Ward's Island ferry. The complaint was sent to the receivers of the Metropolitan Street Railway.

The Interborough was asked yesterday to consider the complaint of F. A. Molitor with reference to "obnoxious" signs directly in front of the elevated railway stairways. He has also suggested that alterations be made in the exits from the stations. The same company must appear at a hearing on Dec. 8 on the question of the installation in all Subway cars of storage batteries to provide light in case of the sudden shutting off of the ordinary power. In accordance with a previous order of the commision 300 of the new cars are equipped with these storage batteries, and it is now proposed to extend the order. The entire question of the sufficiency of the lighting of the Subway cars and stations is likely to come up at the same time.

On Dec. 6 a hearing is to be held on an order directing the Interborough to install another elevator at the 181st Street Subway station. The shaft has been already prepared.

MISS SHERMAN TO WED AS A CATHOLIC

Will Be Received Into the Church of Lord Camoys, Whom She Marries To-day.

WM. WATTS SHERMAN ILL

Simple Service to be Performed in Room of Bride's Father—400 Invitations to Reception Recalled.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman, to Lord Camoys will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, 838 Fifth Avenue, instead of to-day week as planned, owing to the serious illness of the bride's father.

The ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. William Neenan, rector of St. Mary's Church, Newport, Lord Camoys being a Catholic, in the presence of the immediate family only, will take place in Mr. Sherman's private room. The service will be conducted in the simplest and quietest manner possible so as not to fatigue the bride's father.

Miss Sherman will become a member of the Catholic Church this morning. The ceremony will be at the home of her father.

There will be present, beside Mr. and Mrs. Sherman, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie; Mrs. Norrie Sellar, the bride's half-sister, and the two brothers of Lord Camoys, Hugo and Edward Maurice Stonor. The former has been here for almost a week, having been with his brother at the Plaza without his presence here being known. The latter is said to have arrived on the steamer Lusitania yesterday, although his name did not appear on the passenger list.

Mrs. Gillespie will be her sister's only attendant, and Edward Maurice Stonor will act as his brother's best man. There will be some floral decorations, but nothing in the character of a wedding celebration.

As first planned a large reception was to have followed the ceremony, about 400 invitations having been issued, but these have all been recalled. The announcement recalling the invitations reads:

"Mr. and Mrs. Sherman regret that owing to illness they will be obliged to recall the invitations to the wedding on Dec. 2."

Lord and Lady Decies, who were to attend the wedding, left town yesterday when the invitations were recalled, and are now with Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould at Lakewood, to remain until Monday.

No plans have been announced by Lord Camoys as to the bridal trip, everything depending upon Mr. Sherman's illness. In case Mr. Sherman improves Lord Camoys and his bride will go South.

Hugo Stonor, the elder brother, will return to England on Wednesday on the Lusitania.

TWO TITLES IN POLICE COURT

To Complain of an Untitled Innkeeper Who Isn't Punished.

Jefferson Market Court was beside itself with excitement yesterday when no less a person than Baron Maxime de Sheyder Shottland called for a summons whereby he proposed to hale into the presence of Magistrate O'Connor Horace E. McKee, Manager of the Hotel Marlton at 3 West Eighth Street. The Baron said that the Manager had insulted a guest, Mrs. Alma Hayne, who would have it that she is the granddaughter of Franz Joseph of Austria and the daughter of Crown Prince Rudolph and Baroness Marie Vetzera.

It appeared that the manager in the course of a conversation over a bill she had not paid had made some comment on the number of men who had been to call on her. When the manager took the stand he explained that he had merely protested against the number of reporters who were besieging Mrs. Hayne, but the remark had wounded the Princess deeply and was entirely too much for the Baron when it was repeated to him.

"I said to him that he had grossly insulted a helpless woman and child," the Baron told the court, "and I asked him three times for an apology. He did not answer me, and then I said to him, 'I call you a coward, a dirty beast.' At that he jumped at me and assaulted me savagely, but not as a gentleman would do. I went to him as one gentleman to another and demanded an apology for his insult to a lady, and instead of listening to my request with respect and either apologizing or giving me the name of his second he grabbed me by the throat and shook and choked me and then threw me out of his hotel. Such a beast I never did see, Monsieur l'Honneur."

The Baron would make no complaint in his own behalf and the Magistrate could see grounds for no complaint on behalf of the Princess, so the case was dropped, but not before Magistrate O'Connor had complimented the Baron on his chivalry, for which compliment he received one of the Baron's best salutes.

A deeply interested spectator of the proceedings was Mrs. Hayne's three-year-old son. The young Prince clambered onto the stenographer's platform, pulled a reporter's hair, and then indulged in a scandalous attempt to sway the court by rolling his eyes at Magistrate O'Connor.

WILL PRODUCE 'THE O'FLYNN'

Brady to Stage Justin H. McCarthy's Drama and "The Best People."

William A. Brady completed arrangements with Lee Shubert yesterday for an early production on Broadway of Justin Huntly McCarthy's romantic Irish drama "The O'Flynn." Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree appeared in the title rôle in London. The play requires about 100 persons for its presentation.

As soon as this production is out of the way, Mr. Brady purposes producing Fred Lonsdale's "The Best People," which ran at Wyndham's Theatre, London. In conjunction with this piece he will put on "The Gods of the Mountain," Lord Dunsany's fantastic one-act play that made a hit at the Haymarket, London, last Summer.

Miss Constance Roberson to Wed.

The engagement is announced of Miss Constance Roberson, daughter of W. C. Roberson of 110 West Seventy-first Street, to Howard P. Homans of 61 East Sixty-fourth Street, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Homans. Mr. Homans was graduated from Princeton, class of 1901, and is a member of the University, Rockaway Hunt, Racquet, and other clubs.

The wedding will probably be in the Spring.

Miss Meltzer Weds in London.

The marriage is announced in London of Miss Phyllis Meltzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Meltzer of this city, to Basil Jobling of Kingsland, Herefordshire, England.

On Nov. 17 Mr. Meltzer announced the marriage of another daughter, Miss Gwendoline Margaret Meltzer, to John Norris Bogle of Bellefonte, Penn.

Dinner for Miss Mildred Rice.

Mrs. William Lowe Rice entertained last night for her débutante daughter, Miss Mildred Gautier Rice, with a diner of fifty-four covers in the Italian room of the Plaza, which was decorated with Killarney roses. The guests were seated at one large table, and only a few of the young set were asked. The dinner is the first of a series for Miss Rice, the dates for the others have not yet been decided upon, as Miss Rice will spend much time in Chicago as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, who are introducing their daughter, Miss Gwendolyn Mitchell, this Winter.

Count de St. Georges Here on Visit.

Count de St. Georges, who lives in Geneva, Switzerland, but is a British subject, arrived here yesterday on the Lusitania to visit his sister, Mrs. Edith Proudfit of Morristown, N. J., and will stay in this country for two months.

Miss Lederer and Fiance at Home.

Miss Janette Lederer of Providence, R. I., and Sidney Levi, whose engagement was announced last Summer, will be at home to their friends to-morrow afternoon from 3 until 6 at 79 East Eighty-ninth Street.

Commodore James and Family Return.

Commodore Arthur C. James of the New York Yacht Club returned yesterday from his trip to Europe on the Lusitania, accompanied by Mrs. James and Miss Beverly James. He said that the party went over in his bark-rigged auxiliary steam yacht Aloha in September, and took twenty days on the passage, which the yacht sailed, with the exception of 500 miles. The Aloha started back from Queenstown for New York on Nov. 1.

Ward Art Sale Ended.

The sale of a private collection of paintings, bronzes, chinaware, and rugs, household appointments from the residence of Dr. Leslie Ward of Newark, was concluded at the Fifth Avenue Galleries yesterday by James P. Silo, the auctioneer. The collection was valued at more than $20,000, exclusive of the paintings, which, seventy-eight in number, were sold for an aggregate of $5,642, bringing the total up to $19,581. The highest price, $6,000, was paid last night by John Levy for "A California Landscape" by William Keith. The second highest price, $400, was paid by Henry Schulthies for Keith's "Mount Shasta."

Orlando Harriman Ill.

Orlando Harriman, a brother of the late Edward H. Harriman, is ill at his apartments in the Hotel Majestic, on Central Park West. It was said last night that Mr. Harriman was suffering from only a slight indisposition, the effect of changes in the weather on a constitution weakened somewhat by overwork. His condition was said to have improved since morning.

DOUBLE OPERA BILL; CARUSO AS CANIO

Large Audience Hears "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Il Pagliacci."

MME. DESTINN AS SANTUZZA

Caruso's Singing Rouses the Audience to Enthusiasm—The Donkey Furnishes Amusement for a Moment.

CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA.

Santuzza	Emmy Destinn
Lola	Jeanne Maubourg
Turiddu	Riccardo Martin
Alfio	Dinh Gilly
Lucia	Marie Mattfeld

PAGLIACCI

Nedda	Bella Alten
Canio	Enrico Caruso
Tonio	Antonio Scotti
Beppe	Angelo Bada
Silvio	Dinh Gilly

Conductor, Giuseppe Sturani.

The "double bill" of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," with Mr. Caruso in the latter and Mme. Destinn in the former, attracted an enormous audience at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening, as this familiar combination of two dramas of sultry Italian passion may be relied upon to do. Both performances presented features that have long been well known to operagoers, and are evidently highly approved by them. And it is no wonder that Mme. Destinn's Santuzza should be so, so filled is the impersonation with deadly intensity, so beautifully sung. There is little that is new to be said now of Mr. Martin's Turiddu or Mr. Gilly's Alfio or Miss Mattfeld's Lucia. Mme. Maubourg gave interesting evidence in her singing of the music allotted to Lola of an improvement in her style and vocal method. It was charmingly shown in the little song that she has to sing as she first enters upon the stage.

The gayety of the proceedings in the first scene of "Pagliacci" when the strolling company of players arrives was enhanced by the independence of the donkey that draws the cart. He decided to rest upon the ground; and it engrossed the attention of the comedians for some moments to free him from his trappings and set him upon his feet again. Gayety is short lived in "Pagliacci," however, and matters soon became very serious, indeed, with the complications in which the passions of the human actors were involved. Mr. Caruso found them never more so, and they roused him to some of his most boisterous and vehement singing. He has rarely been more prodigal of his voice or more reckless in his outpourings or in his accentuation of all the sobbing passion that he feels as Canio, reaching its climax in the song at the close of the first act. There was no continence or circumspection here, and he roused the audience to riotous demonstrations of enthusiasm. Mr. Scotti sang the part of Tonio in his accustomed manner; Miss Alten was the Nedda and Mr. Gilly the Silvio. Mr. Sturani's conducting had energy and a certain authority, at least, if not finish.

TETRAZZINI SINGS IN CHICAGO

Italian Diva Scores Great Success in "Lucia Di Lammermoor."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 24.—Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini scored a tremendous success to-night in her first appearance in Chicago in grand opera. Playing the part of Lucia in Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," she outdid herself, and when the opera was finished the audience wended its way out of the auditorium Theatre filled with enthusiasm for the Italian diva.

Never before in better voice, Mme. Tetrazzini sang with her whole soul. She had said that the friends who knew her in concerts in Chicago would be doubly her friends in grand opera, and she outdid herself.

One of the greatest of musical treats ever offered Chicago was Mme. Tetrazzini's effort to-night, and the work of her supporting company was of the highest order.

KICK ON GARBAGE REMOVAL.

Washington Heights Taxpayers to Ask Edwards to Hire Contractors.

The Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association met last night in its rooms, at Broadway and 158th Street, to discuss the garbage removal situation, and passed a resolution directing a committee to ask Commissioner Edwards to hire contractors to remove the accumulated garbage and ashes in that section. The committee was authorized to appeal to the Health Commissioner if its visit to Commissioner Edwards should prove ineffective.

County Register Max Grifenhagen sent word that there were five cases of typhoid fever in the immediate vicinity of his home which he said could be traced to the non-removal of garbage. R. P. Bolton, Secretary of the association, made a bitter attack on the Street Cleaning Department. He declared:

"Not only has not an ounce of garbage been removed from Washington Heights since the strike, but not an ounce since a week before the strike began. In my neighborhood we haven't seen a garbage collector since Nov. 8.

"The contentions of the Street Cleaning Department are ridiculous. On one hand we have our large and heavyweight Commissioner boasting that the strike is ended and the streets are being cleaned. On the other we have the testimony of our nostrils, and of our eyes, seeing people burying garbage and ashes from every apartment house on Washington Heights in every vacant lot in this locality—a fine prospect for Spring.

"We should not be made the victims of the inability of the Street Cleaning Department to handle its own men. It should hire contractors to get rid of this refuse before the consequences are visited on us. The jailbirds it has imported into this city in large numbers are the most slovenly outfit I have ever seen. The people of this city will never tolerate their permanent employment."

When Commissioner Edwards was told of the action of the association and of Mr. Bolton's speech, he said:

"I'd like to make a bet of $100 on that statement that no garbage has been removed from Washington Heights since the strike. Of course, our new men are not yet efficient. Our records show they move only three or four loads a day against seven loads a day by a cart before the strike.

"It is very easy to say, get contractors. I have been trying to hire carts all day. I am willing to pay $1.50 and $1.75 a load for removals. I am going to try again to-morrow to get hired trucks.

"I am doing the best I can."

CATCH CADETS CHEATING.

Four Severely Punished by Mates for Being in Collusion in Examination.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 24.—Four members of the fourth class of midshipmen have been caught in collusion during an examination in mathematics. This is the first time in the history of the new Naval Academy that midshipmen have been known to have violated the code of honor. Because of this the matter has been turned over to the brigade of midshipmen for investigation before the administration takes action. The offenders have been severely punished. Had they been caught by an instructor or officer instead of a member of the first class they would probably have been dismissed.

The four midshipmen were sitting in the rear of the examination room, it is said, when, after the examination was completed, a first class man asked one of the instructors if he had seen the cheating. The instructor said not, and after being told of it informed the first class men that, as the collusion had not come under his eye, he did not consider he had a right to report the suspects. The brigade then took it upon itself to investigate. It is said the examination papers of the four showed a marked similarity. The men denied the charge.

The punishment inflicted consisted of seventy-five demerits and restriction. This means that they will have to remain in Annapolis to-morrow while the rest of the brigade is at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. The restriction, it is said, will hold for the rest of the year.

The affair has caused quite a scandal in the Academy, and instructors are wondering whether it has been going on regularly or whether this is an exceptional case. The whole matter will be sifted to the bottom.

REVIVALS OF MUSICAL PLAYS.

Shuberts to Produce "Patience" and "Die Fledermaus," with Fritzi Scheff.

The Shuberts announced yesterday that rehearsals would begin at once of two revivals of musical plays. One of these will be Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience," that was promised during the run of "Pinafore" at the Casino Theatre last Spring, but was postponed to allow for a tour in the older operetta. De Wolf Hopper, Fay Templeton, and other members of the "Pinafore" cast will be in the company.

The other revival will be an elaborate production of "Die Fledermaus," with Fritzi Scheff in the leading rôle. This Johann Strauss light opera has been done at the Metropolitan Opera House frequently, and was presented at the Irving Place Theatre only last week, but it has not been given here in English for some time. A special cast is being engaged to support Mme. Scheff in this piece.

FRED C. WHITNEY ARRIVES.

Manager Will Make an Early Production Here of "Baron Trenck."

Fred C. Whitney, producer of "The Chocolate Soldier" and other musical plays, arrived in New York on the Lusitania yesterday morning, after several months spent in London. Mr. Whitney said that he had nothing in particular to announce, except that he intended making an early production of "Baron Trenck" in this country. His London production of "The Spring Maid," he said, was going along pretty well, and his London "Chocolate Soldier" was still playing to big business.

Otis Harlan and Jake Wells are put in the schedules as creditors for an unknown amount, if any, growing out of the partnership of Wells, Dunne & Harlan. Mr. Dunne carries $5,000 life insurance for Mary Marble Dunne.

S. Gilbert's play, "The Wicked World," at the Lyceum Theatre next Tuesday afternoon. The theatre has been donated by Mr. Frohman, and the company is rehearsing under the direction of Jacob Heniger.

With the playing of the Yale-Harvard game at Cambridge and the Army-Navy game at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, to-day, the football season of 1911 practically comes to a close. The games on Thanksgiving will have little or no bearing on the final team reckoning of the season. The two contests to be played to-day have an individuality all of their own, and are not much affected by the results of the games that have gone before. While Princeton has won from both Yale and Harvard, the interest in the outcome of the game at the Stadium is intense. The Army-Navy game has unusual interest this year because neither team has met defeat, while the Army defeated Yale and the Navy played a no-score tie with Princeton. So, if the Army beats the Navy, Army followers are sure to demand a place for the soldiers close to Princeton.

The Yale-Harvard game should prove one of the best football games of the year unless weather conditions spoil it. Each eleven has a definite and consistent attack and defense, and both have excellent punters. The Yale offense—the shift play—didn't work against Princeton, mainly because of the wretched condition of the field whe nthe footing was so uncertain. It is also reasonable to believe that Yale could not show the best work the men are capable of in that game. That Yale has something in the way of an effective attack is the belief of the followers of the Blue, who are confident that Eli's final game will in a measure wipe out the sting of the Princeton and West Point defeats.

Howe, Camp, and Spalding as Backs.

Yale will have behind the line the same backfield that started against Princeton. Camp and Spalding will start the game as half backs. Camp is the best back the Blue has in following the complicated interference which forms on the famous shift play. Camp also can be relied upon to hold his own in the kicking department, with Howe at hand to do the drop kicking and Pete Francis to try his fortune at place kicking if the opportunities present themselves.

The Yale ends, Bomeisler and Avery, may be expected to play even better than they did against Princeton, when the former played a strong game even in the thickest of the mud. With Paul and Scully at tackles and Francis and McDevitt at guards and Ketcham at centre, the Yale line looks just as formidable as Harvard's.

However, the Crimson eleven as it lines up to-day looks to be stronger than the team that was defeated by Princeton a few weeks ago. Felton, the team's best punter, will be at end instead of O'Brien, and this will strengthen Harvard's kicking game considerably. Bob Porter will be at quarter back and should get more speed out of the team than it has shown i nthe last few games. Up to the time he was injured, Potter looked like one of the best quarterbacks in the game.

With Storer at tackle, in place of Gardiner, whose arm was broken at Princeton, and Hitchcock on the other side, the tackle berths will be as strong as ever, and Leslie and Fisher are a match for Yale's pair of guards. JParmenter will start the game at centre, and although a light player, much is expected of him. The other Harvard end, Smith, is a veteran, and may be expected to put up a great game.

It is not expected that the Harvard back field, Wendel, Campbell, and Huntington, will develop the speed that the Yale backs will show. Harvard's attack will be of a heavier variety than Yale's. The Blue attack will centre its strength against the Harvard line outside of tackle, while the tackle shift of Harvard centres at the tackle position, with Wendell as the line smasher.

It seems likely that neither team will be able to do much in the running, line-smashing game. Modern football teams have been trying since the new rules were adopted to devise some attack whereby they could gain ten yards in three downs, but none of the big elevens has shown much success at it.

The game very likely will become another punting contest. Once either eleven is witthin kicking distance of the other's goal line, a drop or place kick may be looked for. The game also will match the generalship of two good quarter backs, Howe and Potter. If the Yale leader is in good physical condition he will undoubtedly play the wonderful game he is capable of. Last week against Princeton everything was against him, and he fumbled miserably. Attempting to catch the punts on the dead run, he lost many of them, but on a dry field this should be different. As a tactician the Yale quarter back is better than Potter, and in this game he is sure to show his ability to pick out the weak spots and bring out the fastest and best attack his team possesses.

Capt. Dalton's Middies Strong.

Two high-class elevents with unusual records wil clash when the Army and Navy come together at Franklin Field. These teams have been playing better football this season than the elevens representing both branches of the service during the past few years. With two evenly matched sets of forwards, it will be much the same kind of a contest as a year ago, with the advantage going to the best kicking team.

In each of the lines are men who are as capable in their position as any linesmen playing. Brown, the Navy tackle, and Howe, the guard, are both stars. In the Army line are Devore at tackle and Arnold, the former centre, now at guard, who are also players of the first magnitude. The Navy ends, Hamilton and McReavey, although good, are no better or faster in getting down under punts than the pair that will be chosen from Gillipsie, Wood, Cook, and Hoge. Cook and Wood have shown up especially well and may start the game. Both teams have good centres, the Army with Sibert and the Navy with Weems.

Hyatt, the Army quarter back, is looked upon to do much with the forward pass, as well as showing good generalship. Gilchrist, a former end and a good one, has been shifted to quarter back on the Navy eleven, and, although lacking in experience there, is expected to have b-come accustomed to the new position after two weeks of practice.

In the back field the Navy has Capt. Dalton to do the kicking. As a punter and kicker of goals from placement the Navy leader has no superior, and his toe may be expected to accomplish as much to-day as it did a year ago. Nichols, the other half back, and Rodes, the Navy full back, are both reliable backs and can carry the ball well. The Army back field, McDonald¼ Brown, and Keyes, are all fast and should hold their own against the opposing midshipmen, both in defense and in carrying the ball. As in the other football games this year, the kicking will be a big feature. In fact, the game this year has developed into a kicking contest, pure and simple, for teams with anything like an equal defense have found it impossible to make much headway against each other.

CHEERS FOR THE MIDDIES.

Brigade Will Go to Franklin Field in Two Special Trains.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 24.—With the enthusiastic cheers of their fellow-students ringing in their ears, the players who will battle for the Navy against the Army to-morrow started for Philadelphia this morning. The players, substitutes, coaches, and others, sixty in all, left Bancroft Hall shortly before 8 o'clock, and were driven to the West Street Station, where a special car was taken. At Odenton it was attached to a Pennsylvania train and taken direct to Broad Street. The brigade of midshipmen escorted the vehicles to the gate of the Academy and gave them an enthusiastic sendoff.

The football players, with substitutes, number thirty-six, as follows: Dalton, Hamilton, Brown, Wakeman, Weems, Howe, Redman, McReavy, Gilchrist, Rodes, Nichols, Byrd, Elmer, Good, R. A. Hall, Scofield, Shaw, Sowell, Whiting, Wick, Cochran, Daughty, J. L. Hall, Miller, Davis, Ingram, Latimore, Leonard, Ralston, Vaughn, Walker, Bates, Cook, Collins, Deroode, and Overesch.

The whole party was under the charge of Lieut. Commander Allen Buchanan. Capt. J. H. Gibbons, Superintendent of the Academy, and his aid, Lieut. Adolphus Andrews, were on the car, but in an unofficial capacity. Lieut. Howard, head coach, had direct charge of the players, while Trainer McMasters looked after their physical wellfare. The other coaches were Wheaton, Olcutt, and Weymouth of Yale; Dr. Paul J. Dashiel, Lieuts. Farley and Decker, Ensign Ingram, and Midshipmen Clay and Wright.

At the Academy there is a general anticipation of the trip to-morrow and the game. Only once a year does the brigade get away from Annapolis in a body on a pleasure trip, and it is the great day of the year to every midshipman. Only six midshipmen will lose their trip and they are the ones who are undergoing the penalty of confinement to the Academy grounds for misconduct. The hardest part of their punishment will come to-morrow.

The brigade will be divided into its two battalions, each going by a different route. The first battalion will go over the Pennsylvania Railroad and the second over the Baltimore & Ohio. Both will leave at 8:15 and will arrive in the vicinity of Franklin Field, Philadelphia, about 11:30 o'clock. The brigade will return as soon after the game as practicable, but the football team will not start on the return trip until Sunday afternoon.

SOLDIERS GO TO WAYNE.

West Point Cadets March in Rain as Their Team Starts for Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The army football team, accompanied by coaches and about forty substitutes, left here this morning headed by the West Point band. The corps of cadets waded through the mud to the station and gave the team a rousing send-off.

The rainy weather has not dampened the cadets' enthusiasm for their team, for they contend that they have played all season on muddy fields, and that rain and a slippery ball has no terrors for the army lads, who took Yale's scalp with the field ankle deep in mud.

The army team did not go direct to Philadelphia as in former years. The coaches decided that it would benefit the men to be away from the bustle incident to the game that would be present in the city, so they arranged to spend to-night at Wayne and go to the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel Saturday morning.

To-morrow, as the corps march away gaily bedecked with the black, gold, and gray of the army, twenty-six youths will remain here and do the usual Saturday afternoon punishment tour for infractions of the rules. The corps will leave at 7:20 A. M. and are scheduled to arrive at Philadelphia over the Jersey Central Railroad at 1:20 o'clock.

The officers and residents of the post will arrive on a special train 25 minutes later.

Philadelphia Hotels Filled with Army and Navy Football Throngs.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 24.—All the leading hotels are crowded to-night by the vanguard of spectators for to-morrow's football game between the teams of the Army and the Navy. The hotel people say that never before has an Army and Navy game drawn so many people to this city on the day before the contest. The names of many notables from all sections of the country are inscribed on the registers and the dining rooms will be severely taxed to accommodate the many luncheon and dinner parties for which reservations have been made.

Both teams arrived in this city to-day accompanied by their coaches. Owing to the heavy rain last night and to-day they were prevented from practicing on the gridiron on Franklin Field. The field was covered with canvass and straw to keep it in condition for to-morrow. The members of each team limbered up by running around the cinder track. The Navy players were then taken to a riding academy where they indulged in signal practice, while the Army team had its workout in a gymnasium near the hotel in Wayne, a suburb where the players are quartered.

In spite of the precautions to prevent the falling of tickets into the hands of speculators Broad Street was lined to-night with men willing to buy or sell the pasteboards which will secure admission to the grounds, while the regular ticket agencies say they have enough tickets to supply their regular customers. The prices range from $10 to $25 a seat, according to location. The University of Pennsylvania authorities say that duplicate tickets will be issued for all tickets known to be in fine hands of scalpers and that the original tickets will not be honored.

Among the prominent persons who have already arrived are Admiral George A. Lyon of Washington, Justice Lurton of the Supreme Court, Speaker Champ Clark, and ex-Senator Dick of Ohio.

Several dinners of importance were given to-night, including one at the University Club, at which Admiral Capp was the host. Another large dinner was given at the Army and Navy Club.

The railroads have arrangements made to handle the largest crowd of the year. Seventeen special trains will be run by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and accommodations for 15,000 extra passengers will be provided.

Considerable money was bet to-night in the corridors of the various hotels on the result of the game, bets of $1,000 being made at even money. There is more Navy than Army money in sight, however, and unless the arrival of the cadets to-morrow makes a change it is probable that the Navy will be a slight favorite in the betting.

Indications to-night are for clear and cooler weather to-morrow. The probable line-up follows:

Gillespie	Left end	Hamilton
Sibert	Centre	Weems
Walmsley	Right guard	Howe
Littlejohn	Right tackle	Redmond
Hage	Right end	Gilchrist
Hyatt	Quarter back	McReavy
Browne	Left half back	Dalton
McDonald	Right half back	Nichols
Keyes	Full back	Rodes

The officials will be—Referee, M. J. Thompson, Georgetown; umpire, Al Sharpes, Yale; field judge, Mr. Marshall, Harvard; head linesman, Mr. Smith, University of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of War's Guests at Game.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Many Washingtonians will leave here to-morrow to attend the Army and Navy game at Philadelphia. Secretary of War Stimson will entertain a party of twenty-six, including Gen. and Mrs. Leonard Wood, Gen. and Mrs. W. W. Wotherspoon, Gen. William Crozier, and Gen. and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards.

Indians Ease Up in Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 24.—Approaching their next to the final game of the season against Johns Hopkins at Baltimore to-morrow, the Carlisle Indian football team eased up on practice work, as Coach Warner thinks his men have done all they could safely do in advance of two hard games such as Hopkins and Brown are expected to be.

Trinity Plays Brown To-day.

STADIUM FOOTBALL FIELD IS MUDDY

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—The Harvard football team to-night is thirty-five miles from Boston, at the Vesper Country Club, on the Merrimac River, while the Yale team is at Auburndale, a suburb ten miles from Boston City Hall. An all-day rain prevented either team from doing much football work, and the chances are that to-morrow's game will be played on a wet and muddy field, on which the footing will be bad, and which, therefore, will handicap the game that each team had planned to play in the final contest of the season.

Although the Harvard stadium football field is covered deep with straw, the surface, which has been slippery all week, has absorbed much water, and there is every reason that to-morow's game should be almost as much of a sliding and slipping match as was that between Yale and Princeton last week. The Harvard field, however, is well drained, and the gridiron, while it will be covered with mud, will show no puddles—which doesn't help a great deal.

The Yale men did not have any work on Harvard's field. Instead, they had a drill on signals in a barn near their Auburndale headquarters, missing the hopes for an opportunity to kick and follow punts on the stadium field, where the wind is so very freakish. In the afternoon, however, the Harward players were out for an hour. The practice was on signals only, and the men had gone to their dressing rooms, the delayed appearance of 1,500 undergraduates and graduates in the stadium made Capt. Fisher decide to send his players out again. This time, however, all they did was to run up and down the field. Coach Houghton explained that the men had gone out against his orders, but that they had insisted that the student body had something coming to it.

This afternoon the Yale men were driven about the suburbs in eighteen automobiles, but to-night, after a short walk about the hotel grounds, they retired to the parlors of the hotel, and, after a few games of hearts, went to bed. Word had come from Lowell that the Harvard men also retired early, and that all were in tip-top shape to play in the game to-morrow. The coaches feel that the Harvard team is all right, but at the same time there is much concern about the condition of Bob Potter, the quarter back.

Potter developed lameness yesterday, and to-day was not any better. The coaches, however, say that he will start the game. The announcement comes from the Harvard camp at Lowell that Campbell and not Reynolds will be in the game at left half back, but that Felton will surely start at right end. The Cambridge idea apparently is to place a team on the field that will deliver Harvard's hardest punch, and it is felt that if Harvard can score in the first quarter the game will be won. Both Harvard and Yale, though, are mightily disappointed because of the wet field they will have to play on. Yale has done nothing on a wet field this year, while Harvard also has planned its game for a smooth playing surface.

Capt. Howe of Yale said to-night that he intends to begin to-morow's game, and that he is in shape to play all the way through it, provided he is not knocked out by an unexpected injury. Dunn will be at full back. To-night the Yale players were in charge of the recently graduated coaches and Johnny Mack, the trainer. All the older men returned to Boston early, but will go to Auburndale at 9 o'clock in the morning. The line-ups of the teams, according to the latest announcement, are:

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURNDALE, Mass., Nov. 24.—It was decided to-night that Holladay Philbin should start to-morrow's game for Yale as full back, displacing Dave Dunn. For the first time a special agreement between the Yale and Harvard captains will be made before the game on at least two points of play not covered by the rules.

An understanding will be had regarding changing balls during the game in case the ball in use becomes slippery with mud. The referee may be given power to change the ball at his discretion, or an agreement that a new ball shall be ordered for every playing period may be made. The possibility of a fluke field goal from a drop kick that clears the crossbar on the first bound will be discussed, but because of the soft gridiron on which to-morrow's game is sure to be played the contingency cannot possibly arise during the play.

The Yale team looked in perfect form to-night, but Head Coach Field and Capt. Howe admitted that they are keenly disappointed because the rain has soaked the Cambridge gridiron, although a cessation of the storm is promised for to-morrow.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 24.—There was a general exodus of students from Yale this morning, all bound for Boston to be early on the ground for the Yale-Harvard game to-morrow. Yale men are sanguine of the outcome of the contest. Few here were willing to give odds, however, but plenty of spare cash will be carried to Cambridge for wagering.

POLO CHALLENGE OFF.

Duke of Westminster Will Not Bring Over British Team.

A rumor has just reached the members of the Meadow Brook champion polo team that the conditional challenge sent over by the Duke of Westminster for the American trophy has been withdrawn. The Duke has been severely criticised by the English press for picking his friends for the team instead of men carrying higher goal handicaps. The original idea was for the Earl of Rocksavage, two of three Nickels, and the Duke of Westminster to start for Egypt on or about Jan. 1 for preliminary practice. This plan has fallen through.

While none of the Polo Association members will talk officially, it is thought by several of the members that the Hurlingham Club will take up the matter and that another challenge will be sent here, and a team composed of at least two of the players who were over last Spring will try conclusions.

In the event of the English association declining to challenge again, the chances are that Harry Payne Whitney and the other Meadow Brook players will go to England and take part in all the prominent tournaments there. The English newspapers editorially and otherwise have pointed out that if a team of the calibre of the one sent over here last Spring to lift the cup failed, the men chosen by the Duke of Westminster would not have a ghost of a chance against the Long Islanders.

CORNELL DRILL CURTAILED.

Heavy Rain Keeps All Players Excepting Ends and Tackles Idle.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The Cornell football squad had an easy time of it to-day because of the heavy rain, which made practice almost impossible. The ends and tackles, however, were made to realize that there was still something for them to do when the coaches took them to a dry spot and for an hour drilled them in going down on kicks, running back kicks, and tackling. All of the ends excepting Eyrich were out, including Fritz, Franklin, Kelly, Lawrence, Reed, Guyer, Myers, and Abell, while the tackle squad included Capt. Munk, Champaign, Williamson, Davidson, Sourwine, Krogstad, and others.

It is hardly likely that the team will have any more scrimmages or that any more hard work will be tried before the Pennsylvania game.

One of the most interesting features of practice this Fall occurred this evening, when the 'Varsity players were shown how the team had failed to play football against Chicago by means of some 200 pictures of that game thrown upon a screen.

Injured Football Player Recovering.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Howard Peare, Captain of the New Rochelle High School football team, whose spine was badly injured in a game with the Stamford High School eleven on Election Day, is regaining the use of his muscles and expects to return to school in a month.

Syracuse Team at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 24.—The Syracuse University football players arrived here to-day for their contest to-morrow with Ohio State University. Full possession of Ohio Field was given the visiting squad, which numbers twenty-two men, for a workout this afternoon.

Football at Saratoga Field.

Football elevens from the Young Men's Catholic Club and the Acorn A. A. will clash in the third and final game of their series at Saratoga, Field, Brooklyn, to-morrow afternoon. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

The Morris High School rifle team defeated the team from Commercial High School at the Morris range yesterday afternoon, 265 to 239. MANUAL WINS IN MUD.

Brooklyn Prep School Defeated at Washington Park, 10 to 0.

Manual Training High School defeated Brooklyn Prep. School in yesterday's football game at Washington Park by tthe score of 10 to 0. The field was a sea of mud and unfit for football. The Brooklyn Prep. boys wanted the game postponed, but Manual refused to arrange any other date, and demanded the game by forfeit if it was not played yesterday. Rather than accede to this demand the Prep eleven decided to play.

The game was nothing more than a succession of slips and fumbles. Running with the ball for any great distance was out of the question, and the wet field worked to the especial disadvantage of the Brooklyn Prep. This team was handicapped in weight, and it told heavily on both attack and defense.

Both touchdowns came in the first half of the game, one in each period, and in each instance the attempt at goal proved a failure. The first period, like the others, was marked by continual fumbling, and it was through Carey's inability to handle the ball following a punt that the first touchdown was made possible. The punt was blocked on Brooklyn Prep's 28-yard line, and Harmon fell on the ball. A forward pass from Harmon to Esselstyn netted thirteen yards. Conroy dove through the tackle for five more, Harmon carried the ball to the 3-yard line, and Conroy went over for a touchdown.

The second touchdown was the result of the best run of the game. Formosa grabbed the ball on a punt at Brooklyn Prep's 34-yard line and galloped through the mud for a touchdown. In the final period Manual carried the ball to Brooklyn Prep's 8-yard line, and then lost it on a fumble. The line-up:

Manual Training.	Position.	Brooklyn Prep.
Dingwall	Left guard	Hayes
Colcord	Centre	McKenna
Higgins	Right guard	O'Grady
Young	Right tackle	Carey
Formosa	Right end	Ennis
Siever	Quarter back	Rorke
Harmon	Right half back	Murnane
Conroy	Full back	Dolan

Score—Manuel Training, 10; Brooklyn Prep., 0. Touchdowns—Conroy, Formosa. Substitutions—Devine for Hayes; Hayes for Carey; Carey for Dolan; Dolan for Murnane. Referee—Mr. Siskind, Fordham. Umpire—Mr. Ferrier, Dartmouth. Time of periods—Ten minutes.

ANDOVER RUNNERS WIN.

Home Team Leads in Invitation Three-Mile Race Through Mud.

ANDOVER, Mass., Nov. 24.—Phillips-Andover Academy won an invitation three-mile cross-country run in the mud to-day, defeating teams from Worcester Academy, Harvard freshmen, Dartmouth freshmen, Cornell freshmen, and Pennsylvania freshmen. Harvard finished second, Cornell third, and Dartmouth fourth.

All the runners finished in an exhausted condition, several of them without shoes, and spattered with mud from head to foot. Andover's time was 17 minutes 11 2-5 seconds.

23d Regiment Games To-night.

Two novel races will be seen at the Fall games of the Twenty-third Regiment in Brooklyn this evening. The "hobble race," a modification of the sack race, will show a dozen athletes sprinting around the oval in hobble skirts, and in the medley race the runners are required to run 110 yards, hop 110 yards, walk 110 yards, and finally run backward 110 yards. Tad White, the former crack miler, will try to "come back" in the mile handicap. He will run from scratch. In the half mile race De Grouchy and Walther, both junior champions, will run from scratch. The open feature races will be a three-mile walk, with George Goulding of Canada on the post of honor; a two-mile bicycle race for N. C. A. riders, and a one-mile M. A. L. delay scratch, with the Thirteenth, Twenty-second, and Seventy-first Regiment teams in.

Six-Day Riders Sail for New York.

Half a dozen of the European riders who are to take part in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 10 to 16, will sail for this country to-day. Four of them, Lapize, Vanhouwaert, Leon Georget, and Brocco, will leave from Cherbourg on board the steamship Lorraine of the French Line. The two first named, Lapize and Vanhouwaert, are newcomers to this country. Lapize is a French rider and Vanhouwaert is a Belgian who has made a reputation for himself in endurance races On board the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm will be the greatest team of six-day riders in Europe, Lorenz and Saldow, a German combination which has won distinction in their own country by winning one six-day race, held in Berlin, and finishing second in another.

AUTO PILOTS DRIVE ON SLIPPERY COURSE

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 24.—David Bruce-Brown of New York, driving his Grand Prize Fiat car, led the field of about a dozen large cars in to-day's practice, which was not as successful as that of previous days owing to a fine mist that was driven from the northeast. The course was slippery in spots and team managers instructed their pilots to move cautiously over the oiled paths.

Bruce-Brown's fastest lap, as timed by A. H. Whiting of the Contest Committee of the A. C. A., was behind the best time previously made on the course. He did the circuit in 13:14 for one lap.

With the exception of Erwin Bergdoll, entered in the Grand Prize, none of the Benz cars were on the course. This is Bergdoll's first trial on the local circuit, he being the latest of that team to arrive in the city. The Benz cars are in racing condition and will be laid off until the races. Following the announcement that the Benz team will retire from American road racing after next Thursday's race the Case team management assert they have made Hemery an offer to Captain their team in this country.

Joe Dawson, the Marmon pilot, who was spilled on the course last Monday while riding with Joe Nikrent, was discharged from the hospital to-day and was on the streets. He is none the worse for his accident except for a strained wrist. He declares he will be at the wheel of the Marmon in the Grand Prize race.

In an interview with a local paper Fred J. Wagner, official starter of all the races, states that while the local course is faster than last year he does not expect to see any American road records broken.

COBB AND MACKEY DRAW.

Philadelphia Youth and Cleveland Veteran in Fast Bout at Mt. Vernon.

Ty Cobb, the Philadelphia featherweight, and Biz Mackey of Cleveland went ten fast rounds to a draw last night at the Mount Vernon Sporting Club. The Quaker City youngster used a straight left jab to the face in the early rounds to good effect, and at the end of the fifth round he had slightly the better of the bout. He also used a right-hand uppercut in the clinches and when Mackey rushed in, which helped to slow up the veteran considerably. Mackey played continually for the body, and although he landed frequently with his left he was less effective than his opponent in the early rounds.

Starting in the sixth round Mackey's ring generalship began to tell, and the Quaker City youngster began to tire and slow up. As a result Mackey evened up the advantage which Cobb had gained during the first five rounds. Cobb was never in distress, however, in the closing rounds and gave Mackey as hard a fight during the latter part of the session as the Clevelander had given him earlier in the bout. Both boys were strong and going fast when the final bell sounded. At no time during the contest did either boy have any great advantage over his opponent, neither scored a knockdown, and although the fighting was fast all the way neither boxer was in danger of being put away at any stage.

In the semi-final, which went the full six rounds, Abe the Newsboy outpointed Battling Marshall. A crowd which filled the new clubhouse witnessed the bouts.

Close Races in Soccer League.

At the last meeting of the New York and District Amateur League, the Newark Clan Macdonald game was ordered replayed, Macdonalds having protested against the Newarks on a violation of the rules. The league table is very interesting, and a close race between the three leading teams is anticipated. The standing of the two divisions is as follows:

FIRST DIVISION.

	Won.	Lost.	Drawn.
Arcadia Thistles	4	3	0
Columbia	3	2	1
Critchley	3	3	0
Mackenzies	2	2	2
Camerons	3	5	0
Yonkers	1	5	1
Hollywood Inn	1	5	0
McDuff	0	6	0

SECOND DIVISION.

	Won.	Lost.	Drawn.
New York Celtics	7	0	0
Clan Gordon	5	0	2
St. George	4	2	1
Anglo-Saxons	3	1	3
Washington	3	3	2
Greenpoint	3	4	1
Germans	2	2	3
Eureka	3	3	1
Hungarians	2	5	0

To-morrow a derby will be run off in Brooklyn, Arcadia playing Brooklyn Celtics in a league fixture. Arcadias have lost some ground in the last two games, but are determined to pull up. Columbia will play Yonkers at Lenox Oval. Yonkers broke into the winning column last Sunday and are out for more points. In the second division a battle royal will take place at Port Chester between Clan Gordon and New York Celtics. The Celtics have not been defeated and the Gordons have only dropped 2 points. Other games are: Newark versus McDuffs at Newark, Hollywood versus Critchley at Yonkers, Macdonalds versus Mackenzie at Blatt's Oval, Britannia versus Anglo-Saxon at Van Cortlandt Park, Eureka versus St. George at McNulty Field, Greenpoint versus Washington at McCarren Field, and Mount Vernon versus Germans at Mount Vernon.

Mott Haven A. C. Games.

Many champions are entered in the nine events of to-night's athletic carnival under the auspices of the Mott Haven A. C. and Company H at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. Prominent among the stars who have entered are Louis Scott, the National ten-mile champion; Harry Gissing, former National half-mile title holder; Harry Grumpelt, National high jump champion; Dick Egan, holder of the half-mile indoor record; Abel Kiviat, National one-mile champion; Egon Erickson, D. V. Noble, Al Vollmeke, Sam Schwartz, Harry J. Smith, Mike Ryan, H. J. Levell, and the Gifford brothers. Teams from the Mohawks, Pastimes, Morningsides, Glen Coes, Xaviers, New York A. C., and Mott Havens will start in the relay race. More than sixty runners will toe the mark in the 600-yard novice.

SHOT DOWN BY GIRL'S SIDE.

She Fled with Assailants and Dying Man Won't Tell Her Name.

The reports of two revolver shots brought a crowd, among its numbers Detectives Dietsch and England of the East 104th Street station, to the corner of Third Avenue and 105th Street, at 6 o'clock last night. They found a young man lying in the street and a small boy bending over him.

The boy, fourteen-year-old Joseph Figer of 209 East 105th Street, said that he had seen the young man and a girl talking on the corner a few moments before. Two young men had approached from opposite directions, had greeted each other pleasantly by the names of Jack and Bill, and then had stood near the youth and the girl engaged in conversation. Suddenly each of the newcomers had drawn a revolver and each had fired a shot. Young Figer said he thought at first they had fired at each other, but one of the bullets hit the girl's companion in the side and he fell to the sidewalk. The other young men and the girl fled, while young Figer ran to the side of the wounded man.

The detectives got Dr. Pratt from Harlem Hospital and he hurried the injured man there, where it was said last night, that he was dying. The youth told the detectives that he was Joseph Firdo of 434 East 117th Street. He corroborated young Figer's story of the shooting, but said he had no idea of the identity of his assailants, and refused absolutely to reveal the name of the girl.

The detectives searched the neighborhood, but found no trace of the young men, though they found a revolver from which one shot had been fired in the basement of the tenement at 209 East 105th Street.

ZBYSZKO WINS, THEN LOSES.

Polish Wrestler Fails to Throw Smejkal in Half an Hour.

Zybszko won and lost last night at the gymnasium of the Bohemian Sokel, in East Seventy-second Street, when he threw Carl Beck, a German, in 4:18 with a double arm hold and a cross on the jaw with the knees, and later failed to pin Joseph Smejkal, a gigantic Bohemian, within the required time of thirty minutes.

Smejkal probably scales 270 pounds, while the Polish wrestler weighed about 250 pounds. Neither was long on the knowledge of the game, but Zybszko had a better idea of the catch-as-catch-can style at which they wrestled, although it was said that the Bohemian was making his début at this style.

Zbyszko did most of the forcing and had his man in jeopardy frequently. He was unable, however, to pin the giant Bohemian, who seemed able at the right time to break seemingly unbeatable holds when he wanted to. The Bohemian assumed the aggressive to the delight of his countrymen, who packed the amphitheatre to its capacity. There was a little rough work, the Bohemian essaying to muss his man up with mugging, which failed to find favor with the onlookers.

The hold which did the greatest damage to Smejkal was that which Zbyszko attempted to get on the Bohemian—the toe hold—whenever he really made an attempt to pin his man. Smejkal did not relish the treatment, and voiced his disapproval in his native tongue.

Jim Galvin and August Faust were ordered out of the ring by Johnny Dunn, the referee, who refused to permit the foul tactics of each man. His action found favor with the onlookers, who showed their disapproval by hooting both men off the stage when they wanted to speak.

Y. M. C. A. Wrestling and Boxing.

On Friday evening, Dec. 1, in the auditorium of the Harlem Young Men's Christian Association, 5 West 125th Street, there will be a wrestling tournament which will be open to all registered athletes. A good entry list is promised, including Welterweight Champion Peterson, and all the best amateurs from the vicinity. In addition to this, some well-matched men are to give boxing exhibitions.

WINNERS WITH THE CUE.

In last night's game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at the Washington Heights Billiard Academy, 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, E. A. Ware, playing at the scratch mark of 20 points, defeated R. B. Thomas, who was handicapped at 15 points, by the score of 20 to 5 in 43 innings. The scratch man had a high run of 6, while Thomas's best efforts netted him a run of 3.

Brooklyn defeated Manhattan in the second game of the three-game series of three-cushion carrom billiards in the National Intercity Billiard League at Doyle's Academy last night. Brooklyn was represented by Al Garnus and New York by Leon Magnus and John Dankelman. The score was 50 to 42 in favor of Brooklyn in 101 innings. Magnus started the game for New York, but in the fifty-eighth inning was displaced by Dankelman, the star player of the Manhattan team. At this stage of the game the score stood at 27 to 26 in favor of Manhattan, with Garnus coming strong and playing a steady game. Dankelman could not check the Brooklyn representative. Both sides made the high run of 5 points. The last game of the series will be decided this evening at Doyle's Academy.

George Sutton, who is practising at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, in preparation for his match with Willie Hoppe, for the 18.2 balk-line billiard championship title, defeated William Gershel last night by the score of 500 to 117 in twenty-one innings. Sutton made high runs of 115 and 106 points, and had an average of 23 17-21. Gershel's best efforts netted him a high run of 26, with an average of 5 17-20.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

The New Polo A. A. will hold its first Saturday night show to-night with two ten-round bouts as the feature of the card. In the star event Jimmy Coffey of Harlem will clash with Andy Cordez of Brooklyn, and in the other long bout Frankie Maher will oppose Jimmy Paul.

Billy West of New York and Dick Howell, the Canadian middleweight, will be the headliners in to-night's show at the Long Acre A. A. In the six-round semi-final Jerry O'Leary, trainer and sparring partner of West, will clash with Al King of the Boys' Club.

Three ten-round bouts and two six-round affairs will be put on at the Fairmont A. C. to-night. In the star event Billy Galley, the Australian lightweight, will hook up with Young Hickey. The other ten-round bouts will bring together Mike Grady, a Chicago middleweight, versus George McDermott and Sammy Wrana versus Harvey Kelley.

Jim Kendrick, the English bantamweight, will exchange punches with K. O. Eger of the west side in the star bout at the Sharkey A. C. to-night. In the semi-final Young Solly of the west side will clash with Billy Williams of the east side. Four four-round bouts will precede.

Willie Fitzgerald, the Fighting Harp, who was successful in his first two attempts at the "come-back" stunt, will make his third attempt to-night when he faces Fighting Jack Lundy in the star bout at the Gowanus A. C. He has already defeated Harry Powers and Johnny Dohan. Two other ten-round bouts will be staged, the contenders being Johnny McLean versus George McGregor and Paddy Collins versus Young Duffy.

Charlie Barry and Willie Scott will come together in the star bout of to-night's show at the National A. C. of Brooklyn. Young Shepard and Frankie Nelson will figure in another ten-round bout. Three shorter bouts will precede.

Johnny Moran and Fighting Joe Hyland will be the principals in the star bout at the Maspeth A. C., Garrison and Grand Streets, Maspeth, to-night. On Thanksgiving afternoon Jack Hanlon and Florrie Sullivan will be the headliners at this club.

Jewey Smith, the English heavyweight, has been matched up with Joe Jeannette for the star bout at the Fordon A. C. on Dec. 7. Smith stopped big Tom Overby in three rounds at Wilkesbarre, Penn., a few nights ago.

Both Al Palzer and Tom Kennedy have an extra incentive to win the bout at the Royale A. C. next Wednesday night. If Palzer wins he will be matched with Al Kaufman, while a victory for Kennedy will secure the New York heavyweight a match with Carl Morris at the Fairmont A. C. on Dec. 12.

Knockout Brown and Fighting Joe Hyland have been matched for a ten-round bout at the American A. A., Brooklyn, on Dec. 4. Brown will be busy for the next few days, being matched with Bert Keyes for fifteen rounds at New Haven Monday night and with Leach Cross for the Empire A. C. in about two weeks.

NOTES FOR THE GOLFERS.

In this the migratory season for golfers, change of scene for both amateurs and professionals is of constant occurrence. A number of the salaried brigade have secured new greens, some for the Winter only; others for an indefinite period. The metropolitan district will lose H. H. Barker, who sailed for the other side yesterday. Until recently Barker was identified with the Rumson Country Club, but he gave up that berth to take charge of the course at the Birmingham Country Club in Alabama. Barker will return in a few weeks. His place at Rumson has been filled by W. G. Green, who was his assistant last season.

Another professional who will return to Scotland for a short stay is James Milligan, connected with the Wyoming Valley Country Club near Scranton. During the season Milligan reduced the course record from 72 to 66 with rounds of 34 and 32. The nine-hole circuit covers a playing length of more than 3,000 yards, and a number of traps and bunkers have been added since last Spring. The club will hold its annual dinner on Dec. 10, and among those invited is Walter J. Travis.

Channing Floyd, the local home-bred, who a few years ago competed as an amateur in tournaments hereabouts, has been engaged to take charge of the green at Summerville, S. C., for the Winter. Last Summer Floyd had a successful season at Lake Champlain.

R. Wakerley has given up his position as professional at the semi-public Salisbury links at Garden City to take charge of a course at Huntington, L. I. Wakerley's successor is John Hagen, a home-bred formerly connected with the Belle Terre Club at Port Jefferson.

From coast to coast is practically the shift that Frank Peebles, the Stockbridge professional, has arranged to make. In other words, Peebles will spend the next few months at a course near Pasadena, Cal. Peebles came here an amateur before securing his first position as professiona. In the last open championship of Massachusetts Peebles finished in sixth place.

City Must Pay Widow $10,000.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court dismissed yesterday the appeal of the city from a $10,000 judgment obtained against it by Mrs. Catherine Benson, whose husband, Joseph Benson, a truck driver and horse trader, was killed in November, 1908. Benson was on a pier at Canal Street and North River when a Street Cleaning Department truck backed into a truck he was driving and threw him and his horses and wagon into the river together. Benson was drowned. The suit was tried in the Supreme Court before Justice Ford and a jury. The city's appeal will cost it $1,324 in interest and costs.

BOY FLAT IN WAGON, HANDS AND FEET TIED

Bayonne Commuters Come Upon All the Stirring Features of a Daring Hold-Up.

BEATEN AND ROBBED, HE SAID

No Wound Showing, He Admitted That It Was a Friendly Robbery—Used a Pin to Bring False Tears.

Commuters who alighted from the 7 o'clock train last night and walked along Broadway, Bayonne, N. J., toward their homes came upon a delivery wagon of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, the horse nibbling at the grass beside the roadway, between Thirty-seventh and Thirrty-eighth Streets. Several men who looked into the wagon saw a small boy lying on his back in the body of the rig, his hands and feet tied and a bag made fast over his head.

The youngster seemed frightened almost speechless when he was released. Finally, however, under the questioning of several men and women, he said that he was Burton Wellington, 15 years old, employed by the tea company to deliver goods and make collections. He had been on his way back to the store after having gathered in $41, when two boys slightly older than himself jumped aboard the wagon.

They had a revolver and wore masks, he said. They struck him on the head with some kind of a weapon and he had lost consciousness. The $41 was gone when the boy searched his pockets in the presence of the sympathetic commuters, and several of them accompanied him to the store to substantiate his story.

Detective Griffin of the Bayonne police undertook to question the boy when he arrived at the store. He also sent for Dr. B. F. Heintzelman, who lives near by. The boy burst out crying when the doctor started to examine him, but the physician said he couldn't even find a bump on the youngster's head, and he couldn't comprehend how the boy could have been knocked unconscious and have escaped without a mark. Detective Griffin could'nt understand it either, and under his sharp questioning the boy broke down.

He said that the whole affair had been planned by himself and two other boys employed in the store. They had got their idea from the various moving picture dramas on which they spent all their spare pennies, and at first had intended to rob the store. Then they had decided on the pretended hold-up.

The boy said he had given the money to his friends and then had submitted while they tied and gagged him. They had counted on some homeward-bound commuters finding him, and expected that his story would be accepted without question. None of them had thought of the failure of a wound to show as a result of the blow that had felled him.

It was the only oversight of which the lads had been guilty, however, for the youngster exhibited a pin which he said he had jabbed into his leg while the physician was examining him. He said he knew he ought to cry, but he couldn't bring the tears. The twinge of pain which the pin caused, however, accomplished the result perfectly.

Detective Griffin learned from young Wellington the names of his companions, and soon after Wellington's discovery, he found and arrested 15-year-old Thomas Brady of 457 Broadway, Bayonne. An alarm has been sent out for the third youngster, who took the money.

NOTES ON RAWHIDE BOOM.

Scheftels or Goodwin Co. Got Stock at 20 Cents and Sold as High as $1.50.

The relations of B. H. Scheftels & Co. to the Rawhide Coalition Mines Company were considered further yesterday at the trial of B. H. Scheftels, George Graham Rice, and others of its Directors before Judge Ray, in the United States Circuit Court, on the charge of having used the mails to defraud. An agreement was introduced by the Government which purported to be the contracts between the Nat C. Goodwin Company, later B. H. Scheftels & Co., and the original owners of the mining corporation, by which the Scheftels Company obtained a complete option on the entire issue of Rawhide Coalition stock.

This contract was executed on March 3, 1908, and gave to Nat C. Goodwin & Co. an option on the greater part of the 3,000,000 shares, which were issued at a par value of $1, at 20 cents a share. The bulk of this stock was to be placed with the Scheeline Banking and Trust Company as a depository, and was to be held by it till the Goodwin Company paid on it the option of 20 cents a share. The price that the Goodwin Company charged its customers for the stock was no concern of the Scheeline Company. This contract gave the Nat C. Goodwin concern control of the price of the stock, and the same condition of affairs continued when B. H. Scheftels & Co. took the place of Nat C. Goodwin & Co.

Moritz Scheeline, President of the Scheeline Company, was on the stand again yesterday, and admitted that his bank had been the depository of the stock. Goodwin & Co., he said, had paid their option in thousands of shares and obtained the stock from the bank.

Mr. Dorr began to set forth the methods by which the Goodwin and Scheftels concerns brought the stock before their customers. In the face of the objections of the defense, he read several extracts from The Nevada Mining News, of which Rice was at one time editor. The investment was continually praised and the price was gradually advanced. As orders came in, if sufficient stock had been purchased under the option, they were filed at once. If not enough was on hand, the Goodwin or the Scheftel concern bought more from the Scheeline Bank. At one time the share price reached $1.50, but all that the bank, as depository, ever received was 20 cents.

The Scheftels organ, The Mining and Financial News, which was published in New York, carried on the same policy as The Nevada Mining News.

As one of the jurors had business affairs that required his personal attention, Judge Ray consented to the adjournment of the case at the luncheon recess. The trial will be continued on Monday morning.

DETECTIVE SCHOOL OPENS.

Commissioner Waldo There with 25 Young Detectives as Pupils.

Police Commissioner Waldo opened the new detective school in Police Headquarters yesterday with twenty-five young detectives as pupils and Capt. Faurot, the Bertillon expert, as principal. Chief Magistrate McAdoo, Chief Wolf of the Porto Rican police, Lieut. Nolte, Auditor H. H. Hodeton of the St. Louis police, Deputy Commissioners McKay, Dougherty, and Dillon, Inspectors Hughes, McClusky, and Cahalane, and Capt. Dunn were also present.

The Commisioner outlined the purpose of the school, which he said was to make the young detective familiar with what was already known in his profession and to train him to use his own intellect to improve on present conditions.

Mr. McAdoo said that part of the training would be to teach young detectives how to prepare their cases for presentation before a Magistrate. He deplored the condition that existed in the past when many Magistrates refused to accept a policeman's word, and promised his hearers that if ever they had a case and were in fear of unfair treatment from any Magistrate, he himself would see that their case was heard fairly and properly.

Capt. Faurot then began his first lesson by lecturing his class on the characteristics, as recognized by the Bertillon system, of the human face.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks React, with Losses of More Than a Point in Some Leading Issues.

RISE IN TRACTION BONDS

While Interborough-Metropolitan Stocks Decline, with Further Break in Third Ave.—Retail Trade Growing.

Subjected to a good deal of pressure in the final hour of trading yesterday prices yielded in a number of instances as much as a point from Thursday's closing prices after having in the earlier trading displayed a fair degree of strength. While viewed apart the day's net losses, which, however, did not extend to all stocks, were fairly sharp, they represented but a partial loss of the improvement of recent days. A reduction in freight rates from Tacoma and Seattle to interior points in the Northwest reported from Washington, the indication of a large cash loss by the banks on the week's currency movements, and a further sharp decline in Third Avenue, which yesterday extended to the Interborough-Metropolitan stocks, were among the incidents which helped to shape the general downward course of the market so far as this was due to other influences than those directly connected with the natural profit-taking movement which followed the further advance of recent days.

The movement in the bonds of the Metropolitan Street Railway and in the stocks of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company taken together supplied a counterpart of the movement which began three days ago in the Third Avenue securities upon the handing down of the decision by the Court of Appeals upholding the plan for the reorganization of that road. That decision was reflected in an advance in the road's bonds and in a decline in the company's stock, the latter being directly due to the fact that the success of the plan, disallowed by the Public Service Commission but upheld by the Court of Appeals, involved the payment of a heavy assessment by the stockholders. Rather than meet this many sold out and yesterday they were encouraged further in this course by advice published by a representative of a group of the road's stockholders, who had combined in the hope of obtaining better terms, but whose hope in this direction was brought to an end by the recent decision. Third Avenue stock with a further decline of 2⅜ points sold yesterday down to 4, a total loss of 8 points since Tuesday last, when the decision was issued. Much the same sort of market movement has now occurred in the Metropolitan issues. The 5 per cent. and 4 per cent. bonds rose yesterday about 4 points each, while the stock of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company showed net losses of 1½ points in the common and 2⅜ in the preferred. The latter company is concerned, of course, as the owner of the majority stock of the Metropolitan Street Railway.

An estimated cash loss for the week of $9,000,000 or more reflected chiefly the outflow of gold to Canada and to Argentina and the large transfers to San Francisco. The continued ease in the money market in the face of an indicated loss at least equal to the actual surplus reserve reported by the Clearing House institutions last Saturday suggests offsets which will materially modify the effect upon to-day's bank statement of the cash movements included in yesterday's estimates. The slow improvement in general business which has been noted for several weeks is again made the subject of discussion in the reports of the commercial agencies, which show some further expansion in retail trade. The bank clearings for the week are also apparently favorable, although the returns are confused by reason of the fact that comparison is made with a week which last year included a holiday.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Tobacco Shares Continue Strong, but There Are Some Reactions Among Coppers.

TOBACCO COMMON UP TO 476

United Cigar Stores Also Strong—Some Gains Among Active Coppers Offset Declines in Others.

Copper issues were in some cases reactionary on the Curb yesterday, but the tobacco shares continued their advance. American Tobacco common, which opened at 463, rose to 476 and closed within a point of the top after sales of 705. United Cigar Stores sold up from 259 to 263 and closed at 261. New United States Lighting and Heating common sold up from 16½ to 18 on transactions of 500 and the preferred from 80⅛ to 85. The latter closed, however, at 80. Some of the reactions among the coppers were declines from 5½ to 5⅜ in Braden, from 4¾ to 4⅛ in Giroux, which returned to the opening level before the close, and from 8½ to 8⅛ in Greene-Cananea. Butte Coalition rose from 17¾ to 18, and Inspiration from 8¾ to 9. Trading in the bond list was less active, but well diversified.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Advance In "Met" Bonds.

Holders of Metropolitan Street Railway 5s who were not in close touch with the market had a pleasurable surprise last Saturday when they saw this issue quoted at 87 on the Stock Exchange sheets. The quotation was an error, the sale reported having been made at 81. It has since developed that the bondholders' joy was only a little beforehand. With the victory of the Third Avenue Bondholders' Committee in the courts, the way has been paved for a reorganization of the Metropolitan on the lines laid down in the bondholders' plan, and the company's bonds have advanced rapidly. Yesterday the 5s, which sold five days earlier at 81, touched 87⅞, and the 4s moved up to 55. Both quotations mark the highest price of the year for these securities.

Another View of 'Frisco Alliance.

Thomas J. Freeman, Vice President and General Manager of the Texas & Pacific, was heard from in New Orleans yesterday, denying that his company's failure to carry out certain provisions of the agreement made between the 'Frisco and the St. Louis & Iron Mountain had brought about an abrogation of the contracts. Judge Freeman says that a tentative proposal was submitted to the Directors of the Texas & Pacific and was unanimously voted down by them. As a result, no agreement was ever made allowing the 'Frisco to come into New Orleans over its rails. "The 'Frisco practically wanted us to turn our road over to them," Judge Freeman was quoted as saying. "We were to give them all of the local rights enjoyed by our line, and the 'Frisco wanted to pay only a small proportion of the maintenance costs of the line, when to all intents and purposes the larger part of the business moved would be the 'Frisco's. Improvements called for would have cost $2,000,000."

⁂

New Third Avenue Issues Off.

The old stock of the Third Avenue Railroad Company, which has the privilege of paying $45 a share under the reorganization plan and receiving 40 per cent. of the new 4 per cent. first mortgage refunding bonds and 45 per cent. in new stock, sold off yesterday from 6 to 4 to correspond with the declines in the new securities "when issued," which made their first appearance yesterday in Stock Exchange trading. On Monday the old Third Avenue stock sold as high as 13⅝. Tuesday's prices of the new bonds and the stock on the Curb at their first appearance in the trading were 40 and 84, which gave the old stock a valuation of between 6 and 7. Yesterday the new stock opened on the Exchange at 33½, and after selling to 34, closed at 33. The refunding first mortgage 4s sold up from 83¾ to 84½, and closed at 84. Figuring on the basis of ten shares, the holder of old stock would receive $336 worth, at the closing price of the new bonds, and $148 worth of new stock, making the market value of his new securities $484.50 against $450 which he would have to pay on his assessment, the difference putting a premium of $34.50 on ten shares of the old stock, which would figure out between 8¾ and 3⅞. The close at 4 represented a decline for the day of 2⅝ points.

⁂

Bank Clearings Better.

Statistics of bank clearings at the principal cities of the country this week, as compiled by Dun's Review, show a gain, astonishing at first glance, of 19.1 per cent. over the corresponding week of 1910 and of 12.4 per cent. over 1909. The comparison loses most of its force, however, when it is recollected that in both of the years with which comparison is made there were only five business days, because of the occurrence of Thanksgiving. This addition of one day to the comparison would make an addition of about 16.6 per cent. to the clearings, and therefore the gain over 1910 may be figured at 2.4 per cent., and, similarly, comparison with 1909 shows a loss of 4.2 per cent. with the extra day in the current week taken into consideration. Another factor which becomes increasingly important in clearings comparisons with the previous year, as the season advances, is that the setback in business was beginning to make itself felt from this time on.

⁂

An Independent Steel Man's View.

President King of the Jones & Laughlin Company was quoted in a dispatch from Pittsburgh yesterday as predicting that the 75 or 80 per cent. of capacity which is the average operating ratio at the mills at present, would be increased moderately, even allowing for the quietness in certain products during the Winter. Now that railroad orders are coming in, he said, it could be readily believed that manufacturing conditions are going to be more satisfactory. Business this year would prove to have been large but unprofitable.

⁂

Central's Treatment of Rutland.

There are usually at least two sides to a grievance story, and C. C. Paulding, solicitor for the New York Central, gave a different version yesterday of the division of charges between the New York Central and the Rutland. Minority stockholders of the latter are contending that their road is being discriminated against to keep down its earnings. Mr. Paulding says that the part of the through rate which was allotted to the Central, in the exhibits published by the protesting stockholders, included in most cases allowance for lighterage and other terminal expenses, as well as payments to other lines.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Chicago Issues Enjoy a Buoyant Advance, with Telephone Shares Leading.

HIGHER PRICE FOR COPPER

Sales of the Metal at 12¼ Cents Reported in Boston Yesterday.

Most of the stocks dealt in on other Exchanges held their gains yesterday.

Houston Oil shares, which had been quiescent for several weeks, displayed sudden strength and activity in Baltimore Friday, over 7,000 shares changing hands. The preferred stock advanced 3½ points, but eased off on late sales, with a net gain of 2¾. The common, though freely traded in, showed only a slight advance. In connection with the movement it was reported that the readjustment plan would be officially declared operative probably this week. Readjustment managers and managers of the syndicate formed to underwrite the new issue of timber certificates have been holding conferences in New York for several days, and, according to advices, have definitely agreed upon the allotment of the underwriting and the amount of timber certificates to be issued at once under the plan.

Sales of copper metal in small lots were reported in Boston as high as 12¼c., the highest point of the movement. This served to maintain prices of most minor copper shares, though the more prominent leaders of this group declined under taking of profits. Some of the specialties continued to rise, owing to a small supply. In the industrial list, commission house business was moderate and prices of several, like United Shoe Machinery, were slightly easier in sympathy with the general tendency to distribute speculative holdings. Steel common withstood the pressure of this kind better than the rest, declining but a small fraction. Activity and strength in American Pneumatic Service preferred lacked explanation. Telephone stocks were steady, and the railroad list was neglected.

Continued activity in Chicago Telephone stocks was the leading feature of trading on the Chicago Exchange, and carried the price of the shares to 141, holding the best at the close, compared with 138¼ Thursday night. The price yesterday was within a fraction of that of American Telephone and Telegraph. It is thought that practically all of the stockholders will avail themselves of the offer of an equal exchange of stock made by the parent company. In common with Telephone, almost the entire local list ruled strong. An advance of several points was made by Kansas City Light preferred, while the common rose almost 2. Chicago Railways securities were buoyant, the Series 1 rising a point and the 2s almost as much, on considerable activity. Smaller gains were made by Swift, Diamond Match, People's Gas, and Pneumatic Tool. Sears, Roebuck common, Commonwealth Edison, Can preferred, and some others receded fractionally.

The improvement noticeable in the Philadelphia market Thursday continued for a time yesterday, the trading again showing a tendency to broaden during the morning. In the afternoon, however, stagnation set in, and transactions were few and far between. Buying of Electric Storage Battery was a feature, the price advancing close to 56. Cambria Steel was firm, but not much helped by the early rise in United States Steel. Nor did the afternoon reaction in the latter cause any material selling of Cambria.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to The New York Times, were as follows:

At the beginning of business to-day the condition of the United States Treasury was: Working balance in Treasury offices, $73,731,150; in banks and Philippine Treasury, $34,792,474.

The total in the general fund was $130,965,204.

LOSES SUIT AGAINST BROKERS

Russell Thayer Tried to Recover $32,112 from Moore & Schley.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court dismissed yesterday the complaint in an action brought by Russell Thayer of Philadelphia against the Stock Exchange house of Moore & Schley for alleged losses on stock of the American Malting Company, bought in 1905. Thayer complained that he had bought 700 shares of the company's stock from Ervin & Co. of Philadelphia, the agents and correspondents of Moore & Schley, and paid $58,900 for it. He sued to recover $32,112, which he said was the amount he lost through alleged misrepresentations.

Thayer said he applied for a statement of the financial condition of the malting company before he got ready to sell his stock, as was his intention, and through Ervin & Co. received a statement that the company was doing better than it had done the year before and had a surplus of $225,000. Because of this, he said, he held onto the stock instead of selling it, as was his original intention, and the stock dropped from 70 to 25, at which figure he sold out. The information he received, he said, was false, and he declared that he was entitled to damages for his loss.

Moore & Schley declared that Ervin & Co. were not their agents for the sale of the stock, and that there was nothing in Thayer's complaint to connect them with Ervin & Co.'s representations.

EXPELLED FROM THE CURB.

Governing Committee Uses Authority in Case of Non-Paying Members.

The governing body of the Curb Association, which about a year ago undertook to give real government to the outside brokers who trade daily on Broad Street, asserted its power at its last meeting by expelling five brokers. The offense is one almost never heard of on the Stock Exchange—non-payment of dues.

The men expelled are George M. Gumpert, Jr., Percy T. Hill, E. M. Horton, E. R. Hudson, and Louis Levy. All have been members since the New York Curb Association was chartered last year on lines closely following the organization of the Stock Exchange. Business has been bad and the profits of the Curb men small for several years past.

25% " " February 3rd, 1912

LIMITS

The limits cover an area along the Spanish, Vermillion and Onaping Rivers, and their tributaries for five miles back on either side, estimated at 6,000 square miles, and are easily workable, and the whole territory is well watered with good floatable streams and lakes.

The Canadian Pacific Railway runs through the property from East to West and the Canadian Northern Railway is being constructed running North through the East side and then West along the Northerly limit.

PLANT

The Company's Mills and Plant are at Espanola, Ont., on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The Pulp Mill has a capacity of 140 tons (dry) pulp per day. A Paper Mill now under construction will be in operation by April, 1912; it will have a capacity of 100 tons news paper per day, and provision is being made that the capacity can be doubled at a minimum extra cost.

The Company owns its Water Power and Electric Power Plant from which 10,500 H.P. is now being used; in addition the Company owns employees' dwelling houses, general store, water supply and sewer system, etc.

ASSETS

The depreciated appraised value (Canadian Appraisal Co.) of the fixed assets including pulp mill as at Dec. 31st, 1910	$2,489,684
Actual cost of new Paper Mill in course of construction, and which will be completed in March, 1912	900,000
Surplus of liquid assets over liabilities as at Dec. 31st, 1910	222,500
	$3,612,184
Estimated value of standing timber as per report by Mr. John Brophy	10,000,000
	$13,612,184

FUTURE EARNINGS

The General Manager of the Company estimates that on the completion of the Paper Mill the net earnings of the Company will amount to at least $400,000 per year, before deducting Bond interest. This does not include any profits on railroad ties, or Jackpine lumber, which, in his estimate, should yield considerable revenue.

PREFERRED STOCK

An examination of the statement of the Company's Assets will show that, as a going concern, without taking into account the value of standing timber, (estimated by Mr. Brophy at $10,000,000) there is an equity of $107.50 for every share of Preferred Stock issued. This is without taking into account the surplus earnings for 1911.

ACCRUED DIVIDEND

Nearly five months of the half-yearly dividend of 3½%, payable January 15th, 1912, to holders of the stock, Dec. 31st, 1911, has accrued, which means that the Stock now offered at $100 carries with it accrued dividends of $3.00 per share, making the net cost $97.00 per share.

REPORTS ON THE PROPERTY

Before taking an interest in this Company we employed Mr. Hardy S. Ferguson, Consulting Engineer, of New York, a well-known expert, to make for us a special report on the property as it exists at present and we received a satisfactory one, the original of which may be seen at our office.

EARNINGS

The operations of the Company have been very successful and the earnings have steadily increased, as shown by the following figures: those for 1909 and 1910 have been certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Coy.

	1909	1910	1911

*The estimated figures for 1911 are based upon results up to October 31, 1911.

For the period up to the end of October, 1911, the net price received by the Company for its Pulp has been 60 cents per ton in excess of the net price received for the year 1910, while the cost of production has decreased over $1.00 per ton.

Prospectus and Subscription Blanks will be mailed on request.

SUBSCRIPTION LISTS CLOSE NOVEMBER 28, AT 3 P. M.—OR EARLIER.

Cheques covering 10% of the amount subscribed for must be sent in with application for allotment and we reserve the right to reject any subscription.

TO HOLDERS OF CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT OF THE CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK FOR CONSOLIDATED FOUR PER CENT. BONDS OF THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD COMPANY:

The delay in consummating the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization of December 2, 1909, has been caused by protracted litigation with the Public Service Commission of the First District, resulting from its refusal to authorize the issue of the securities provided for in the Plan of Reorganization. Both the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals have unanimously upheld the contention of your Committee and ruled that the Commission should have granted the order applied for.

A notice is being published offering stockholders the privilege of availing of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization as in said notice stated, and the CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY of New York as Syndicate Manager has agreed to take the place of non-assenting stockholders and to guarantee the sum of $7,200,000 for the purposes of the reorganization.

$37,258,000 Consolidated Bonds, out of a total issue of $37,560,000, have been deposited under the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization, being over ninety-nine per cent. of the outstanding bonds.

Interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum from January 1, 1910, to January 1, 1912, on the Refunding Bonds of the new company will be paid in cash to holders of certificates of deposit at the time of the delivery of the new securities, and the Refunding Bonds will bear the coupon maturing July 1, 191., and subsequent coupons.

JOACHIM PASSENGERS GO ON IN VIGILANCIA

All but Eight Are Transferred at Sea from the Seguranca Without Accident.

EIGHT RETURN TO THIS CITY

Bryan Makes a Speech, and Passengers Will Buy a Loving Cup for Seguranca's Captain.

NASSAU, New Providence, Nov. 24.—All but eight of the passengers of the stranded Atlas Line steamer Prinz Joachim were transferred to-day from the Ward Line steamer Seguranca to the steamer Vigilancia, twenty miles from Nassau. The eight will return to New York in the Seguranca. Telling of the transfer, William Jennings Bryan said:

"No incident occurred during the transfer of the passengers from the Prinz Joachim to the Seguranca. Everything was orderly. The weather was calm and there was no nervousness anywhere."

Mr. Bryan expressed marked admiration for the Captain of the Prinz Joachim. The promptitude, energy, skill, and discipline of his crew, he said, were perfect. He also praised the Captain of the Seguranca for his quick response to the call for assistance.

Mr. Bryan emphasized the opinion that there should be two wireless operators on every ship, so that one might always be on duty.

Mr. Bryan made a speech at a dinner on Thursday in the Seguranca. Afterward a handsome purse was collected for a loving cup for the Captain of the Seguranca as a mark of appreciation for his kindness and care of the passengers.

The Vigilancia left at 9 P. M. yesterday for Jamaica, while the Seguranca, with those who remained in her, is expected to reach New York City on Monday morning. The eight passengers in her, according to a list made public this afternoon by Hamburg-American Line officials, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott of Philadelphia, Eugene Genozi, Joseph Coblentz, Oscar Graham, and Charles Jaburg of New York; Ellis Carhuff of Newark, N. J., and William Banner of Hartford, Conn.

The Prinz Joachim is still hard and fast on Atwood Key, in the West Indies, where she ran ashore on Wednesday morning. A wireless message received by Emil Boas, Resident Director of the line, says:

"We are still in the same position. All well. Passengers gone off on S. S. Seguranca. Part of crew not necessary (stewards) gone off on S. S. Admiral Schley. U. S. S. Peoria here from Guantanamo, Cuba, to-day and took mail."

DEFAULTS $50,000 BAIL.

Note of T. B. Taylor, ex-Banker, Is Unpaid and Securities Worthless.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 24.—A note for $50,000 which Thomas B. Taylor, President of the defunct New England Trust Company of Providence, gave to obtain his release from prison, in which he was held for nearly two years in default of $350,000 bail, was defaulted today, and Receiver Joseph P. Burlingame believed that none of the 1,400 depositors will obtain their money.

The note was secured by stocks in companies in which Taylor was interested. This collateral, it was stated to-day by Receiver Burlingame, will be difficult to realize upon. Taylor left the State immediately after signing the note.

The company closed its doors on Jan. 10, 1908, with $350,000 liabilities and $40,000 assets.

856. PANAMA CANAL SUPPLIES.—Sealed proposals, in triplicate, will be received at the office of the General Purchasing Officer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, Washington, until Nov. 28, 1911, for furnishing hose, steel, and manganese steel castings, lumber, and piles. (Circular No. 663.)

7,638. WOODWORKING MACHINERY.—The American Consul General at Halifax, N. S., reports that the issue of The Canada Lumberman and Woodworker for Nov. 1 contains an item which states that a South African manufacturer's agent wishes to get in touch with manufacturers and exporters of woodworking machinery.

7,639. SEAMLESS SILK STOCKINGS.—A sample of a seamless silk stocking said to have been imported from the United States has been submitted to an American Consular officer by a European merchant, who states that stockings of this class have been obtained through London dealers, who sold them to the local trade at $4.05 to $4.28 per dozen.

7,640. LOW-SIDED GOODS AND BALLAST WAGONS.—The American Vice Consul General at Bangkok, Siam, has forwarded two copies of the specifications and forms of tender for low-sided goods and ballast wagons for the Royal Siamese State Railways, Southern Line. Bids for these supplies will be received until Jan. 30, 1912.

7,641. GRASS SEEDS.—A leading New Zealand firm informs an American Consular officer that it would like to arrange connections in the United States for the import and export of grass seeds.

7,642. COTTON GOODS, IMITATION LEATHER, CURTAINS, AND RUGS.—An American Consul reports that a well-known manufacturer's agent, who is now representing certain lines of English soft goods, is desirous of obtaining American agencies for other lines not competing with samples he already carries. He would especially like to travel for general lines of American cotton goods, including prints, ducks, denims, dungarees, imitation leather goods for the upholstering and furnishing, chenille table covers and curtains, Axminster mats and rugs, &c.

7,643. MATERIALS FOR WATER SUPPLY WORKS.—A report from an American Consul states that a municipality in his district will in the near future, be calling for bids for the supplying of materials in connection with a water works system about to be constructed. The work will include the construction of concrete dams, twenty miles of flow line conduit, and ten miles of pressure pipe, together with all accessories and equipment for the daily delivery of 16,000,000 gallons of pure water to the city.

7,644. BUILDING MATERIAL AND CANDY AND CONFECTIONERY MACHINERY.—Work has just been started on the erection of a large addition to a Canadian candy factory. It will be six stories high in front and eight stories in the rear. The frontage will be 100 feet, and the depth, 60 feet. The building will be of reinforced concrete and of fireproof construction throughout. American exporters of building materials, in the opinion of an American consular officer, would do well to get in touch with the contractors, while firms making improved machinery and devices for the confectionery and candy trade may find opportunities for the sale of same by communicating with the owners of the establishment.

ERB BACK FROM HIS TRIP.

Denies That New Hawley-Erb System Is Interested in Pere Marquette.

Newman Erb, who became interested with Edwin Hawley recently in the control of the Minneapolis & St. Louis and the Iowa Central, and subsequently became President of both roads, succeeding Theodore P. Shonts, said yesterday on his return from an inspection trip that the new Hawley-Erb system from the Canadian border to the Gulf would be completed and in operation in about eighteen months, or, at least, a year before the opening of the Panama Canal. It was the prospect of getting a large amount of north and south business, which is expected to develop with the new routing of freight across the Isthmus that brought about the new arrangement of Hawley properties.

Mr. Erb spent eight days on the road, during which he inspected the main divisions of both Hawley roads, and the Ann Arbor, of which he is Chairman. He reported that business in the Middle West is fairly good, but lacking in snap, owing principally to apprehensions of new attacks by the Department of Justice and the ever-present possibility of new legislation of a character disturbing to business.

It has been reported in recent weeks that the Hawley-Erb group was to take over control of the Père Marquette, purchasing $11,000,000 of the common stock from J. P. Morgan & Co. and a majority of the preferred from individual holders. Possession was to be taken, according to the report, in the name of the Chesapeake & Ohio, which connects with the Michigan Road at Toledo and Chicago. Mr. Erb said yesterday, however, that he had no interest in the Père Marquette.

Mr. Hawley had already denied any participation in the reported negotiations for the purchase of this road. The belief persists among well-informed railroad men that the Morgan stock holdings will eventually be acquired by the Canadian Pacific, which could use the Père Marquette to better advantage than any system lying on this side of the border. The Canadian Pacific attempted some months ago to obtain that part of the Père Marquette's mileage lying in Ontario, but the proposition was rejected by the latter's Directors, owing to the weakened position in which the rest of the system would be left.

AN OFFER TO G. H. EARLE.

Some Say It Is Chairmanship of the Westinghouse Company.

A report from Philadelphia on Thursday night contained the information that George H. Earle, recently defeated candidate for Mayor on the Republican ticket, had received an offer of the Presidency of a large bank in New York.

A dispatch from Philadelphia carried on the news tickers yesterday morning said that Mr. Earle admitted a high executive position in New York, but not in connection with any bank, had been offered to him.

Later it was almost definitely reported that the position referred to was the Chairmanship of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, to succeed the late Robert Mather. It was reported that Mr. Earle was favored for the place by George Westinghouse, who has been out of sympathy with the management of the company since the receivership.

A prominent banker, qualified to speak for the financial interests which have directed the Westinghouse affairs since its money troubles, said that if it had been decided to offer the Chairmanship to Mr. Earle he was not aware of it. Another Director and executive officer of the company added the information that he did not believe that any one in New York was aware of any such offer to Mr. Earle.

A committee of five Directors has been named to nominate a successor to Mr. Mather. Two of these men are in Pittsburgh and one is in Boston.

MEXICO RAILWAYS EARN LESS

Gross Earnings Were More, but Operating Expenses Cut Profits.

The annual report of the National Railways of Mexico show gross earnings for 1911 of $61,934,000, Mexican silver, an increase of $451,000, Mexican. Operating expenses consumed $39,279,000, leaving net earnings of $22,279,000. Reduced to gold at the average price for the Mexican dollar, net earnings amounted to $11,327,000, a decrease of $1,050,000 for the year.

The surplus for the year was $2,558,000, Mexican. A dividend of $2,306,000 was paid on the first preferred shares and a balance of $562,000, which included a charge of 5 per cent. of net profits, was carried to the profit and loss surplus.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Both in business confidence and in volume of business transactions the situation continues to improve. The gain is very gradual and conservative, and there is little disposition to go beyond satisfaction of immediate wants—but it is a gain; and the significant thing is that this improvement has now been maintained for several weeks. The cessation of disturbing international difficulties, the easier conditions of the international money markets, the growing conviction that domestic economic problems are shaping themselves for the better, and the pressing need of doing something to replenish depleted stocks, all contribute to the improvement which is being achieved.

Railroad traffic earnings, during two weeks of November, made, however, only slight gain. Business in both cotton and woolen goods is more active, and the entire dry goods trade, therefore, alike in sentiment and in actual output, occupies a much better position. Retail trade is also improved by the seasonable weather and the holiday shopping. Leather and hides are quieter. Bank clearings which, during three weeks of November, increased 3.4 per cent., reflect the somewhat quickened movement of domestic trade; and this improvement—conservative though it be—is all the more noteworthy because of the prosperity of foreign trade, which continues to advance; its volume in October was the largest for that month on record. Moreover, merchandise exports in October were next to the largest of any month; and the balance of trade in favor of the United States thus far this year amounts to $400,000,000. At New York, during the latest week, merchandise exports amounted to $17,565,000, being $1,151,000 in excess of the imports.

Bradstreet's says:

Seasonable weather has continued to exert a salutary influence on retail trade, holiday buying has expanded, jobbers at a number of centres have done a better business in the way of reorders, operations in the iron and steel lines display more zest as the result of recent heavy buying by the railroads, and the outlook in the latter line is quite encouraging. On the other hand, Spring trade, speaking of it as a whole, is still feeling the check-rein of conservative buying, prices for iron and steel remain very low because competition is yet in evidence, trade in larger lines at Southern points is quiet, due principally, if not wholly, to the low price of cotton, and outdoor operations are generally waning. In fact, a strict analysis of all the trends indicates that there is considerable room for further improvement, and that, from the viewpoint of profits, things are not altogether satisfactory. Generally, the situation indicates that retail trade has gained momentum; some old stocks carried over from last Winter are being worked off, and if edible commodities were not so high in price, sustained improvement would be more than likely.

Requests for prompt shipments are still a feature with most orders, thus confirming the belief that stocks do not take up much space on the shelves of final purveyors. But, as already remarked, Spring trade is rather slow in developing, for buyers appear to be determined to pursue a waiting policy, chiefly because they want to be cautious, and partly because of habits acquired during a rather prolonged period of unsettlement.

Recent developments have made for better employment of labor in producing industries, and the railways expect an increased tonnage as the result of heavy orders for finished steel. Fuel is in improved demand, but the tonnage is probably behind that of last year.

Offer Paper Mill Preferred Stock.

C. Meredith & Co., limited, of Montreal are offering at par, with a 20 per cent. bonus in common stock, $1,500,000 preferred stock of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills. The company is said to own 6,000 square miles of timber lands on the Spanish, Vermillion, and Onaping Rivers, with $10,000,000 of standing timber. The mills are using 10,500 horse power, with that much more water power ready to be developed.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—News was mixed in tenor, but it was apparent that developments were not sufficiently important to stimulate aggressive speculative operations. Fractional advances at the ouset were the result of less favorable Argentina advices, mainly in the nature of unsettled conditions in the harvesting sections, but conservative authorities were indisposed to believe that a short period of precipitation would prove detrimental. Claims of rust in various sections of that country were unabated, but apparently the prospect as a whole tends to overshadow possible damage to only an extremely limited area.

Prospects of rather light world's shipments, estimated at less than 10,000,000 bushels, against 13,000,000 bushels last year, was also a factor, while private cables stating that the hostilities between Italy and Turkey may result in the blockading of the Dardenelles had some influence. Apropos to this, however, the opinion expressed in export circles that, with the Berlin treaty, it was unlikely that shipments from one neutral country to another neutral point would be interfered with.

Selling pressure did not appear to be heavy, but was inclined to increase on the small upturns, with further evidence of switching from the December option at Chicago into later deliveries. The inactivity of the cash wheat markets in general and rather slow milling situation encourages bearish operations, especially as apprehension as to Argentina is not great at present, and as claims of the wheat market resting on a domestic basis fail to have appreciable effect at present. With extremely favorable weather conditions in the American Northwest, movement of Spring wheat was more moderate, but still continues of fair proportions. The Modern Miller report, referring to conditions of the new Winter crop, stated that little damage had occurred. There was export business of about 12 loads of Manitoba wheat, with private advices stating that there were still areas in Canada where wheat was unthrashed and in shock, the work being retarded by recent unsettled and cold weather. Bradstreet's exports were liberal for the week, totaling to 4,000,000 bushels, and since the season aggregate to 66,000,000 bushels, against 46,000,000 bushels last year and 69,000,000 bushels two years ago. Cash No. 2 red quoted at 99c, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.05; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.13¼; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.10¼.

CORN.—There was a short display of firmness at the start, due to a fair speculative demand from the bull clique, but, with the sagging tendency of wheat, prices closed at small declines. The weather was more favorable, inasmuch as unsettled conditions east of the river were being followed by clear and cool. Country offerings were more moderate, and it appears to be this hedge pressure that limits the upward tendency at present. Sentiment generally favors higher prices, however, and on the small declines there is a good demand. Interior receipts were 635,000 bushels, against 414,000 bushels last week and 316,000 bushels a year ago, showing an increase so far this week of over 1,000,000 bushels as compared with last week and 600,000 bushels a year ago. Shipments are also liberal, totaling to about 400,000 bushels above last week and last year. Bradstreet's exports were 189,000 bushels, and since July 1 amount to 11,000,000 bushels, against 8,000,000 bushels last year. Export business of a few loads were reported. Cash No. 2 quoted at 70½c, free on board, afloat, for export, January to March shipment.

OATS.—Prices were easier with other grain. There is no special news with the cash situation steady and the future market seems dependent upon other grain for its fluctuations at this time. Movement so far this week shows receipts of 1,745,000 bushels, against 1,687,000 bushels last week, and 2,214,000 bushels last year. Shipments were 1,243,000 bushels; 2,016,000 bushels, and 1,799,000 bushels, respectively. Cash standards and No. 3 white quoted at 54c; No. 2 white, 54½c.

PROVISIONS.—A heavier tone prevailed. Receipts were liberal with support lacking in futures. Discounts of the near-by deliveries reflects slow distribution and liberal stocks.

COTTONSEED OIL.

There appeared to be nervousness relative to the maturing of the November option, with a disposition to curtail commitments pending developments to-day, which is the last day for delivering oil on November contracts. Opinions were mixed as to the amount of oil owing and to be tendered, but with sales following the official close yesterday at about 5.60 bears were inclined to be jubilant. Notices of over 3,000 barrels circulated, and about as many more would not be surprising to-day. The easier lard market tended to discourage buying, with sentiment against values influenced to a large extent by the lull in consuming demand and large crop estimates, but withal accumulations are slow in taking place and crude values are not shaded materially. Prices at the South were 4.34 to 4.40.

COTTON.

The publication of several bearish crop estimates induced but little pressure, and ostensibly there was no change in the situation. Prices ruled from 1 to 5 points lower during the day, and although the hesitancy noted around the 9c level has tended to make advocates of lower prices more cautious, speculative buying is not in important volume at present. This is partly restricted by the idea that on any upturn of magnitude the South will sell more freely, while on the other hand the unwillingness of holders to part with cotton, excepting possibly some low grade staple at concessions, precludes the possibility of a material setback at the moment.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal estimated the crop at 15,025,000 bales, exclusive of linters against their estimate on the same basis of 11,828,000 bales last year. R. A. Lee & Co. of Charlotte, N. C., placed the possible outturn at 15,686,000 bales, against their figures of 12,469,000 bales last season as a commercial crop. Members of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange, numbering 182, forwarded an estimate of 14,811,000 bales as an average, and it seems as though foreigners are not inclined to take such an optimistic view of the probable outturn as interests on this side. A prominent Liverpool concern published an estimate of 14,586,000 bales, but some interests believed this to be rather low, giving, as an instance, the estimated yield for North Carolina of 756,000 bales, while that State in the last ginning report showed 716,000 bales.

Liverpool cables were slightly disappointing and had little effect, although there was no special news accompanying the relative heaviness. There were advices from Alexandria, Egypt, stating that estimates were being further reduced, and that a maximum outturn of only 6,000,000 cantars was expected, which is equivalent to approximately 1,200,000 bales. In regard to reports circulated on Thursday that Bombay mills would consume 250,000 bales of low-grade American cotton in excess of any previous year's taking, were claims that the continent would also be a larger buyer than heretofore, as continental spinners are credited with being the largest outside users of the India crop. Late reports from the South would tend to convey the impression that there will be considerable low-grade cotton this season.

The week-end figures proved to be somewhat more bearish than had been expected. The gain in the visible was 262,000 bales, following an increase of 174,000 bales last week, and comparing with a gain of 185,000 bales a year ago; totaling to 3,787,000 bales, against 3,286,000 bales last season. Spinners' takings were only 406,000 bales, against 452,000 bales last week and 408,000 bales a year ago. The into-sight was 668,000 bales, and since Sept. 1 6,600,000 bales, against 5,875,000 bales last year and 5,769,000 bales two years ago. Important spot markets were generally unchanged, with middling locally quoted at 9.45c.

COFFEE.

COFFEE.—Coffee declined 6 to 8 points at the opening, owing to weakness in Havre and under hammering on the large stocks in Brazil. As the day advanced the market gained strength with active buying by leading operators, part of which was believed to be by some of the strongest interests in the trade, and final prices were 2 to 8 points net higher, with total sales of 105,750 bags. Havre was ¾f lower early, but closed at a net loss of ¼. Hamburg was ¼ to 1 pfennig lower, and Rio declined 25 reis, while Santos was 50 to 100 reis higher.

Weekly Failure Report.

The Middle States had 83, New England 37, Southern 63, Western 56, Northwestern 19, and Far Western 35. Canada had 34, against 31 for the previous week. About 87 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 8 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Half-Million-Dollar Deal on Upper Broadway Involving Block Front—Activity in Times Square Section—Another Big Astor Lease Pending—Long Island Sales.

A five-hundred-thousand-dollar deal involving an entire block, with a frontage of 200 feet on Broadway, in the upper Washington Heights section was one of the noteworthy transactions of an active realty market yesterday. A large corner of the plot is to be improved with a vaudeville and moving-picture theatre. By an interesting coincidence, the sale at the same time has been announced of another large plot on St. Nicholas Avenue in the immediate locality, which will also be improved with a theatre of similar type.

The block deal takes in the property bounded by Broadway, Fort Washington Avenue, and 160th and 161st Streets. The frontages are 200 feet on Broadway, Fort Washington Avenue, and 160th Street and 270 feet on 161st Street. The property has been owned by the Loyal L. Smith estate, of which J. Romaine Brown & Co. are executors, and has been sold only once in the last fifty years, having been a part of the old Sheppard Knapp estate.

Lewin Seelig, representing William Fox, is the buyer of the plot. Mr. Fox has been an active developer of theatres in the upper west side. Only a short time ago he bought the southeast corner of Cathedral Parkway (110th Street) and Broadway, occupied by the Nemo Theatre, and which he has had under lease for some time. He is also finishing a theatre on the northwest corner of Broadway and Ninety-sixth Street and controls the Washington Theatre, at Amsterdam Avenue and 149th Street.

Mr. Fox proposes to improve the northern portion of the block, taking in a 100-foot frontage on Broadway and running through to Fort Washington Avenue, with a four-story building, the lower part of which will be a theatre, with a seating capacity for 2,800 persons. Louis Kempner & Son were the brokers in the transaction.

The second theatre deal involves the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 164th Street, a plot 133 by 171 and irregular, which has been purchased by Benjamin Moss from Charles Laue. Plans for a three-story theatre and office building are being prepared. The house will have a seating capacity of 1,800, and the entire investment, including the cost of the building, which is placed at about $175,000, will represent $325,000.

Mortimer House on Fifth Av. Leased.

Richard Mortimer's big five-story English-basement residence, at 709 Fifth Avenue, has been leased by Pease & Elliman to William H. Erhart, whose dwelling at 43 East Fifty-third Street was recently damaged by fire. The Mortimer house is on the east side of the avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, opposite the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. It occupies a plot 28 by 100 feet. Mr. Erhart was the buyer, through the same brokers, of the former Thaw residence, at 1,055 Fifth Avenue, several months ago.

The J. P. Whiton Stuart Company has leased for George Sherman the residence at 8 West Fifty-fifth Street, furnished, for the Winter, to J. K. O. Sherwood.

Henry B. Hyde's Old Home Sold.

Two of the best-known residences in Fortieth Street, 9 and 11 East, have just been sold by the widow of Henry B. Hyde, the founder of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The former was Mr. Hyde's old residence. The plot is 50 by 96.10, and the purchasing price is said to have been about $325,000. The name of the purchaser was not divulged by Mrs. Hyde's attorneys, Alexander & Green, who, however, confirmed the sale.

Deal In Times Square Section.

The four-story and basement dwelling 122 West Forty-third Street, on a lot 21.5 by 100.5, has been sold by Mrs. Mary Dellinger through De Salding Brothers and Pease & Elliman. The buyer will occupy it.

Another Big Astor Lease.

Negotiations are reported practically closed for a lease of the plot 226 to 250 West Forty-sixth Street by William Waldorf Astor to Edward Margolies. Monogram Blankets Not "Embroideries"—Sewing Machine Duty.

According to a decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers, blankets made in part of wool and embroidered with a monogram do not cease to be blankets under the terms of the Tariff act of 1909. Duty was assessed on the merchandise under the embroidery provision at the rate of 50 cents a pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem, whereas E. W. Shields, the importer, set up the claim that the merchandise remains "blankets" in spite of the monogram. After a consideration of the provisions of the law, Judge Chamberlain reaches the conclusion that the blankets are not embroideries.

In sustaining a claim filed by the American Type Founders Company, the board holds that thread book-sewing machines are not "manufactures of metal," but are to be regarded as in the category of "sewing machines" in the sense contemplated by the law. Duty at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem is granted, while the Collector's assessment under the metal schedule at 45 per cent. is reversed.

The Board has denied a contention made by Peter A. Frasse & Co., relating to the classification of crank shafts of steel. The Custom House authorities exacted duty at 45 per cent. under the act of 1897, as "manufactures of metal." The importers alleged that the articles are rough finished and fall within the paragraph for "forgings." This is denied by Judge Fischer.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The storm that was central over the great lakes Thursday has moved to the New England Coast and has increased greatly in intensity. It has caused rain and snow in the North Atlantic States, rain in the South Atlantic States, and snow in the Ohio Valley and mountain districts as far south as Eastern Tennessee and Western Carolina.

High winds occurred Friday afternoon on the South Atlantic Coast and increasing winds were reported from the Middle Atlantic and New England coasts Friday night.

Decidedly colder weather prevails east of the Mississippi River except in New England, and Friday night freezing temperature extended into Northern Georgia and Northern Alabama.

Over the Mississippi Valley and the Northwest a reaction to higher temperature is in progress.

Indications are that the weather will be fair Saturday and Sunday over practically the entire country.

The temperature will be lower Saturday on the immediate Atlantic Coast. It will rise Saturday in the Mississippi Valley and Sunday in the Ohio Valley, the Gulf States, and throughout the Atlantic States.

Winds along the New England Coast will be high west and northwest, diminishing by Saturday night; Middle Atlantic Coast, brisk northwest, diminishing; South Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have high west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair and colder Saturday; Sunday fair, with rising temperature; high northwest winds, diminishing.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and colder Saturday; Sunday fair, with rising temperature; brisk northwest winds, diminishing.

Northern New England—Clearing and colder Saturday; Sunday fair; high northwest winds.

Southern New England—Fair and much colder Saturday; Sunday fair; high northwest winds, diminishing.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

PRAYED AS SHE SHOT HER HUSBAND DEAD

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy Tells Jury One Kind Word Might Have Changed All.

TOOK EMPLOYER'S REVOLVER

Dr. Gregory Testifies That Deserted Wife Was Insane—Case Goes to the Jury on Monday.

Mrs. Frances O'Shaughnessy, who killed her husband, George, on May 5 last, resumed her story on the witness stand in General Sessions yesterday. Her low tones reached all those in the courtroom and brought tears from many eyes. Talking about May 4, the witness said:

"That night George came home early for the first time in many days. He asked me to get a divorce, and said he loved Tessie Hayes more than he did me. I told him that I would go and see Tessie's grandmother, but he said: 'That will do you no good, for she knows all about the relations between her granddaughter and myself.' I reminded him that our little child was coming and he said: 'Go and see the doctor.'

"He put a package under his pillow, and after he had left I opened it. I didn't want to learn about his business, but I thought it was the silver mash bag he had promised me as a present on our wedding anniversary and had given to Tessie instead. I found it contained letters from Tessie, and after I read one of them I dropped the rest to the floor and prayed. I was stunned and disappointed. I then went to see Mr. Healey, who employed George, but he had gone to business, and I talked with Mrs. Healey.

"I went to see her again on May 5 and gave her some letters. I tore up some of the others after I read them, for they were so terrible. I then went home and prayed. Some of the letters which were written first were only affectionate, but some were nonsense. The last ones were not nice.

"After I had prayed I went to Mrs. Ford's to get a book I had been reading, but I couldn't find it, so I went into Mr. Ford's room and took his revolver from the drawer and looked at it and thought how easy it would be to end my troubles. [The Fords had been her employers.] I prayed against it, but it seemed to fascinate me, and every time I passed the room I stopped to look at it. Then I took it home.

"George came in at about 2 o'clock, and we spoke about the letters. I told him I had burned some and given some others to Mrs. Healey. I said: 'George, is it true that you were going to abandon me in England?' He smiled, and I said: 'Did Tessie help you; you planned it very nicely.' He smiled again and said: 'Yes, that is all true.' I wanted him to give her up and asked him to come back to me and go to church, but it was all no use. I was so tired and weary and ill that I almost gave up. Then I remembered the revolver, and, picking it up, I fired the shots. I prayed that I would not miss.

"Then I prayed for him again. I kissed him, but I didn't kneel. As I went out I told Mrs. Geyer that George had gone forever. I walked up Third Avenue until I met a policeman, and then I told him what I had done and asked to be arrested."

Assistant District Attorney Edwards took up the cross-examination of Mrs. O'Shaughnessy at this point:

"Did your husband kneel when you shot him?"

"He did not kneel. He was washing his hands."

"Did you remind him about the child before you shot at him?"

"I reminded him of many things about my home, how we had loved each other, but it was no use. I was pleading with him to do what was right."

"How many times did you shoot?"

"I shot twice. I remember that noise. I don't remember pulling the trigger."

"Do you remember making a statement to Assistant District Attorney Stickney after the shooting, in which you said George spoke to you when you picked up the gun?"

"I don't remember now. I remember making a statement. The trouble I had then was on my mind. I wanted to get it all over and tell some one, any one, of my troubles. I was heartbroken."

Here the witness began to cry, but recovered herself, and in reply to a question from Mr. Edwards said:

"After I shot him I kissed him. I don't know whether I intended to use the revolver on George or not when I took it from Mr. Ford's. I wasn't sure of myself or him then."

"Was it in your mind to shoot him on the night before May 5?"

"I don't think so. I simply thought of the revolver. I was thinking about myself and my life and what it all came to. I think it was at 12 o'clock on the morning of May 5 that I made up my mind to shoot George. I prayed then and think I determined to shoot him then."

"Would you have shot George if he had promised to give it all up at that time?"

"No, sir; it would have lightened my heart, it would have made things different, but I don't know what effect it would have had upon my determination. I think, though, that if I had heard the words it would have taken the weight from my heart, but he didn't say the words, so I can't say what would have happened. Perhaps a few words might have changed it all."

"Do you think your life would have been changed if he had spoken kindly to you?"

"I can't answer, I can't answer. There were many things on my mind then—religion, worry, and, because I loved him so, a bit of jealousy, perhaps. But just what effect it would have had I can't tell you."

Mr. Edwards then offered in evidence several letters written to her by her husband, which spoke of an operation performed upon her several months before May 5.

"Yes, I received all those letters, but why don't you show the answers? I didn't have the operation performed," replied the witness.

Simeon Ford, whose wife employed Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, was then called to the stand. He said Mrs. O'Shaughnessy had an excellent reputation. Dr. Gregory, the chief alienist at Bellevue Hospital, where Mrs. O'Shaughnessy's child was born, was then called. He said:

"From her childishly frank attitude toward the crime and other things, I came to the conclusion that she was suffering from acute insanity of the melancholy type."

He was put through a severe cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Weller, who appeared with Mr. Edwards, but his testimony was not shaken.

Judge Foster adjourned the case until Monday when it will be submitted to the jury. As Mrs. O'Shaughnessy was leaving the courtroom to return to her cell in the Tombs Capt. Joseph O'Brien of the court squad handed her her fur cape, and said:

"Good night, Frances."

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy smiled faintly and thanked him.

During the day it was rumored that Tessie Hayes was in the Criminal Court Building and had fainted in Assistant District Attorney Edwards's office. Both Assistant District Attorneys Edwards and Weller refused to make any statement about the rumor.

MRS. DOWNS RETALIATES.

Has Mrs. S. A. Rockefeller, Who Sued Her, Arrested for Misusing Mails.

Mrs. Anna M. Downs, who is being sued by Mrs. Sarah A. Rockefeller for $50,000 for the alienation of her husband's affections, obtained Mrs. Rockefeller's arrest yesterday on a charge of sending improper letters through the mail.

Mrs. Downs complained to Anthony Comstock, the Postal Inspector, and he took an interest in the matter. Mrs. Rockefeller was paroled by Magistrate Barlow in the West Side Court in the custody of her counsel, Harry Kayser.

In her petition to the Supreme Court for temporary alimony in her separation suit against her husband, a few days ago, Mrs. Rockefeller submitted a table of her husband's alleged visits to Mrs. Downs's apartments.

GARAGE FIRE OFF BROADWAY.

25 Cars Destroyed or Damaged in the Sidney B. Bowman Plant.

A fire last night in the basement of the four-story brick building at 231 West Forty-ninth Street, just off Broadway, occupied by the Sidney B. Bowman Auto Company, destroyed or badly damaged twenty-five automobiles stored there. The loss may amount close to $40,000.

It was a difficult fire to fight, as the smoke poured out of the basement in dense clouds. There was the danger, too, that the flames might communicate with gasoline tanks, and Acting Chief Martin came on a second alarm. At his direction, holes were chopped in the thick cement floor and a deluge of water was poured into the basement. It took nearly an hour to get the flames under control.

McMAHON IS CONVICTED.

Guilty of Manslaughter for Shooting Leary, Whom His Daughter Accused.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 24.—Frank W. McMahon, who shot and killed George A. Leary, a real estate operator, whom he accused of betraying his eighteen-year-old daughter, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury to-day.

The shooting occurred last May near the residence of the victim in West Philadelphia. McMahon was discharged by the Coroner, but subsequently was arrested on a warrant sworn to by members of the dead man's family. Much interest was aroused in the case by the publication of letters written by the girl to Leary, but they were not introduced at the trial, Judge Bregy ruling strongly against the introduction of the "unwritten law." In his charge to-day the Judge said:

"It matters not what grievance McMahon had or whether it was real or imaginary, if he went with the intention of killing Leary because of that grievance, or with the intention to kill him if he refused to do something, then he is guilty of murder in the first degree."

Testimony introduced by the defense that there had been a struggle left the way open for the manslaughter verdict.

SAVES NEGRO FROM LYNCHING

Father of Girl Attacked Begs Mob Not to Disgrace Kansas.

SPRING HILL, Kan., Nov. 24.—To save the name of Kansas a father to-day prevented the lynching of a negro who had attacked his daughter. While Clarence Davis, a young negro, sat shackled to a chair in a pool hall, 200 men who had captured him for an attack upon Ruth Fike, 14 years old, argued the question of taking the law into their own hands. Twenty speeches were made. At last a tall farmer pulled the negro toward the door and cried:

"Come on, boys; we'll burn the scoundrel at the stake."

Willing hands dragged the negro to the street. At this juncture J. A. Fike, father of the girl, arrived. Pushing aside the mob, he reached the negro's side. Addressing himself to the crowd, he declared that the men must disperse and let the law take its course.

"This is the man who made the atrocious attack on my daughter," he said, "but 'Judge Lynch' does not live in civilized Kansas any more. To burn this fellow to death will only scandalize the country. Let the law take its course."

After a conference the mob turned the negro over to Fike, who took the culprit from the scene.

CHURCH LETS RICHESON GO.

Resignation, Tabled a Month Ago, Is Accepted, Amid Sobs of Members.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—The resignation of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, the Baptist clergyman, charged with the murder of Avis Linnell, which was tabled a month ago, was accepted this evening by the members of the Emanuel Baptist Church. Resolutions of regret and sympathy were adopted and a copy sent to the accused clergyman.

The committee, which acted on the resignation, stated that the pastor's present predicament has nothing to do whatever with the acceptance of the resignation, and that they still believe that he is innocent of the crime of which he is charged. When the resolutions were read many of the congregation could not restrain their tears.

PACKERS GAIN TWO WEEKS.

Criminal Trial Postponed Till Dec. 6 to Allow Another Appeal.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States District Court to-day granted the indicted Chicago packers a delay in their criminal trial until Dec. 6, pending proceedings for the defendants before the United States Supreme Court.

Counsel for the packers will seek further delay when the Federal Supreme Court reconvenes at Washington on Dec. 4. A motion for a stay order, in the form of a supersedeas, will be presented then to the Supreme Court.

The petition in bankruptcy mentions the petitioner's private debts and those of the firm of Rockefeller Brothers, which was composed of Harrison and his brother Roydon, now dead. The firm's liabilities, according to the schedule, amount to $11,860 and the assets $9,500. The firm had a cement works in Utica Avenue, Flatbush.

Car Snuff Throwers Locked Up.

Withdraw Motion in Willett Case.

William Willett, Jr., Joseph Cassidy, Democratic boss of Queens, and Louis T. Walter, who were arrested charged with having used unlawful means in promoting Willett's nomination for Supreme Court bench, obtained permission yesterday from Justice William J. Kelly in the Queens County Supreme Court to withdraw the applications for writs of habeas corpus made in their behalf the day before. It was stated in court that Dana Wallace, representing Cassidy and Walter, had withdrawn from the case. Abraham Levy said he would be associated with Col. Alexander S. Bacon in the defense of Willett.

WITNESS IN ALBANY INQUIRY DISAPPEARS

SHE IS TRACED TO VERMONT

Friend of Commissioner Cantine Sends Her $100—Testimony That Money Was Paid for Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 24.—A final effort was made to-day by James W. Osborne, counsel of the Senate Committee which is investigating the public affairs of Albany, to spread upon the committee's record the extent of the relations between the J. B. Lyon Company, now the State printer, and the city and county departments. He had shown that William Barnes, Jr., Chairman of the Republican State Committee, acquired 750 shares of stock in the Lyon Company in 1901, and the committee has applied to the courts to compel Mr. Barnes to tell the committee how much he paid for the stock or whether it was a gift. The case is pending.

Ex-Judge D Cady Herrick appeared to-day before the committee and said four physicians had certified that Mr. Lyon was too ill to be subjected to an examination, and Mr. Lyon was excused. The Lyon Company offered to give the committee a transcript of its account with the city and county departments and with The Journal and Argus Companies. Judge Herrick said that the company did a business of $1,250,000 a year, and that only $15,000 of this was city and county business.

The efforts of counsel to locate Mrs. May Willard after she had left the jurisdiction of the Senate Committee which is investigating Albany city and county affairs, were disclosed at to-day's session of the inquiry. Mrs. Willard is the woman at whose house on Plain Street Adele Boyer, the veiled lady, testified earlier in the inquiry, she had seen Edward B. Cantine, Commissioner of Public Safety.

James W. Osborne called several witnesses in an endeavor to prove that Mrs. Willard after leaving Albany assumed the name of Mrs. M. A. Lee and recently was visited in Bennington, Vt., by Peter A. Delaney, who has been associated with Corporation Counsel Arthur S. Andrews in representing the city during the investigation.

Jefferson H. Parker of Boston, Assistant Secretary of the New England Watch and Ward Society, told of having been advised that some women were acting suspiciously in a room in a Boston hotel and that one of the women was registered as "Mrs. M. A. Lee." W. Y. Taylor, an agent of the society, who was sent to an adjoining room to investigate, testified concerning fragmentary bits of conversation he had heard through the keyhole of the door which led him to believe the women were from Albany. Later, the witness said, he traced Mrs. Lee's baggage to a hotel in Bennington, Vt., where she was visited subsequently by Mr. Delaney.

Mr. Delaney testified that he had received a letter from Mrs. Willard stating that a crime had been committed, the nature of which the witness did not disclose, and that he had gone to Bennington at her request concerning the matter. The letter, he said, had been destroyed. Mrs. Willard, the witness stated, had been one of his clients, but he did not know her whereabouts at the present time.

"May Willard was one of our principal witnesses," said Mr. Osborne. "We find her manifestly under another name in another State, and counsel for May Willard turns up as counsel for the city. It was his duty to have produced her if he acted in good faith as counsel to the city. As counsel for May Willard he dealt with her under an assumed name."

Mr. Delaney protested that neither the counsel nor the committee had any business to criticise his professional conduct, and that counsel had taken an unfair advantage of him. He said he had consulted the State's Attorney of Vermont with reference to the alleged crime which he was informed had been committed.

Two express money orders of $50 each, which were sent to "Mrs. Lee" by H. D. Cox, who was described as "a friend of Mr. Cantine," were offered in evidence. The Commissioner, when called to the stand, said he had known Cox for fifteen or twenty years, but had had no talk with him about Mrs. Willard. The witness said he didn't know the woman was out of town.

Witnesses were called concerning an alleged gambling resort that had been conducted on the Schenectady Road, just inside the Albany County line, since 1908. Conrad Morf, a blacksmith at the American Locomotive Works in Schenectady, told of having won a "ten-to-one shot" on a horse race which the bookmakers refused to pay. He swore out warrants for the proprietors, and when the case came before a judge he found a warrant had been issued for himself as a "common gambler." Roscoe Sanford, a brother of District Attorney Sanford, the witness said, was attorney for the proprietors of the alleged resort. The Judge dismissed the case against them, and the warrant for the witness was withdrawn.

Morf said he endeavored to have the District Attorney obtain indictments by the Grand Jury, but his efforts were fruitless, as were appeals to the Sheriff to close the place. The bookmaker finally settled the bet, but the witness said he continued his efforts to have the place put out of business. The Law and Order League took the matter up and appealed to Gov. Dix, who ordered the Sheriff to act. Then the place was closed.

Morf charged Sheriff Platt with telephoning gambling houses before visiting them. "Boys, the Sheriff is coming," was the word the witness said was passed around, at which the racing odds on blackboards were erased, roulette tables covered, and the gambling paraphernalia and faro layouts were cleared away so that when the Sheriff arrived there was no evidence that gambling was carried on.

Robert S. McClellan, a private detective, who testified as to conditions in the Tenderloin several weeks ago, recalled to-day, said that there had been no improvement up to the present time. He submitted affidavits which he said contained evidence against twenty-two disorderly resorts. Mr. Osborne said they were offered for the benefit of the District Attorney, if he cared to make use of them.

Further testimony to support the assertion that money was paid at election time to foreign voters in some of the wards was received to-day. Angelo Travisone, who voted for the first time this year, said he received $5 from William Wheelock on the night before election. On the next day Wheelock, he said, told him to vote the straight Republican ticket, which he did.

The committee adjourned until Dec. 5.

Lunacy Appointees Draw Pay Early.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 24.—In this year's annual Supply bill was a $10,000 item for State Hospital inspection. Under this appropriation the State Lunacy Commission appointed Charles B. Dix an Inspector of Lights and Buildings at a salary of $4,000, and Herbert B. Spencer, a brother-in-law of Public Service Commissioner Huppuch, Inspector of Supplies, also at $4,000 a year. These appointments were made on Sept. 6, from which date they have drawn their pay, but their places were not placed in the exempt class by the State Civil Service Commission until Sept. 12. The resignation of Dr. Ferris as President of the Lunacy Board brought out the facts.

MAY TEST RETIREMENT LAW.

Act Intended to Shelve National Guard Officers at 64 Is Attacked.

The retirement law for commissioned officers of the New York National Guard, which goes into effect on Dec. 31, and which will retire a number of the most prominent officers who have reached the age of 64 years, is unconstitutional, in the opinion of some of the best legal authorities among the officers of the guard. It is likely that after the first batch of officers have been put on the retired list for age, a test case will be made.

Under the law eight officers will be retired on Dec. 31. They are Brig. Gen. George Moore Smith, commanding the First Brigade of Manhattan; Brig. Gen. David E. Austen, Chief of Coast Artillery; Col. Joseph G. Story, Assistant Adjutant General, on duty at the State Arsenal; Major William M. Kirby, Ordnance Officer on the Staff of Gen. Roe; Major Albert H. Briggs, Surgeon Fourth Brigade; Capt. William H. Palmer, Ordnance Officer, Seventh Regiment; Chaplain William C. P. Rhoades, Thirteenth Regiment of Coast Artillery, and Chaplain Albert F. Tenney of the Tenth Regiment. Smith, Austen, Story, Kirby, and Palmer are civil war veterans.

Section 6 of Article II. of the State Constitution which, it is contended, nullifies the new retiring law reads as follows: "No commissioned officer shall be removed from office during the term for which he shall have been appointed or elected, unless by the Senate, on the recommendation of the Governor, stating the grounds on which such removal is recommended, or by the sentence of a court-martial, or upon the findings of an examining board organized pursuant to law, or for absence without leave for a period of six months or more."

INVESTIGATION COST $99,995.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 24.—The last vouchers of the Merritt Committee of 1910, which was appointed under concurrent resolution of the Legislature, have been filed with State Controller Sohmer. This committee was the outgrowth of the Allds investigation, and the disclosures made by Insurance Supt. Hotchkiss. The sum of $50,000 was appropriated, but this sum was inadequate by half, for the general legislative contingent fund had to be dipped into deeply, and still $2,517 is to be placed in the next Supply bill, for balance due George W. Shotwell, the official stenographer. The aggregate sum paid out by the committee was $99,995.15, and the vouchers on file show the persons receiving pay and the sums which were paid them as follows:

M. Linn Bruce	$15,000
Isidore J. Kresel	6,800
Albert W. Whitney	7,500
Samuel Herhenstein	50
Robert A. Inch	250
Judson S. Rumsey	425
Alfred H. Horrell	7,500
H. B. Seely	100
Marvin Scudder, "Investigator"	1,800
J. W. Cunningham of Ellingwood & Cunningham	500
Murray Hill Hotel	10,411
George W. Shotwell, stenographer	19,470
L. R. Connant, accountant	5,778
E. W. Moses, secretary	1,500
J. B. Bannigan, office manager	1,500
Joseph J. Early, assistant secretary	500
Eugene L. Eisenger, chief clerk	792
Attendants	5,440
Messengers, &c.	2,578
Pinkerton Detective Agency	950
Traverse Detective Agency	532
John Lanson, detective	923
O. R. Miller, Reform Bureau	11
Ben Conger	32

As a result of this investigation, the only acts passed this year were twelve amendments to the insurance law and the bill creating the office of State Fire Marshal, at the head of which is Thomas J. Ahearn. This department will cost $67,500 for the first year and double that amount for the coming year.

SPENT $4,681 FOR COHALAN.

ALBANY, Nov. 24.—The Daniel F. Cohalan Campaign Committee, which advocated the election of Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of New York, certified to the Secretary of State to-day that it received $6,945 and spent $4,681. George J. Gillespie and John Delehunty contributed $500 each.

Herbert T. Ketcham, who was defeated for election as Supreme Court Justice in the Second Judicial District, filed a statement showing he spent $2,692. He received $500 from W. H. English.

The Treasurer of the committee which aided the candidacy of Henry De Forest Baldwin, Fusion candidate for Supreme Court Justice, received and spent $1,076. The largest contributors were Roger Foster, James Byrne, and Franklin B. Lord, Jr., each $250.

Edward I. Lindgren, Chairman of the Kings County Socialist Party, certified he received $1,643 and spent $1,091.

MANY MAINE SHELLS BARED.

Excavation of Mud Covering Wreck Progresses Rapidly.

HAVANA, Nov. 24.—The work of excavating the mud from about the wreck of the battleship Maine is progressing rapidly. At one point the laborers have reached to five feet below the bottom of the vessel in the vicinity of keel frame No. 80, which is supposed to be the place strained most severely by the impact of the explosion.

Some parts of the wreckage, particularly the port and transverse armored bulkhead, are believed still to be thirty feet down in the mud. Large quantities of ten-inch and six-inch shells and powder tanks, some of the latter exploded and some intact, were reached to-day.

The members of the Board of Inspection are devoting many hours each day to their work, but they are reticent regarding the deductions they have made as to the cause of the explosion that wrecked the Maine.

TRION COTTON MILL FAILS.

Million Dollar Georgia Concern Goes Into Receiver's Hands.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 24.—The Trion Manufacturing Company, operating a million dollar cotton mill at Trion, Ga., was placed in the hands of a receiver to-day. J. P. Cooper of Gadsden, Ala., was named as receiver.

The petition against the mill in favor of creditors was filed by Lipscomb, Willingham & Pryce at Rome. The assets of the company are stated to be $1,500,000 and the liabilities are given in the petition as unknown, but it is understood they will aggregate between $600,000 and $700,000. The petition in bankruptcy followed the resignation of A. S. Hamilton, President of the concern, and D. D. Hamilton, Jr., Vice President. After the resignation of the Hamiltons T. W. Lipscomb was elected President and C. Terhune Vice President.

The mill will be operated by the receiver.

TAR PARTY MEMBERS GET FULL PENALTY

Year in Jail for Four Who Confessed to Attack on School Teacher.

JURY CONVICTS TWO OTHERS

Acquits One After 30 Hours Deliberating—Miss Chamberlain Not in Court When Verdict Is Found.

LINCOLN CENTRE, Kan., Nov. 24.—John Schmidt and Sherrill Clark, charged with complicity in the tarring of Mary Chamberlain, the school teacher of this place, were found guilty to-day. A. N. Simms, the third defendant, was acquitted. The jury was out for nearly thirty hours. Sentence was deferred to permit attorneys to argue a motion for a new trial.

Earlier in the day Judge Grover imposed the extreme penalty, one year in jail, on Everett G. Clark, Jay Fitzwater, Watson Scranton, and Richard Ricord, who had confessed to taking part in the attack on Miss Chamberlain. Ricord has been nearly three months in jail.

Miss Chamberlain was not present when the verdict was read. It was said she thought a verdict impossible and started to-day for Beverly.

O. F. Sanders, one of the jurors, told how they arrived at the verdict:

"We did not consider for a moment the reputation of Miss Chamberlain," he said. "We agreed that that was not an issue."

Those convicted were not sentenced to-day, nor will they be for several days. After the verdict adjournment was taken until evening, when attorneys for the defense moved for a new trial.

The four men sentenced to-day were told they might have time to arrange their affairs before going to jail. Their counsel took exception to the sentence, saying thirty days would have been enough. Fewer than twenty persons were present when sentence was pronounced.

"Have you any reason to give why sentence should not be passed?" the court asked.

"No," replied each without emotion.

Scranton announced he wanted to begin to serve his sentence at once.

After these cases had been disposed of the jury in the case of the others notified the court that it desired to hear read the testimony relating to the alleged assertion of A. N. Simms that he would have been at the tarring if he could have gotten there.

The men sentenced to-day pleaded guilty before Judge Grover on Nov. 16. He withheld sentence at that time until the trial of the others and until he could learn the exact nature of their offense.

Clark is President of a Shady Bend milling company, and was accused of being the leader of the attack. Fitzwater is a miller also of Shady Bend, and Scranton is one of Everett Clark's employes.

All night long the jurors struggled to agree. The testimony of Chester Anderson and E. G. Clark, which the jury requested last night be read to them, was gone over many times. On every hand to-day were heard predictions that the jury would disagree.

When court opened Judge Grover called the jury for a conference, and was told no agreement had been reached. He gave them a respite for breakfast with the admonition that they must return to their deliberations at the end of that time.

Clark and Schmidt spent practically all of last night in the courtroom sleeping on benches. After Judge Grover left about 1 o'clock, Schmidt departed to meet Clark, who had preceded him to their hotel, but a few hours later both returned to the scene of the trial.

TWO HYDE HOUSES SOLD.

Business Building May Go Up Where Home of Equitable Founder Stood.

Henry B. Hyde's old city home at 9 East Fortieth Street, in which he lived for the greater part of his life as President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and the adjoining residence at No. 11, which Mr. Hyde purchased primarily as his uptown office, have been sold by Mr. Hyde's widow, Anna F. Hyde. Mrs. Hyde is now living at No. 11, where for years before the insurance investigations of about six years ago many important conferences with the leading bankers and financiers were held.

Mrs. Hyde's attorneys, Alexander & Green, declined yesterday to give the name of the buyer or say what disposition is likely to be made of the property. The plot covered by the two old-fashioned brownstone dwellings has a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 98.10 feet. When Mr. Hyde bought the second house he had passageways cut through, connecting the two dwellings.

James Hazen Hyde, the son of the Equitable founder, made No. 9 his home, but before the close of the insurance investigations he went to Paris to live. He has visited America but once or twice since. Soon after leaving New York Mr. Hyde sold his country home at West Islip, and in 1907 considerable surprise was occasioned among the neighbors by the appearance of "To Let" signs on the Fortieth Street houses. They were never rented.

The new owner of the property is said to have paid about $325,000 for it. It is assessed at $200,000. The houses are separated by one lot from Mrs. Lillia B. Hyde's Madison Avenue corner. Her fine residence was leased a year ago to the Anderson Auction Company for art galleries and sales rooms, and on the vacant plot adjoining the house a twelve-story loft connecting with the art galleries is being built.

Mrs. Lillia B. Hyde, who despite the similarity of name is not related to the family of the Equitable Life Assurance founder, tried for many years to prevent the invasion of trade into that part of Murray Hill. A big loft has lately been finished, directly opposite the Henry Hyde home, and at the southwest corner of Forty-first Street and Madison Avenue another tall loft building is under construction. To the left of the Hyde residence at No. 7 is the Brook Club, which lately added to its holdings by purchasing an abutting plot in Forty-first Street. The two Hyde residences will evidently soon give way to towering office and loft buildings.

Old Guard Parades To-day.

The Old Guard will parade to-day in full Winter uniform to celebrate Evacuation Day. The guard will assemble at headquarters, 225 West Fifty-fifth Street, at 1 P. M. The line of march will be from City Hall Park down Broadway to Wall Street, to Broad Street, and thence to the Battery, where Capts. George W. Homans and George L. Winn will hoist the flag on the Battery flagpole while a National salute is fired. Afterward Capt. E. F. Blohn will provide luncheon.

SHOCK KILLS BISHOP'S WIFE.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 24.—Mrs. David H. Moore, wife of Bishop David H. Moore of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died here to-night from the effects of a stroke of paralysis, which followed the suit recently filed against her husband for alleged libel by Mrs. Carrie Cope of Topeka, Kan., as a result of a letter written by Bishop Moore concerning a missionary bequest.

Mrs. Moore had been in feeble health for some time, and the controversy into which her husband was drawn had preyed on her mind. Recently there was a fire in the Alexandria flats in which she lived, and, while not in immediate danger, she suffered from the excitement.

All of her children were at her bedside when she breathed her last. They are E. H. Moore, Professor of Mathematics, University of Chicago; C. H. Moore, a Denver attorney; Alfred T. Moore, financial editor of a New York newspaper; Julian H. Moore of Denver, Mrs. R. J. Pitkin of Denver, and Miss Mary Moore of this city.
